President Puts Our Prompt Adherence to Protocol Up to Senate Committee Head.

SENATOR'S REPLY UNKNOWN

ITALIAN DEBT DISCUSSED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—President Coolidge began work today on the chapters of his annual message to Congress dealing with foreign relations in which he will emphasize the desirability of early action by the Senate on the proposal pledging American adherence to the International Court of Justice.

Friends of the World Court are satisfied that the President will discuss this subject in a fashion that will focus public attention of the Senate, which, under an order adopted at the last session, will proceed to consideration of the Court proposal on Dec. 17.

The President discussed the foreign relations phase of his message today with Senator Borah, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. While Senator Borah declined to make any comment on the conference, it is understood that special attention was given to the probable attitude of Congress toward funding agreements signed with debtor nations, to the plans of the Administration for another conference to limit armaments and to the Senate situation relative to the World Court.

Borah's Points Are at Issue.

Whether Senator Borah indicated today that he would limit his opposition to the Administration's endeavor to persuade the Senate to ratify the World Court protocol to a mere protest, or whether he made known an intention to fight the proposal to the bitter end, could not be learned.

Senator Borah is at odds with the Administration on several questions affecting this Government's foreign relations, notably the World Court, the attitude of the United States toward Soviet Russia and the problem involved in the ratification of an agreement with the debtor nations of Europe.

The Administration has no present intention of recognizing the Soviet Government. Senator Borah looks askance at the American-Belgian debt compact and is likely to criticise it in the Senate.

The embarrassment of the situation from an Administration standpoint is that Mr. Borah, as head of the Committee on Foreign Relations, will have a powerful voice in disposing in committee of a number of measures of international import in which the Administration is vitally interested.

On only one subject of major foreign interest does Senator Borah find himself agreed with the policy of the Administration. That has to do with the well-known desire of President Coolidge to call another meeting of the powers to amplify the work of the Washington Arms Conference.

Would Widen Conference Scope.

Senator Borah is in hearty accord with this policy, although if he had his way he would amplify the agenda by the inclusion of a discussion bearing on the economic problems growing out of the World War that confront the various governments.

Senator Borah called at the White House today by invitation of President Coolidge. He arrived late in the afternoon, coming direct from his office at the Capitol, and remained with the President about an hour. On emerging from the White House office he said that he had discussed an important matter with the President but that he was not at liberty to comment on it for publication. He referred all inquirers to White House officials.

Whether the Senate will begin debate on the World Court at once, or delay consideration, has not been definitely determined. The opposition to the Court undoubtedly will make an attempt to postpone the beginning of debate until after the holidays. President Coolidge's declarations on the subject in his message may defeat this movement.

Callers at the White House insist that President Coolidge is convinced that the United States should no longer defer joining the World Court, and that his message will contain a ringing argument for affirmative action at the earliest practicable date.

He is said to take the position that in contributing to international amity and accord the United States should at least take this step, and he is hopeful that the Senate will ultimately come around to his way of thinking.

Coolidge and Borah Stir Interest as Commission Divides Work.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The Italian and American Debt Commissions held a short meeting today, at which two subcommittees, representing each commission, were named to consider the question of Italy's capacity to pay and the problem of the transfer of funds by Italy to the United States in the event of a funding agreement being reached. These subcommittees will meet tonight and tomorrow, and there also will be

Spain to Send Isabella's Gems To Philadelphia Exposition

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Nov. 4.—Spain, it is understood, will make elaborate contributions to the sesquicentennial exposition at Philadelphia, King Alfonso having decided to send a company of the Royal Halberdiers of his personal bodyguard wearing their picturesque uniform.

Spain will also lend the finest examples of tapestries, carpets and art treasures from the royal palaces. The Dukes of Alba and Veragua are sending interesting documents which belonged to Columbus.

A romantic contribution will be one made at the suggestion of the American Ambassador—the famous jewel casket and its contents which Queen Isabella pawned in order to provide the funds enabling Columbus to discover America.

BROTHERHOODS MOVE FOR WARTIME WAGES

SOUTH AND EAST MEET NEXT

Indications Are That Final Terms May Go to Railroad Managers Within Thirty Days.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 (AP).—Proposals centring on the restoration of wartime wages were approved late today by the Western Joint Association of General Chairmen of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors.

The increase contemplated in such a proposal would involve more than $25,000,000 a year when applied to more than 200,000 men in yard and train service.

This action is believed to be the first in a reopening by the transportation brotherhoods and other national railroad organizations of their campaigns of 1923 and 1924, which sought an increase of 12 per cent. and culminated in an increase of about five.

The association has been in session two days. Tomorrow it will elect officers and a conference committee. On Nov. 10 its conclusions will be reported by the grand officers to the Southern Association in a similar meeting at Washington, and on Nov. 17 the Eastern Association will deliberate at Cleveland. If necessary, the officers and Conference Committee will be called on to appear at the Southern and Eastern meetings.

Brotherhood officers indicated that the proposals, in their final form, as agreed on by the representatives of all three associations, might go to the managers within thirty days. Until that time they declined to divulge the details as formulated by the Western group.

The sentiment of the Chairmen was generally in favor of "wartime" wages. This term, as it has been used by the brotherhoods, means wages in effect after rates had been advanced to meet prices as they had expanded in wartime.

These rates were cut 12 per cent. by the United States Railroad Labor Board in July, 1921. Prior to that decision the rates paid, according to board statistics, for 1920 ranged from $5.04 a day for switch tenders to $7 for passenger conductors, with freight brakemen and conductors averaging respectively from $5.12 to $5.52 and from $6.44 to $6.96, according to whether they were in through or local service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Railroads during August had 1,800,219 workers in their service, the Interstate Commerce Commission reported today, or 11,347 more than during August, 1924, and 4,850 above the total employed during July.

The figures account for all the payrolls of the Class 1 roads, which operate more than 90 per cent. of the country's total railroad mileage. The August total of salaries and wages paid was $247,071,210, which compared with $245,669,243 paid during July and $230,518,006 during August, 1924.

BIG WAVE OF BUYING SETS NEW RECORDS ON STOCK EXCHANGE

U. S. STEEL TAKES THE LEAD

Common Goes to 134¼, the Highest Since 1917, When 136⅝ Was Recorded.

BIG DEMAND FOR MOTORS

Advance of as Much as Eight Points Is Made in Some Shares in 2,860,830 Turnover.

An avalanche of orders for stocks of all sorts flooded the New York Stock Exchange at the opening yesterday. The result was a turnover of 2,860,830 shares, by far the largest of the year, a new high price level for the averages, and gains from fractions to as much as 6 or 8 points in the more volatile issues.

The outstanding feature of the day was the advance in United States Steel common, the market's natural leader. On a turnover of 157,900 shares the stock advanced from 129 to 134¼, a gain of 5¼ points, which added about $26,000,000 to the open market valuation of the corporation. Steel and motor shares were the leaders of the market all day. A few of the specialties advanced, but the main speculation was in these two particular groups, and the turnover in their shares was so heavy that the tickers at times were from eight to twenty minutes behind the actual market.

The advance in U. S. Steel sent the stock to the highest point since 1917, when it was 136⅝, the highest ever recorded.

Stocks Make New Records.

The market as a whole gained during the day; in fact, the averages as represented by the stocks of fifty well-known corporations advanced to a new high for the year. Railroad shares were up at the close .4, and the industrials were up .82, while the average of fifty stocks was up .35, or approximately five-eighths of 1 per cent. A new high record for the year was established by fifty representative stocks at 135.85.

The color of the market and the backlog of one of the most hectic days in the history of the Stock Exchange was furnished by the tremendous outside participation which developed within the last few weeks, or since the motor shares started going at a tremendous pace. It seemed as if every one wanted to buy stocks at the opening. It probably was as wide an opening as the Exchange ever has witnessed.

In one instance—Hudson Motors—orders were received overnight, mostly from out of town, by the 1,100 members of the Exchange to buy 7,000 shares "at the market." The situation was made doubly precarious by the fact that the specialist in this particular stock had only two or three hundred shares to sell on his books. All he could do was to await selling orders and to fill the order as best he could after the stock had opened. As a consequence, the stock opened up 7 points, then declined 5, and later made up all of this loss. Similar experiences were encountered in several stocks in which the public is now taking an interest.

Steel Jumps Into the Lead.

Although the motors were clearly in the lead during the morning hours of trading, it was not until midmorning that United States Steel common, the market's natural leader, forged ahead of the market through orders which quickly cleaned up all of the stock for sale. Old traders said there probably has not been such interest displayed in a single stock in Wall Street in the last five or six years. It is common knowledge in Wall Street that a pool is working in Steel, but, it was pointed out, a pool is always working in Steel.

To outside public participation in the market, inflamed by the advances which have taken place in the last fortnight, was attributed the wide advance in many issues yesterday. It was evident, however, that under the "smoke-screen" of the strength in the market created by the advance of Steel and other leading industrials, many other stocks which have advanced recently were being heavily sold. The list at the close, although recording a preponder-

Re-elected to the Assembly Although Dead Three Weeks

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 4.—Although Hunter Lindsay of this town, a candidate on the Republican ticket in Essex County for re-election to the Assembly, died nearly three weeks before election, 68,382 votes were cast for him, electing him to office by a margin of about 9,000 over his nearest Democratic rival.

All twelve of the Republican candidates for Assembly in Essex County were elected, but the death of Lindsay will leave the county with eleven instead of twelve votes in the Assembly.

Because Lindsay died after the time limit prescribed by law for the filing of designations, it was impossible for the Republicans to name another.

NEW YORK GREETS JAPANESE ROYALTY

PRINCE VOICES GOOD-WILL

H. W. Taft Says With Amity Among Japan, England and America Peace Is Secure.

Princess Asaka, sister of the Emperor of Japan and eighth daughter of the beloved Emperor Meiji, accompanied by the Prince, himself a member of the reigning family, arrived in New York yesterday on the Paris of the French Line. Homeward bound after three years' study of conditions abroad, the Prince and Princess temporarily dropped the incognito under which they had been traveling to appear as guests of honor at the annual dinner of the Japan Society at the Hotel Astor last night. There the Prince delivered a telling message of good-will from his people. The response of more than seven hundred representative guests to the emphasis upon peace, which was voiced by the Prince and by Henry W. Taft, Dr. John H. Finley and Dr. Henry van Dyke was felt to mark the occasion as an important milestone in improvement of relations between the two nations.

Hold Levee on Paris.

The royal couple granted a brief levee in the grand salon of the Paris, once it had made fast at Pier 57, North River, foot of Fifteenth Street. Attending were delegations from the Japanese Embassy, the State Department, various consular officials, and a score or so of the royal couple's countrymen. Viscount Taketane Soma, officer of the Imperial household and a member of the Prince's suite, presented the visitors, first to the Princess, and then to her strikingly handsome young husband.

Through Viscount Soma, the Prince and Princess conveyed that in their study abroad they had paid particular attention to economic, financial, industrial and social conditions in the various countries visited. They authorized expression of their delight at being the third representatives of Japanese royalty to come to the United States. The Prince then added for the Princess and himself that they looked forward with keen interest to what experiences they could crowd into their brief itinerary on the way to the Pacific Coast, preliminary to returning home. They sail from San Francisco for Yokohama in January.

Both Like Dancing.

The winning charm of both visitors caught the expressed admiration of particularly the American visitors on the Paris. The Princess, slightly taller than the Prince, wore a fawn-colored, fur-trimmed frock of a Paris mode, set off by a rose. The Prince was boyishly slim and carried himself erect like the young commissioned officer he was.

Both the Prince and Princess admitted a love of Western dancing, and it was learned that in midocean the Prince had asked by radio that dancing be included at the Japan Society dinner last night. His command was complied with, and the Princess and he were among the first to leave the dining room at the Astor for the adjoining ball room.

The Prince, it further developed, is athletic and particularly fond of golf and tennis. He will play golf here today with Sessue Hayakawa, Japanese film actor, and has consented to a tennis match in the course of his stay with E. Shimizu, Davis Cup entrant.

Welcomed at Pier.

Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira headed the official Japanese representatives who met the Prince and Princess at the North River pier. Others were Colonel N. Morita, military attaché at the embassy in Washington; Captain Kodachi, head of the Naval Commission here; Hiroshi Saito, Japanese Consul General, and the latter's staff. The State Department representatives boarded the Paris at Quarantine. Police Commissioner Enright had two detectives waiting at the gangplank who will act as personal escort for the couple during their stay in New York.

The Prince and Princess went to the Waldorf-Astoria from the liner, and the fact dodging of the liner prevented their appearance at the Japan Society dinner until 9:45. All in the ballroom stood as the couple entered and proceeded to the guest table, followed by Ambassador Matsudaira, Viscount Soma, Colonel Morita and Consul General Saito.

Lights were dimmed as the orchestra played Kimigayo, the Japanese national

DEFEATS OF KLAN CHEER POLITICIANS IN WASHINGTON

Tuesday's Rebuffs to Order Hailed by Both Parties as Sign of Waning Power.

SILENCE FROM COOLIDGE

But He Expected, It Is Said, the Democratic Victories in New York and New Jersey.

SMITH TRIUMPH IS SEEN

Election of Walker and Success of Amendments Are Believed to Have Added to His National Prestige.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Callers at the White House today carried away the impression that President Coolidge was too good a politician to derive much comfort for his party in the outcome of yesterday's elections. It was not a day for the Republican Party.

What happened at the polls yesterday, however, was not without a grain of satisfaction to the Administration, and especially to those at the White House. In the election of a Republican Mayor in Democratic Boston they saw the opportunity of building up a strong municipal organization that would be of great help to Senator William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee and President Coolidge's close friend, when he seeks a return to the Senate in the elections of November, 1926. But Administration politicians did not attempt to create the impression that this was a straight-out Republican victory, for they acknowledged that it was due to the fact that the Democratic Party was split wide open, with seven candidates in the field.

While no public comment on the elections came from President Coolidge, and it was said that he withheld, even from his intimates, his views concerning the Democratic victories in New York and New Jersey, the impression was given that the President was not surprised over the great triumph of State Senator Walker for Mayor of New York and the defeat of State Senator Arthur Whitney, Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey. He had been forewarned to expect just that outcome in both instances.

Klan Defeats Are Welcomed.

Many politicians of both parties found satisfaction in the defeat of Ku Klux Klan candidates for public office. The victory of the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer of Virginia, a Catholic, in the face of a determined effort by the Klan to defeat him, caused rejoicing not only among Democrats but among Republicans.

The Klan candidate for Mayor of Detroit was snowed under and the Klan candidate for Mayor of Buffalo was also beaten. In Louisville, the discovery last week that the Democratic candidate for Mayor was a Klansman or affiliated with the Klan caused his enforced resignation from the ticket and, while a highly respected citizen was substituted, the anti-Klan feeling aroused by the exposure apparently was reflected in the majority vote received by the Republican candidate.

What furnishes the most gratification over the defeat of the Klan in its drive against the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer in Virginia is the suggestion it carries of the waning of Klan power in the South, where at one time it had its greatest strength. There have been many indications, especially since the election of Mrs. Ferguson as Governor of Texas, despite the exertions of the Klan, that the Southern States were being freed from the once powerful influence of the secret organization. An example of this tendency was the Ku Klux national parade in Washington last September, when Southern States not remote from this city had the most meager representations in its line of march. The bulk of the robed paraders came from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Without them the procession would have been a flat failure as far as a show of numbers was concerned.

Reports reaching Washington indicate that there is a Klan recrudescence in Oklahoma and in certain sections of the West, but these have not been confirmed except to the extent that yesterday's elections in Indiana are interpreted as showing that the Klansmen are maintaining a strong hold on the Republican political organization there.

Indiana Vote Significant.

ELATED DEMOCRATS NOW CALL ON SMITH TO RUN FOR A FOURTH TERM AS GOVERNOR; WALKER TO PICK CIVILIAN TO HEAD POLICE

SEEKS AN INDEPENDENT

Tammany Not Anxious to Have Organization Man Appointed.

SEVERAL HYLAN MEN TO GO

Mills, Monaghan and O'Malley Are Slated for Early Replacement.

NICHOLSON MAY HOLD OVER

Drennan Also to Remain—J. P. Sinnott to Be Secretary to New Mayor.

Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright is the first city department head marked for decapitation by Tammany as the result of the election of Senator James J. Walker to the Mayoralty, but the new Police Commissioner is not expected to be either a Tammany man or a member of the uniformed force.

This was learned yesterday upon undisputed authority. The selection of a Police Commissioner, it was learned, is not only a matter of great concern to the Mayor-elect but also to Tammany, the leaders of which desire to continue the policy of the late Charles F. Murphy in this respect. Nearly two decades ago Mr. Murphy decided that Tammany control of the Police Department was a political liability. There was said to have been no change in this belief by George W. Olvany, the present leader of Tammany, and Senator Walker was reported to coincide in this view.

So far as could be learned, neither Senator Walker nor any one else has any idea at present who will be picked for the Police Commissionership. As described by one prominent member of Tammany, the man wanted must be independent, able, a skilled and experienced executive and one to command the confidence of the community. So far, although it was understood that several men had been suggested, no one has been found who measures fully up to the specifications.

"If a man with wings should drop from the sky, he would be welcome to Senator Walker," was the way one described the Police Commissionership situation. To which another Democrat added that the "man with the wings should also be a man with a club."

To Seek an Independent.

The selection of any one of those so far mentioned for Police Commissioner was said to be unlikely. These have included State Tax Commissioner John F. Gilchrist, a Tammany man and close friend of both Governor Smith and Senator Walker; Joseph Johnson, Commissioner of Public Works of Manhattan, former Fire Commissioner and another member of Tammany, and Chief Inspector William J. Lahey, a member of the uniformed force. If one of these should be selected, it was said, it would be only because of the Mayor-elect's failure to find the right kind of an independent.

While public attention is largely focused on the Police Commissionership, and Senator Walker's intentions in administration will be judged at its beginning largely by his appointment to that office, the members of Tammany and the Democratic organizations in the other boroughs are keenly interested in just how far Senator Walker will go in replacing the department heads, deputies and Secretaries of the Hylan Administration with Tammany men and those who supported the Mayor-elect in his primary fight.

Many applications for such appointments were said to have been made yesterday at Fourteenth Street and there was every indication that in view of the comparatively small number of vacancies expected there would not be anywhere near enough jobs to go around.

Commissioner of Public Markets Edwin J. O'Malley, Commissioner of Plant and Structures William Wirt Mills, City Chamberlain Philip Berolsheimer and Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Health Commissioner, were said to be among the department heads whose connection with the incoming City Administration was expected to end on or soon after Jan. 1. There was said to have been not even

Hylan Felicitates Tammany; Warns It of Responsibility

Mayor Hylan made the following statement when he reached the City Hall yesterday morning:

"I want to congratulate Tammany on the overwhelming victory. Of course, frankly speaking, there was no opposition. Tammany must in the next four years take full responsibility for the new administration."

The Mayor said he had sent a congratulatory telegram to the Mayor-elect.

After Jan. 1, the Mayor said, he expected to "go to work."

ALL AMENDMENTS WIN BY CITY'S VOTE

BONDS FOUGHT HARDEST

Improvement Issue May Have Only 59,000 Majority—Others Easy Victors.

More complete returns than were available on Tuesday night of the State-wide balloting for the four constitutional amendments show that all four were carried by the voters. All were fought hard up-State, but New York City voted so emphatically for them that the adverse majorities north of the Bronx were overcome in every case.

Returns for the city were virtually complete, with only a single election district in New York County missing, whereas the returns from up-State represented only 4,008 of that region's 4,711 election districts. But the city's lead was too great to be overcome by the rural districts not yet tabulated, despite the fact that such districts were voting heavily against the amendments.

The Vote Compared

No. 1....	291,625	232,813	58,812
No. 2....	372,548	185,380	187,168
No. 3....	420,778	112,405	308,373
No. 4....	436,901	27,760	409,226

The foregoing table discloses that in proportion as New York City's vote rose from amendment to amendment that of the northern counties against them dwindled. In other words the first amendment, denounced by Republican leaders as a "blank check" for $100,000,000 for permanent State improvements, was hardest fought up-State and least supported here, whereas the fourth, that for judiciary readjustment, was most heavily backed here and least fought up-State.

The grade-crossing amendment was more heartily supported in New York City than was Amendment No 1 and up-State returned a smaller majority against it. The city vote for the third amendment, that for State reorganization involving the short ballot, gave a majority greater than that for the second, while the up-State opposition began notably to weaken.

How the Suburbs Voted.

The Republican opposition to the four propositions becomes more noticeable as the vote is traced northward. It is interesting to note that the counties nearest to the metropolis, with large suburban populations, were far from rejecting all the amendments. Westchester County, for example, beat the first amendment by a few votes and carried the second, third and fourth, the last-mentioned by a majority of more than 18,000. Rockland County defeated No. 1 and carried the others, and Putnam County defeated both propositions involving the issuing of bonds, but voted favorably for the third and fourth amendments.

In the up-State districts, the more rural the community the more pronounced was the opposition, votes of ten to one against the bond issues not being rare in the country.

As the results became unquestionably apparent with more and more votes tabulated, the outcome was hailed with general satisfaction in the city and numerous individuals and organizations expressed their pleasure. Among the last-mentioned was the New York State Association, whose statement said:

"The directors of the New York State Association have noted with great satisfaction the favorable vote on the four constitutional amendments, particularly the vote on the first, second and third, in which the association has had a vital interest. The reorganization amendment has been the chief plank in our platform for many years.

"The association has spent a great deal of time and energy in explaining this proposal throughout the State and in keeping track of it the interest and

TALK OF SMITH FOR SENATE

THEN TO FIGHT WADSWORTH

REPUBLICANS SEE NO HOPE

Gloomy Over Defeat, They Look in Vain for Means to Rebuild Crippled Machine.

A new feather adorns Governor Smith's far-famed brown derby. The result of Tuesday's Mayoralty election in this city and the favorable vote on the constitutional amendments which form part of his legislative program and were bitterly contested by his Republican opponents cap the climax of an unbroken record of success established by Mr. Smith during the generation he has spent in politics and public life.

Alfred E. Smith today is the most powerful leader the Democratic Party has ever had in the greatest State of the Union. Not only is his leadership over his own party in the State undisputed, but the election has shown that he has a tremendous following among Republicans.

The Republican organization in New York City emerged from the Mayoralty fight a crippled, almost lifeless, thing which from the present outlook has little to hope for in a long future unless something should go wrong with the city administration that will take office on Jan. 1. And the Governor undoubtedly will wield a strong influence in the coming New York City administration, for it will be an administration of his own making.

Reasons for a Fourth Term.

Despite recent protestations on the part of Governor Smith that nothing would induce him to continue for another term in his present office, the ratification of Amendment 3, which provides for a reorganization of the administrative State departments and retirement of three of the elective State officials as such, thus concentrating power and responsibility in the Governor's hands, may make it necessary for him to become a fourth term candidate for Governor next year. In fact, the clamor for another State administration headed by him has already been raised by up-State Democrats and it may become irresistible.

What Governor Smith's response to this new clamor will be is a matter of speculation for the present. Unless he carries out his determination to retire to private life at the end of his present term, there is only one other big political opening for him next year—that of becoming candidate for the United States Senate against Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., who has already announced that he will seek another term.

While Democrats throughout the State, with Tuesday's election returns fresh in their mind, have little doubt that he would come out of a fight with Senator Wadsworth victoriously, they point out that, viewed from its national aspect and of the prospect of the Governor's becoming a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1928, a fourth term in the Governor's office, which is unprecedented in this or any other State in the Union, would mean more to him than a victory in an election to the United States Senate.

Duty to His Party.

The plea to Governor Smith to become a fourth-term candidate will be made on the dual ground that two years more in office would enable him to see his entire reconstruction program through and that he owes it to his party to insure the State Democracy against Republican control of the proposed reorganization through which they might entrench themselves at the State Capitol so securely that it would be next to impossible to dislodge them. In the circumstances it seems certain that the Democrats would not care to wage next year's Governorship battle with a candidate who might be defeated, and in looking over the field they have failed to discover any one except Governor Smith whose candidacy, in their opinion, would make victory certain.

The triumph won by Governor Smith on Tuesday will be the signal for his friends in all parts of the country to renew their fight for his nomination for President in 1928. They look upon him as being in a position unprecedented advantage. The Democratic primary fight that resulted in the defeat of Governor Hylan, for which the Governor furnished not only the inspiration and the campaign but the strategy, has been watched throughout the country, as has the fight for the Democratic Mayoralty nomination. New York Democrats now expect the coming Walker Administration to improve greatly the minds of Democrats in other parts of the country the prejudice that have long harbored against Tammany Hall. There is large measure were responsible for the defeat of Governor Smith's candidacy for the Presidential nomination last year.

Governor Smith was inquer yesterday but declined to make any statement on

Lottery Proposed to Aid French Treasury; Group of Senators Is Headed by Poincare

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—In political circles a plan is again being developed to start a State lottery to provide the Treasury with urgently needed funds to assist the Government to meet the budget expenditure.

The majority of Deputies and Senators have hitherto shown some hesitation about adopting such a scheme. Now, however, the Republican group in the Senate, which counts such important personalities among its members as M. Poincaré, Millerand and former Finance Minister François Marsal, has pronounced definitely in favor of a lottery by means which can without hesitation be adopted by the State in order to meet the present needs of the Treasury.

If other means of reëstablishing the fiscal situation fail the organization of public lottery booths on lines somewhat similar to the plan previously existing in Italy may before very long be created.

French francs sold at their lowest points of the year in New York yesterday, touching 4.02½ cents. The close was at 4.03¼, a net decline of 15 points from the closing figures of Monday. The selling came almost entirely from Europe and local transactions were light. Bankers said the decline was due to the political situation in Paris and indications of a flight of capital in apprehension of a capital levy.

Fluctuations in francs were limited, the opening prices reflecting in full the decline of the previous day in foreign markets. In addition to selling in Paris there was reported to be considerable pressure originating in Germany and in Holland. At the low point the market became somewhat stabilized, apparently as a result of covering by previous sellers.

Genna Gang's Book Lists 250 Chicago Police As Sharing $6,926 Monthly Bootleg Graft

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The Genna gang's "black book," the book that escaped unread from the court room of Judge William V. Brothers and from the presence of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe last Monday, was shown to an afternoon newspaper today and then taken away to be hidden.

These are some of the things the list is said to record concerning bootlegging liquor and graft:

1. More than 250 Chicago policemen were on the Genna payroll at monthly "salaries" ranging from $10 to $125 at the time of Mike Genna's death last June 13 in a gun battle.

2. A squad from State's Attorney Crowe's office was collecting from the bootlegging Gennas.

3. Three squads from the Detective Bureau were on the payroll at $400 to $600 a month each.

4. The policemen drawing pay from the gang collected at 1,022 West Taylor Street monthly, between the 25th of one month and the 10th of the next month.

5. The payroll for May totaled $6,926. Much of the pay-off list was asserted to be in Mike Genna's handwriting.

the victory of Senator Walker and the approval of the constitutional amendments. He said he would reserve any comment until he could make a statement that would fully cover the situation and demonstrate what the victory meant to the people of this city and the State. The Governor will leave for Albany early this morning. A mass of work awaits him at the capital, and he expects to spend the rest of the week there to catch up with it. He will return to this city on Monday, and soon after will leave for a fortnight's holiday at the Seaview Golf Club, near Atlantic City.

Olvany in the Saddle.

The man who, next to Senator Walker and Governor Smith, will profit most from the outcome of the Mayoralty fight is George W. Olvany, the new chieftain of Tammany Hall. The Walker victory was just what Judge Olvany needed to establish himself firmly in the leadership of the Tammany organization. His first Mayoralty fight will place in the City Hall after Jan. 1 a man who from the very beginning was his choice for the office and who may be depended upon to pay very close to the organization in respect to both patronage and policies. Olvany consequently will be assured of a place in local Democratic councils of as great influence as that of his immediate predecessor, the late Charles F. Murphy. Hylan's defeat in the primaries and the election of Senator Walker will make Olvany the arbiter of local Democratic affairs, even though the leadership of the Democratic organizations in other boroughs, notably in Brooklyn, where John H. McCooey is the overlord, is in the hands of men whose service, compared with that of Olvany, stamps them as veterans in the game.

Senator Walker said yesterday that, while he felt as happy and proud as could be, he would let the election speak for itself and had no comment to make.

"In my forthcoming Administration the people will find me true to the principles and ideals of the Tammany organization," he said. "This will mean that I will exert my utmost endeavor to giving this city an Administration that will be clean, progressive and effective in achievements that will contribute to the welfare and happiness of the people in the largest measure of which I am capable. To that end I will give all that is in me for the four years to come."

Senator Walker expects to start South on Saturday for a rest. He will remain away until Thanksgiving Day or thereabouts. His destination remains unsettled. On his return he will take up the questions of appointments and other matters preparatory to his installation on Jan. 1.

It is certain that Senator Walker's selection will insure a cooperation between the Chief Executive at Albany and the New York City Administration which did not exist during the two Administrations of Mayor Hylan. While Governor Smith in his messages to the Legislature in 1922 and 1924 urged upon the Legislature the enactment of what had become known as the "Hylan program" and even made a fight for the Hylan policies, there was no cordiality toward the Governor in the City Hall; on the contrary, there was a noticeable aloofness on the part of the Mayor.

Walker and Smith in Sympathy.

All of that is certain to be changed now, and unless something which has been hinted at in some quarters but certainly is not visible to the naked political eye should now occur to mar the friendly relations between the Mayor-elect and the man to whom in great measure he owes his nomination, these relations are sure to continue throughout the four years of the Walker Administration, with all that might mean to the city and its government, even though as a result of home rule the city will be less dependent upon the Governor and the Legislature than it has been.

Cooperation between Senator Walker and Governor Smith, it was pointed out yesterday, would greatly promote the effort which, with the support of Tammany leader Olvany, will be carried forward during the next four years, firmly to establish the Tammany organization, decried in the past, as the ultra-progressive and ultra-clean element in New York City politics.

Chairman George K. Morris of the Republican State Committee, who prior to the election had predicted the defeat of the constitutional amendments providing for the bond issues of $100,000,000 for public improvements and $300,000,000 for the elimination of grade crossings, and an increase in Republican strength in the Assembly, spoke in a conciliatory manner yesterday.

"The people have made their voice heard," he said. "Under the circumstances the Legislature must carry out the popular mandate in good faith. No other course is open."

For all that, with the Republicans in the continued control of both branches of the Legislature and many of the legislative leaders of the party openly hostile to the amendments and the Governor's program generally, it is highly probable that storm signals will be flying at the Capitol from the moment the opening gavel falls at the 1926 session.

Not the two bond proposal, but the short ballot and the State reorganization project as contemplated by Amendment No. 3, to which, ostensibly, the Republicans were committed, are likely to cause the most trouble. Many Democrats fear that the Republican lawmakers, opposed to the strengthening of the Governor's hand by putting him in charge of the reorganization plan, may adopt dilatory tactics to stave off the necessary legislation for another year, possibly by passing measures which Governor Smith would find it impossible to approve. Another factor is that most of the loss in patronage that would follow reorganization—and this might be considerable—would be borne by the Republicans.

Smith's Coming Fight.

Governor Smith will make a fight for legislation to carry out in good faith the intent of the constitutional amendments as soon as the Legislature opens its 1926 session. A special commission is at work drafting bills to carry out the reorganization plan. But he will not rest content with that. At the coming session of the lawmaking body he will vigorously press the executive budget and the other constitutional amendments providing a four-year term for Governors and their election in an "off year" midway in a Presidential term. These two measures are necessary to complete his program of governmental reconstruction at Albany. Republican Legislatures have fought these two measures even more bitterly than the short ballot and the reorganization amendments which were ratified at Tuesday's election.

Republican leaders were too stunned by the disaster that overtook the party candidates on Tuesday to say much. The steady falling off of the Republican vote in city elections since 1915 with a new low level reached in the vote for this year's Mayoralty candidate filled them with gloomy forebodings.

"Won't the result of yesterday's election inevitably lead to a change in leadership and a general shake-up in the Republican organizations in this city?" was asked of one "high private" in the ranks.

"I suppose it should," he replied gloomily. "But there is little prospect of that for the present. There doesn't seem to be any one in the party with enough energy to do the shaking. But unless something is done the Republican Party in New York City had better use what little vitality it has left to compose itself decently and lie down and die. After all we did, thousands and thousands of Republicans went out and voted the Democratic ticket straight yesterday."

Speaking for the independents who supported Senator Walker, Joseph M. Price, Chairman of the Municipal Alliance, said:

"Senator Walker and the Democratic organization have an unusual opportunity. We look to see real achievement at the City Hall in solving the great problems of transit, schools, parks, development and housing, as well as the routine of municipal housekeeping—not a government of catch phrases and abuse of those who have real constructive criticism to offer whether they are friends of the Administration or opponents.

"The independents believe that Senator Walker's great success in handling at Albany the very important legislation affecting New York City foreshadows an even greater success as Mayor of New York."

FINAL RETURNS ADD TO TAMMANY SWEEP

All but Three of 63 Candidates for Aldermen, and 56 for Assembly Are Elected.

Senton's Plurality 105,421—Wigwam Captures 10th District—Connolly Issues Statement.

The returns of Tuesday's election, completed yesterday, showed that Tammany's victory in New York City was even more overwhelming than indicated by the incomplete returns election night. In addition to electing the complete city, borough and county tickets, the Democrats elected all but three of their sixty-three candidates for Aldermen, and all but six of sixty-two candidates for the Assembly.

Tabulation of the entire vote gave Senator James J. Walker, Democratic nominee for Mayor, a plurality of 401,581 over Frank D. Waterman, Republican.

Justice Joseph V. McKee, Democratic candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, won by 373,016 plurality over George U. Harvey, Republican.

All the Democratic candidates for Borough Presidents won by large majorities—the size of the total vote being considered—except Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens, who had engaged in a hard-fought campaign with Senator John L. Karle, the Republican candidate. Mr. Connolly's triumph was decisive, for he won over Senator Karle by a plurality of 17,742.

Pluralities of the Others.

The pluralities received by the other Democratic candidates for Borough President, all of whom are now in office, follow:

Julius Miller, Manhattan, 146,431; Henry Bruckner, the Bronx, 96,075; Joseph A. Guider, Brooklyn, 107,400; John A. Lynch, Richmond, 14,491.

Another outstanding Democratic victory was that of District Attorney Joab H. Banton of New York County, who defeated former Governor Charles S. Whitman, Republican, by a plurality of 105,421.

Surrogate George A. Wingate of Brooklyn, whom the Republicans refused to renominate and against whom a drive was attempted because John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, is Chief Clerk of the Surrogate's Court by his appointment, won a remarkable personal victory. General Wingate's plurality over former State Senator Avah Burlingame Jr. was 148,753.

The far reaching effect of the Democratic landslide was particularly noticeable in the election of Aldermen. In the new Board of sixty-three members, there will be only three Republicans. These are Mrs. John T. Pratt of the Fifteenth District, Frank Dotzler of the Sixth District, home of Samuel S. Koenig, New York County Republican Chairman, and John J. Keller of the Forty-fourth District in Brooklyn. As Mrs. Pratt and Mr. Dotzler are new members, Mr. Keller, who was re-elected, probably will be the Republican leader of the Board, Alderman John Wirth of Brooklyn, the present Republican leader, having been defeated.

Surprise in Tenth District.

The Democratic sweep in the city brought some surprises in the Aldermanic contests. The chief of these was in the Tenth District in Manhattan, where Nathan L. Lott, Republican, was beaten by William J. McAuliffe, the Tammany candidate. The district is considered safely Republican in ordinary circumstances and Mr. Lott's defeat was attributed in part to friends of Alderman Louis F. Cardani, who was refused a renomination by the Republican organization of the district. The Tenth District is the home of George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, and Mr. McAuliffe is the first Democratic Alderman elected there since Judge Olvany was elected to that office at the beginning of his political career.

Another Democratic Aldermanic victory that gave great satisfaction to Tammany was the election of Walter F. Hagan in the Seventh District over L. S. Lockhart, Republican. Mr. Hagan is the son of James J. Hagan, the veteran Tammany leader of this district, which is usually in the Republican column. Another Tammany Aldermanic victory that was considered a matter for congratulation by the organization chiefs who assembled in the Fourteenth Street Wigwam was that of Henri Shields, a negro, in the Twenty-first District.

Connolly Issues Statements.

Borough President Connolly and his supporters in Queens were jubilant over Mr. Connolly's victory. Commenting upon the result, Mr. Connolly said:

"Now that it is all over, I want to say that it was a grand fight but that I never had any doubt of the outcome. Reports circulated by Republicans that I would hold animus against those who fought me in the primary campaign were untrue, and the majority given me by the people of Queens was a conclusive answer. No man whose honest convictions caused him to refrain from helping me in the primaries need fear my wrath.

"The result of the election showed that the Democratic organization in Queens was a unit behind its candidates. I have assured all holders of office in the borough that as long as they continue to do their duty efficiently they need have no fear for their jobs. We can now go on with renewed vigor with the many projects pending for the progress of our borough and all I ask is that every man holding office in Queens do his best in the public interest regardless of political interests or "bull."

Copeland Congratulates Walker.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, who supported Mayor John F. Hylan in his primary fight for renomination, sent a message today to State Senator James J. Walker congratulating him on his election as Mayor of New York.

In a statement supplementing the message Senator Copeland said he believed Senator Walker came to the office better qualified for the performance of its duties than any incumbent in recent years and that he expected his Administration would be an entirely successful one.

VACANCY ON BENCH IS NEAR.

Walker's Queens Manager Likely to Succeed Judge Humphrey.

The election of County Judge Burt J. Humphrey of Queens to the Supreme Court bench in the Second Judicial District will create a vacancy in the Judgeship of the Queens County Court after Jan. 1, which will be filled by appointment by Governor Smith. Frank X. Sullivan, who managed Senator Walker's primary campaign in Queens and kept his organization intact for the election, and former Representative Charles Pope Caldwell, who withdrew as an independent candidate for Borough President at the request of Tammany, were mentioned yesterday as likely aspirants to the appointment.

Former Municipal Court Justice Benjamin Marvin of Jamaica also was said to be an aspirant either as County Judge or as Justice of the Court of Special Sessions to succeed Justice Clarence Edwards, whose term will expire on Jan. 1. The latter appointment will be made by Senator Walker after taking office as Mayor.

WATERMAN WILL TAKE VACATION IN FLORIDA

Did My Best as a Matter of Civic Duty, He Comment on the Election.

Saying he had done his best in the campaign as a matter of civic duty, Frank D. Waterman, defeated Republican nominee for Mayor, condemned his opponents yesterday for what he called an attempt to raise a "racial canard" against him, and declared he did not intend to let stand the charge that he had any racial or religious prejudice.

"I doubt very much that any such thing would have happened in the days of Charles F. Murphy and I am amazed that it was permitted to happen under the present regime in Tammany Hall," Mr. Waterman said. "Inasmuch as it was raised against me personally, I shall necessarily have to see the matter through, and it is my intention to do so. The letters were unquestionably part of a plot to hurt me and I do not intend after thirty-eight years as a business man in this city to let such a falsehood stand. In short, I am going to see this thing through to a finish.

"As to other aspects of the campaign which are purely political and as to support which I received during the campaign, I am not a politician and those are matters to which, it seems to me, the party leaders should give their attention.

"It has been a good deal of a strain physically to a man who is not used to such things to have made the rather strenuous campaign I have been through, and my purpose, as soon as I get my affairs in shape, is to take a short holiday and to return to the city and continue to take my part as a citizen in such activities as I feel are for the best interests of the community."

Mr. Waterman, it was said, probably would go to Florida the latter part of the week for a short stay at Fountain Inn at Eustis, the hotel in which he is financially interested and letters from the manager of which were used as the basis of the charges against him, which he has declared to be false.

VOORHIS PRAISED FOR BARRING GITLOW

John R. Voorhis, 96 years old, President of the Board of Elections of New York City, was commended yesterday at a meeting of the Allied Patriotic Societies, Inc., at the new Army and Navy Building, 30 West Forty-fourth Street, for his action in excluding from the ballot the name of the Communist, Benjamin Gitlow. A resolution to that effect was adopted and will be sent to the other members of the board.

Mr. Voorhis, who is a Vice President of the organization, said in response to a standing vote that he only did his duty. Gitlow, he said, was convicted of a felony, thereby forfeiting his citizenship, which had not been restored.

Reports were made of efforts made by the allied societies to offset Red propaganda in New York and the country at large. A. I. Dotey, Dean of the De Witt Clinton High School, drew attention to a Communist publication called "The Young Comrade," and designed for children from 6 to 14 years old. He read excerpts from an article by a youth, who spoke in churches serving as a "tool for capitalism," and declared there can never be peace on earth until "capitalism will be abolished from all lands of the world." An 11-year-old boy contributed verses on the Red flag, "as red as blood."

The publication also contained a message from the school children of Russia calling upon the American youth to "fight against the capitalistic dope peddled in the schools, and to demand the right to be taught the truth."

A resolution was adopted for the societies to cooperate with the Postmaster General in drafting a bill to be presented to Congress making it obligatory for editors of foreign language newspapers to print part of their papers in English.

The official emblem of Soviet Russia appearing on the ballot this year also came up for discussion. A committee of three was appointed to take steps for keeping this emblem from the official ballot in the future.

REFUGE UNDER GROUND FOR ABD-EL-KRIM

FEZ, French Morocco, Nov. 4 (AP).—Abd-el-Krim, leader of the insurgent Riffians, driven from his former capital of Ajdir by the Spaniards, has dug himself in at the little village of Targuist, on the northern slope of the Atlas Range.

This "digging in" is literal, according to the account of a Riffian prisoner recently taken by the French, who says that the Moorish chieftain has had constructed for himself a subterranean refuge of such dimensions that his automobile can enter it, turn around and manoeuvre freely.

Trenches and dugouts, extending in star shape several miles out from the centre of the village, have made Targuist a stronghold which the Moors consider impregnable. Abd-el-Krim has had his war treasure, his reserves of arms and munitions and his few remaining prisoners transported there, and while he is not expected to take the offensive he evidently is prepared to make a stubborn resistance if he is attacked in his stronghold.

WIN BRIDGE BUILDING RACE.

Camden Celebrates as City's Masons Beat Philadelphia Rivals.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—Jubilation reigned today among the masons working on the ponderous New Jersey side towers for the Delaware River suspension bridge, now under construction between this city and Philadelphia. For the Camden men plied their trowels and derricks for a convincing victory in stone-laying over the rival crew on the Pennsylvania side of the span, by finishing their anchorage first.

Whistles shrieked and mingled with the whoops of the crew as the last stone swung in place a full twenty-four hours ahead of the Philadelphia workers. The race had been warming up during most of this year and grew keen as the end approached. The joy of victory was nearly marred today, however, when Tony Archivelli, one of the Camden masons, was hit by a stone block and balanced a moment 200 feet in the air while his fellow-mates watched in helpless fear lest he topple. But he regained his footing and joined his fellows in lusty cheers. Four master masons erected the towers on the New Jersey side.

ENRIGHT TO HEAD WORLD POLICE BODY

Will Take Up Duties on First of Year in International Group He Founded.

TO GET LARGE SALARY

Commissioner Praises City's Force—Calls Vice Suppression His Greatest Achievement.

When Commissioner Richard E. Enright leaves the New York Police Department, which he has commanded for eight years, he will continue in police work, but in a larger field, as head of the International Police Association, it was definitely learned yesterday. This organization was brought about by his efforts to get united action by all police systems for the hunting of crooks throughout the world. Practically all of the higher police officials of Europe met here at his invitation for that purpose, and he was chosen as its head, a position which he continues to hold.

But when he steps out from the uniformed force of New York, in which he has served for so many years, to take up his new work in the International Police Association, he will take charge in a more active way, with an official position in it that will include a large salary, it was said.

Commissioner Enright's appointment to the New York Police Department does not expire until Jan. 23, 1926, and the position, therefore, holds over into the next Administration. Last night it was announced by Mayor-elect James J. Walker, however, that he had decided to appoint a civilian to this post when he takes over the City Government on Jan. 1.

At the time of an interview yesterday with the Commissioner it was not known that Senator Walker had decided upon a civilian to head the department. It was considered that the Commissioner would continue there until the expiration of his term or until he should be removed by the new Mayor. In view of the proposed action by Senator Walker it is expected that Commissioner Enright will offer his resignation and retire with Mayor Hylan on Jan. 1.

To Leave for Vacation.

With the exception that he intended to continue his active interest in the International Police Association, Commissioner Enright said he had determined upon no other definite future plans. He expects to go on a vacation of two weeks, beginning on Saturday, accompanied by Mrs. Enright, who has been ill.

"What has been the chief accomplishment of your administration of the Police Department?" the interviewer asked the Commissioner.

"The suppression of commercialized vice and gambling," he replied. "When Mayor Hylan appointed me he made it a condition that vice and gambling must be abolished. It has been accomplished, and I challenge any one to show that New York City or that respect is not one of the cleanest cities in the country.

"Another thing that stands out to the credit of the New York Police Department is the way the prohibition law has been enforced, enforced far better than in any other city, despite the greater difficulties here of meeting the situation. One other accomplishment that is of lasting benefit to the general public was the reorganization of the traffic problem and its efficient regulation of today, also a difficult job."

The Commissioner thought that no new administration had ever come into power in this city when it found the Police Department so efficiently functioning as it is today, with conditions so generally improved for the rank and file of the department, including hours of duty, pay and fair treatment.

Says Politics Was Eliminated.

"For the first time in the history of the New York Police Department politics has been completely eliminated from it," continued the Commissioner. "I made that a condition, that I must have a free hand, if the department was to be administered properly, and Mayor Hylan not only readily agreed to that, but indicated that he would get to it that I would not be interfered with from any political source. In the old days there was politics inside and outside of the department, and the men of merit, men who were deserving on merit alone, were often sidetracked in promotions for worthless fellows who had political pull.

"To get rid of political interference was a difficult task. Big leaders and important political organizations did not cause much trouble, but the little political fellows were hard to kill off. It was these fellows who sought even to block transfers of this policeman or the other and tried to interfere with disciplinary measures. No public service like the Police Department can be effective for the public good where such conditions prevail."

Commissioner Enright said that in the period from 1901 to the present, when the department head was changed from a Chief of Police to a Commissioner, there had been twelve Commissioners, including himself. His eleven predecessors in the sixteen years before his administration began served in that capacity on an average of fifteen months each. Enright's service of eight years out of twenty-four years is accordingly a record for continuous service by a Police Commissioner or Chief since the department has existed.

REZA KHAN SEES HOPE FOR PERSIA'S FUTURE

Premier Declares New Spirit of the People Makes Foreign Control Impossible.

TEHERAN, Persia, Nov. 4 (AP).—Great hope for Persia's future was expressed by Reza Khan, the Premier, who has taken his place as head of the Provisional Government, at a public court and reception after the deposition of the Kajar Dynasty, which brought an outburst of national sentiment throughout the country.

The Parliament, realizing the danger of a revolution, placed the power temporarily in the hands of Reza Khan, leaving the decision as to the permanent form of government to the constituent assembly; in the meantime, the Minister of Finance has been appointed Acting Premier.

The heir apparent to the throne, Mohamed Hassan Mirza, brother of the deposed Shah, has gone to Europe.

MUNICH, Germany, Nov. 4 (AP).—Arthur U. Pope, American archaeologist and art expert, made public today an interview he had last Spring in Teheran with Reza Khan, the Persian Premier.

A new spirit had come over Persia, the Premier said, and with it a passion for freedom and self-determination which made foreign control impossible. He asserted that there were plenty of brave and able Persians who would carry on when his work was done.

The Premier denied that Soviet Russia had any improper influence over his Government, but said the rule of Persia naturally was grateful to the Soviet régime, which had returned property and concessions wrested from Persia by the Czarist régime. However, he said, Persians were not attracted by Soviet institutions, which did not fit the social conditions which had endured in their country for 2,000 years.

Mr. Pope will return soon to Persia, where he will continue his work as advisory curator in Mohammedan art to the Chicago Art Institute.

MINOR PARTY VOTE PROVES NEGLIGIBLE

Brandon, Social Labor Nominee, Ran Fourth for Mayor, With Total of 1,886.

Candidates of the minor parties played only a small part in Tuesday's election when Tammany Hall swept all before it. The Social Labor, the Commonwealth Land and the Progressive Party each had a candidate for Mayor and the Workers Party put up men for Controller and for President of the Board of Aldermen. Colonel Warren Shaw Fisher, head of the Progressive Political League, Inc., and President of the United War Veterans, who sponsored a movement after the primaries to get Mayor Hylan to run independently, ran second among the minor candidates for Mayor to Joseph Brandon of the Social Labor Party. Colonel Fisher had entered the race after Mayor Hylan, Congressman LaGuardia and Commissioner of Police Richard E. Enright had refused to allow their names to be placed in nomination by the Progressives.

Brandon received his greatest vote in Manhattan in the Sixteenth Assembly District, where he got 62 votes. In the Fifteenth Assembly District, which contains the so-called silk stocking district, he received 37 votes. In only one borough, Queens, did Fisher poll more votes than Brandon.

The vote for the three candidates follows:

For Mayor.

Manhattan	516	141	388
Kings	469	209	461
Bronx	312	88	256
Queens	146	35	283
Richmond	31	12	16
Total	1,886	485	1,390

The Workers Party had designated Benjamin Gitlow for Mayor, but his name was barred from the ballot by the Board of Elections because he had never been restored to citizenship after serving a sentence in Sing Sing for criminal anarchy. The party, however, made designations for the offices of Controller and President of the Board of Aldermen. William W. Weinstone, its nominee for Controller, ran well ahead of William Woodhouse of the Social Labor Party, Edward M. Caffall, Commonwealth Land Party, and Thomas Barrett, the Progressive nominee. Weinstone, running on a platform for lower rents, cooperative building, municipal ownership of transit and the unionization of municipal employes, received 3,388 votes in the five boroughs. Woodhouse was his nearest competitor, receiving 2,262 votes.

Following is the vote by boroughs for the four candidates:

For Controller.

	W'dhouse, Soc. Lr.	Caffall, Com. Ld.	W'stone, Workers.	B'rett, Prog.
Manhattan	473	138	844	401
Kings	767	93	1,197	439
Bronx	685	42	1,113	184
Queens	262	61	225	283
Richmond	76	1	5	14
Total	2,262	321	3,388	1,366

The Workers Party's candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, Charles Krumbein, received 3,296 votes, a lead of 1,349 over Miss Olive M. Johnson, who ran on the Social Labor ticket. Joseph J. Dersz Jr., Progressive, and Morris Van Veen, Commonwealth Land candidate, ran third and fourth. Krumbein, who was sentenced to Joliet Prison for conspiracy to overthrow the Government and who was indicted in 1922 for alleged violation of the Michigan anti-syndicalism law, polled his largest vote in Kings County.

The vote by boroughs follows:

For President of the Board of Aldermen.

Manhattan	496	106	905	285
Kings	716	150	1,263	466

Queens	223	37	267	218
Richmond	18	...	17	9
Total	1,947	439	3,296	1,220

The vote in the Bronx and in Brooklyn in each case was the deciding factor in the relative position of each candidate.

CONSIDERS AMERICAN PLAN.

London Calls Tariff Program for China "Basis for Discussion."

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The American proposals for the reform of the Chinese tariff as submitted yesterday by Minister MacMurray in Peking are considered here as a basis for discussion.

Great Britain agreed at the Washington conference to the principle of permitting China to increase her duties, but she always considered that in making this concession the powers had the right to require China to put her house in order.

Poles Fill All Town's Offices.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 4 (AP).—Complete figures from Nanticoke show that Democrats will control the first Government of the State's youngest city of the third class. From Mayor down the officials elected are of Polish birth or ancestry, the list being: Mayor, Daniel F. Sakowski; City Councilman: Stanley B. Janowski, Stanley Drapiewski, Teofil Znaniecki and Frank Narkiewicz; Treasurer, Charles Gorski, Controller, Alex Skwainski; School Directors, John Wadzinski and Louis Potkonski.

REPUBLICANS LOSE SIX IN ASSEMBLY

DEMOCRATS GAIN 4 IN CITY

Snyder's Victory in Albany Gives Them Two Members in Former Republican Stronghold.

Revised returns from Tuesday's Assembly elections showed new losses for the Republicans. The returns yesterday morning had indicated that the Republicans next year would hold ninety-three out of the ninety-six seats filled by Republicans in the present Assembly, but more complete figures received during the day registered a further Republican loss of three seats.

The next Assembly, according to the revised returns, will be composed of ninety Republicans and sixty Democrats. This will still give the Republicans an ample working majority of fourteen in the lower house at Albany, seventy-six being the Constitutional majority necessary for the passage of bills.

Of the losses sustained by the Republicans two were up-State and four in this city. In the Fifth Westchester District Tuesday nights returns showed that Arthur I. Miller, Democratic candidate, defeated George A. Krug, the Republican incumbent, and later returns yesterday showed that in the First Assembly District in Albany County William Snyder, the Democratic candidate, was elected over Assemblyman Delbert C. Hall, who was running for another term. Snyder's plurality over Hall was only about 500. Snyder's election will give the Democrats two Assemblymen from Albany County, which not so many years ago was one of the greatest Republican strongholds in the State.

Frederick B. Lines, the Republican Assemblyman from the Third Albany District, escaped the slaughter incident to the Democratic landslide in the Albany City election, and will retain his seat in next year's Assembly.

In this city, where the Republicans expected to make considerable gains in the elections for Assembly, the Democratic candidates made a clean sweep in three boroughs, Bronx, Queens and Richmond. In the present Assembly two districts in Queens, the Fourth and the Sixth, are represented by Republicans. In Manhattan and Brooklyn the Republicans suffered a loss of one district in each. In Manhattan the Twenty-first District, represented by Pope B. Billups, a negro, went to the Democrats. In Kings the Republicans lost the Fifth Assembly District through the victory of John Cooney over Assemblyman Robert G. Shephard, Republican.

The only Republican Assemblymen elected from the city are: Phelps Phelps in the Tenth Manhattan District, Samuel H. Hofstadter in the Fifteenth Manhattan District and Abraham Grenthal in the Nineteenth District of Manhattan; Edward E. Fay in the Seventeenth; Emory E. Dyckman in the Twenty-first and Joseph F. Rieca in the Twenty-third Brooklyn District.

All the successful Republican candidates except Mr. Dyckman are members of the present Assembly. Mr. Rieca had Democratic endorsement in a district normally Socialistic. In all instances the pluralities by which they won were reduced from those of a year ago.

THRONG AT FUNERAL OF ANDERSON'S SLAYER

MUSKEGON, Mich., Nov. 4 (AP).—Muskegon forgot George (Dutch) Anderson today while it buried Detective Charles Hammond.

In the Central Methodist Church, not two hundred feet from the spot where Hammond cornered the notorious Anderson Saturday night and shot him dead, funeral services were held today.

Business was halted during the hour of the services. Grand Rapids sent 100 uniformed policemen for the funeral, which also were attended by many city officials. Burial was in Oakwood Cemetery, where the city has indicated a memorial will be erected to Hammond.

More than 10,000 persons are estimated to have passed the Hammond bier.

The body of Anderson lies unguarded at another end of the city. The Police Department has telegraphed the Warden of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary that it is ready to turn over to him the body of the man for whose capture the Warden had offered a $500 reward.

Secret Service operatives who are here believe the body may be claimed by some attorney or woman.

ATLANTA, Nov. 4 (AP).—Authorities at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary will make no effort to obtain the body of George (Dutch) Anderson, said Warden John W. Snook today. He said that the reward was for the delivery of Anderson alive to the prison here.

Another Sinnott Looms.

There will be an entirely new set of city employes in the exempt positions on the staff of the Mayor's office, including a new secretary, assistant secretary and executive secretary to the Mayor. John F. Sinnott, son-in-law and secretary of Mayor Hylan, will, of course, retire, and it caused some humorous comment in Tammany when it was learned that the new secretary of the Mayor was likely to be James F. Sinnott, a political writer on The Morning Telegraph. James F. Sinnott is not related to John F. Sinnott, but is a relative of Senator Walker by marriage.

Another appointment which Senator Walker is expected to make soon after taking office is that of Commissioner of Accounts. The present Commissioner, who succeeded David Hirshfield when the latter was appointed a City Magistrate, is George M. Curtis Jr., Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of the Kings County Democratic organization, who was suggested for appointment by John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader. Mr. Curtis, it was said, might remain, if it were not that the Commissioner of Accounts was considered to be a personal appointment of the Mayor.

There was considerable speculation over the probability of George P. Nicholson remaining as Corporation Counsel. Mr. Nicholson is a Tammany man, and the best informed opinion was that he was likely to stay for some months after the Walker Administration took office, but would ultimately be replaced. Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Drennan, a Brooklyn Assembly district leader, was another who was said to be likely to continue for some time. Joseph Johnson and Deputy Commissioner Joseph M. Bannon, a friend of Senator Walker, were mentioned among his possible successors.

Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Correction, and Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare, were said to be candidates for reappointment to the posts they now hold. Tenement House Commissioner Frank Mann was said to be one of the department heads who was likely to have a successor, although not necessarily at the beginning of the incoming City Administration.

A most interesting situation will be opened on July 1 next by the expiration of the two-year term of William A. DeFord as a member of the Board of Transportation. Mr. DeFord's appointment to the board has been generally attributed to the influence of William Randolph Hearst, whose attorney he had been. It was said that Senator Walker probably would not attempt to oust this bridge until he came to it. It was pointed out in this connection that the terms of all three members of the Transit Commission, George McAneny, LeRoy T. Harkness and General John F. O'Ryan, would expire next April and that Governor Smith and Senator Walker between them would be in a position next Summer to have both transit boards manned by Commissioners friendly to them and their policies.

Besides the foregoing positions Senator Walker will have several other offices to fill, such as members of the Board of Taxes and Assessments, unpaid members of the Board of Education and members of various other commissions and boards.

Under the law, two of the seven Tax Commissioners must be Republicans. Daniel F. Sullivan, defeated candidate for Register of Bronx County, announced that he was a candidate for the Republican Tax Commissionership now held by George Henry Payne and wrote Richard W. Lawrence, Republican leader of the Bronx, asking the latter's support for the appointment.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, November 5—During the last few years, knitted cravats have ingratiated themselves into the favor of well-dressed men on account of the striking beauty and variety of their colors and patterns. Unlike the woven scarf, the knitted cravat has a mesh-like, open-work texture. This makes it resist wrinkling and rebound from knotting. It outlasts any other type of neckwear. The newest patterns in "knits" reveal very large contrastingly colored figures upon plain-colored or pastel-tinted backgrounds. Exclusive, but not expensive.

OUR DESTROYERS RUSHED TO BEIRUT

FRENCH FORTIFY DAMASCUS

Railroads Are Torn Up and Columns of Troops Harassed Near City.

REVOLT SPREADS RAPIDLY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Two American destroyers, the Coghlan and Lamson, which have been held at Alexandria for several days, have been sent to Beirut at the request of Paul Knabenshue, consul in that city, as a precautionary measure against danger to American citizens as a result of the troubles in Syria.

It was stated at the State Department today that there was no immediate fear of danger to American citizens but that the request of the consul had been made to guard against any possible emergency.

The larger number of Americans in Syria are at Beirut, where many have sought refuge from interior cities since the troubles assumed alarming proportions. If the situation warrants the destroyers will be able to take them on board, while the presence of the warships in the port may serve to prevent any serious disturbance in the city.

It is estimated that there are about 1,000 American nationals in Syria, most of them naturalized Syrians who have resided in the United States. There are also American professors and instructors employed at institutions in Beirut, nearly all of whom have their families with them.

France to Make No Protest.

PARIS, Nov. 4 (AP).—The French Foreign Office has no official confirmation of the arrival at Beirut of two American destroyers which steamed hurriedly from Alexandria, but the opinion is expressed by Government officials that the United States is strictly within international law in this protecting the interests of its nationals in Syria. There will be no protest, provided no interference takes place in the fulfillment of the mandate entrusted to France by the League of Nations.

Armed bands of Druses are harassing French columns and prowling within the shadow of the walls of Damascus, cutting the railroads and doing considerable other damage. Their actions corroborate Premier Painlevé's recent declaration that "serious events are occurring in Syria."

The arrival in Paris of General Sarrail, High Commissioner in Syria, who has been recalled, is awaited with undisguised anxiety by official circles. In the meantime reinforcements are being poured into the Near East.

The French losses in the recent Damascus troubles, according to official advices reaching Paris today, were ten killed, including three native soldiers, and fifty wounded. The insurgents lost 200 killed. In addition, the insurgents killed fifty Armenians and three Tripolitans. The damages to property are estimated at 50,000,000 paper francs (about $2,125,000).

The reports emphasize the fact that no Europeans were wounded or hurt in any way. The losses are much smaller than had been previously reported.

Official Version of the Trouble.

The official account declares the trouble started on the night of Oct. 18, when bandit gangs which had been operating in the outskirts entered the native quarters of the city. Joined by the lower classes, they overpowered the gendarmes and police and menaced the European quarter.

The rebels withdrew after eight cannon shots had been fired into the air, but again attacked the next morning and partially surrounded the French troops in the Polygon, which is a sort of citadel.

It was only then, says the account, that the French High Command, desirous of forcing a surrender of the rebels rather than engage them in bloody combat, began a bombardment. This, it is declared, was maintained at a slow cadence and with shells of restricted strength, to avoid unnecessary destruction.

"The desired aim was reached," the official account continues, and delegations of insurgents poured in with offers of surrender. Calm was re-established by noon of Oct. 20, and that afternoon definite conditions were fixed for the surrender of the rebels.

The property damage was confined mostly to Chagour, the native quarter, which was subjected to the bombardment, about twenty houses being struck by shells while 200 small dwellings were set on fire.

In the Jewish quarter one house was destroyed and in the European quarter the market place and one wing of the Azel Palace were damaged by fire.

Revolt Reported to Be Spreading.

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP).—A Cairo dispatch says the French are reported to be preparing a punitive expedition against the rebels surrounding Damascus, which is being fortified. Refugees from the near-by villages are increasing the rebel forces daily.

There was fighting yesterday afternoon in the gardens in the eastern outskirts of Damascus between French troops and rebel bands, says a dispatch to The Daily Mail. Artillery was used, but details of the engagement are lacking. No rebels entered the city.

The Haifa Railroad, a few miles out of Damascus, was being torn up Tuesday by rebel forces, and French airplanes were sent out to bomb them.

News from the north indicates that the situation is becoming worse, all traffic being suspended. Homs and Palmyra are entirely isolated from the south.

"Last [Monday] night," adds the correspondent, "Damascus was like a city in the war zone—barbed wire entanglements and sandbag barricades across every street and French sentries challenging every one. The Government is expecting attacks by the Druses and brigands, having learned that 4,000 rebels are concentrated about fifteen miles north of Damascus.

"The French are so short of troops and police they are raising Kurdish and other levies to defend the capital. There was a big exodus in the direction of Beirut yesterday, the people fearing a massacre of Christians. The whole area northward from Damascus to Aleppo is in the hands of brigands. Homs is seething with insurrection.

"Uncontrollable rebellion seems to be sweeping over the entire country. The French forces cannot possibly cope with the situation, owing to inadequate numbers. No improvement seems possible until reinforcements arrive. Even the defenses of Damascus could not resist a strong organized attack."

Advices from Adana, Anatolia, state that the insurrection in Syria is spreading south of Damascus, and that the "uncertain position" at Aleppo is aggravating the situation.

Prominent Druse leaders who discussed the Damascus situation with the Reuter correspondent there declared:

"We have not received any consideration under the French mandate. The bulk of the Government officials have been selected from the Maronites, while we have been persistently ignored and treated as though non-existent. The French have never forgiven us for 1860."

This reference to the year 1860 was explained by the Druses, who are a distinct nationality, with a separate religion which they say is a mixture of Christianity and Mohammedanism. Between 1840 and 1860 the Maronites, who are Christians under Rome, fought constantly with the Druses. Finally, there was a great massacre of Maronites in 1860, the outcome being a gathering of the powers which authorized the French to send an army into Syria to punish the Druses. But the Druses retreated into the desert and the French forces were unable to overtake them.

The Druse leaders did not speak with special harshness about General Sarrail, the French High Commissioner, but asserted that he had made no attempt to appreciate their point of view, and the situation became so intolerable they considered it better to die fighting than to live under such conditions.

"Our villages have been burned and our men killed," one of the Druse leaders declared, "but the French will never kill the soul of our people."

They explained that they realized they could not long withstand an army equipped with tanks and airplanes, so they altered their tactics and small bands started operations around Hama and Damascus. This eventually brought about the Damascus outbreak, which was to be the signal for a general uprising.

Questioned as to the extent of their demands, they said they would be content with what Iraq possesses, which is under British mandate.

The correspondent says there is a growing opinion in French circles in Damascus that the bombardment of Damascus saved Syria from much more serious troubles.

AMERICAN WARSHIP RESCUES MISSIONARIES

Two Priests Are Landed at Hongkong After Being Captured by Bandits on Island.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—The two American missionary priests captured by Chinese bandits on the Island of St. John, near Hongkong, have been reported safe by the Chinese Admiral who sent a war vessel to investigate.

A message to the State Department from Consul General Tredwell at Hongkong merely transmitted the report from the Chinese naval officer and gave no details.

The two Catholic priests stationed on the Island of St. John, China, who were carried away by bandits have been rescued by the United States warship Sacramento. This news came yesterday afternoon by cable from Hongkong to the Very Rev. James A. Walsh, President of the Catholic Foreign Missionary Seminary of America, at Ossining, N. Y.

The priests are the Rev. Thomas O'Melia of Philadelphia and the Rev. Otto A. Rauschenbach of St. Louis, who were the only Christian clergymen on the island. They went out from the seminary at Ossining one year ago.

Father Walsh, at Ossining, said last evening: "We are very much relieved to get this news because, although we did not worry for the lives of the priests, sometimes captives suffer from exposure and improper food. It is a coincidence that these two priests should have been attacked by bandits on the same island where St. Francis Xavier died. There is a memorial chapel erected at the entrance of the harbor to his memory."

WIN WIRELESS STRIKE.

British Marconi Operators Force Reinstatement of Employes.

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP).—The strike of the Marconi wireless operators and receiving clerks in London, Liverpool and Manchester ended today with the reinstatement of the nine operators who had been dismissed for reasons of economy. The strike crippled transcontinental and trans-Atlantic wireless communication.

The Government wireless service was not affected by the walkout, which involved about 150 men.

When several messages marked "Via Marconi" were handed into the postoffice to be dispatched as telegrams, the postoffice staff protested against handling the messages, taking the ground that it would be equivalent to acting as strike breakers. Thereupon official instructions were given by the postoffice authorities that such messages should not be accepted for transmission during the strike.

NEW PARTY FORMING IN FRENCH CHAMBER

Landry and Letroquer Quit Nationalists to Organize a Centre Group.

WOULD SUPPORT PAINLEVE

His Cabinet Has Chance to Survive Despite Its Precarious Majority of 32.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Premier Painlevé's Government came near being stillborn yesterday. Today every one prophesies that it cannot live. But, like many weakly infants, it may yet surprise all the prophets of disaster.

Its chances of life, however, depend entirely into whose hands it falls. The Socialists yesterday refused to have anything to do with it, even as sponsors. Its parents of the radical and Republican groups stood valiantly by it. But alone they cannot hope to rear the child. They must get help somewhere, and their only chance of help seems to lie with the Left Democratic Party.

Deputies Landry and Letroquer yesterday quit the Nationalists and began forming a Centre Party. It is either that way or toward the formation of an entirely Left Government with Socialists at the head that the Chamber must swing. If M. Landry and M. Letroquer can persuade some more of their former associates to give the Cabinet their support then a real majority may be formed. It would not be the majority Premier Painlevé said he wanted, but it would be something stable.

The chances of this happening depend, however, entirely on the character of the Government's fiscal proposals. It is certain that sooner or later a 4,000,000,000 franc increase in circulation will be needed to meet bond maturities. Yesterday M. Painlevé promised that none of this increased circulation would be used to meet expenditure, but even if it is earmarked for bond redemption and covered by the sinking fund proposal, the Socialists are pledged to vote against it.

It is then that the Government, if it survives the other difficulties of the Moroccan credit and Syrian investigation votes, will need the support of the Centre and part of the Right. And even at that it is very doubtful if M. Painlevé can lead such a concentration. M. Briand, with M. Loucheur and M. Letroquer and some members of the former Poincaré party might do it, and it is toward that possibility that efforts are being made.

By their abstention from support of the Government yesterday the Socialists have broken the old bloc. Any new Herriot Ministry on the same basis as the old is now quite impossible. They have disgusted their radical friends, and if the bloc is to come back into power it must be with the Socialists sharing in the responsibility of government, a thing which they are pledged not to do.

All the chances seem therefore that for as many weeks as possible the Painlevé Government will be allowed to continue. Today all the parties are working out the arithmetic of the new majorities. If any can be found, then M. Painlevé will have to go. But until it is found, there are considerable chances that the Government will survive far longer than yesterday's tiny majority of 32 would ever seem to justify.

EXTOLS FRIEND IN HIS WILL.

Former Mount Kisco Man Leaves $25,000 and Mine Stock to Associate

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The will of Fred E. Himrod, a former resident of Mount Kisco and owner of mining property in Colorado, filed for probate today, leaves $25,000 and several shares in valuable mines to La Fayette Hanchette of Salt Lake City, a former employe and later a business associate and friend. The estate is said to be worth more than $400,000, and the widow, Mrs. Helen B. Himrod, will receive $40,000 in cash and one-quarter of the residue. Bequests are made to four children.

In his mention of Mr. Hanchette, Mr. Himrod said in his will: "I state here my deep appreciation of my almost lifelong friendship with La Fayette Hanchette which has existed for over thirty years, in the early years of which he was in my employ, first as assistant manager and as manager of all my affairs, still later becoming a most highly valued and honored business associate, in all of which relations his unswerving loyalty, honesty and general devotion to my personal interests very materially contributed to my success, and my gifts are in recognition of his services to me in the past."

SEEKS AMERICA'S HELP.

Parliament Member Says England Would Scrap League to Get Our Aid

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4.—England is willing to make almost any concession to secure the participation of the United States in some sort of international peace compact, according to a statement by the Hon. J. Hugh Edwards, Liberal Member of Parliament, who spoke in Princeton today.

"We will scrap the League of Nations if necessary," said Mr. Edwards. "America shall be the dominator; America shall draw up all the constitution and act with full executive and presidential powers over any international court, which includes England, if only she will affiliate herself with the European powers and abandon her policy of aloofness. It is the support of the United States which is needed to assure the complete authority of any court of arbitration, and without America's help it is relatively little that the other nations can do."

Speaking from his experience as biographer of Lloyd George, he said that, counter to common opinion, the Welsh leader and Woodrow Wilson worked in close cooperation during the Versailles Peace Conference.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Association of Foreign Press Correspondents will give a luncheon Nov. 11 at the Lawyers' Club to M. Juleau Arnold, United States commercial attaché, recently returned from Peking. Dr. C. W. Kuo, an authority on Chinese affairs, is expected to be one of the speakers.

An exhibition of etchings, drawings and prints will be held at the Salmagundi Club Nov. 7 to 20.

The seventh annual dinner of the Italy America Society will take place Thursday, Nov. 12, at the Hotel Biltmore. The Italian Ambassador to the United States, Giacomo de Martino; the Italian Minister of Finance, Senator Giuseppe Volpi; Hon. Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Italy, and the members of the Italian Debt Commission will be among the guests of honor.

Co-eds of all the colleges and universities in New York City have been invited to attend an address by two Smith College graduates, Louise and Alice Kimball, tomorrow evening at 8 at the Harlem Forum, 55 East 125th Street. The lecture address has been arranged by the Reconciliation Society for Good Fellowship and its sponsors, the Y. M. C. A. The speakers will tell of their five years as textile workers in the silk mills of Paterson, N. J.

The American Manufacturers' Export Association, 366 Broadway, will hold its annual convention and dinner on Thursday, Nov. 12, at the Hotel Astor. The 400 delegates, coming from cities throughout the country, will discuss ways and means of extending American foreign trade.

The annual fair and bazaar of the Fort Washington Collegiate Church, 181st Street and Fort Washington Avenue, will be held Nov. 17 and 18. The proceeds will go to a fund to aid women's work in the church.

MRS. PRATT BREAKS POLITICAL CANONS

First Woman Alderman Refuses to Talk "the Lingo" and Boasts She Has No "Burning Issue."

SURE SHE SEEMS 'NUISANCE'

But Is Ready to Prove to Board She's Not—Puts Faith in Her Liking for People.

Mrs. Ruth Pratt, who was elected by a large majority on Tuesday as the first woman Alderman in the history of New York, laughed yesterday at the thought of how her election must be regarded by the sixty-four male members of the Board of Aldermen who will serve with her.

"They'll think it an awful nuisance, won't they?" she asked.

Then she went on to tell why she thought that her occupying a seat among the city fathers would not be that at all and the rest of the Aldermen would come in the end to believe so. Before she had finished she had violated almost every rule in the canons of conduct and expression for newly elected public officials.

First, Mrs. Pratt refused to talk the "lingo" of politics, sacred from time immemorial to the aspirant for public office. For example, she has no "burning issue" to take into the Board of Aldermen and she insists that is a virtue. That fact came out as the result of a question as to what measures she would press when she took office.

Scorns "Promising" Officials.

"Oh, dear, why will people always get the cart before the horse that way?" she replied. "They seem to think you should have on tap a lot of panaceas for all the world's ills and they seem to think the person who talks the most about his particular remedy is the wisest and will do the most for them. If there is one thing that makes me impatient it is the public official who is ready to promise anything in the way of alleviating public wrongs, as they call it, and always knows just how it is to be done. They seldom make good.

"It is not in that spirit I will take my seat in the board. I simply have the feeling that somehow there must be ways to help the people of the city and if we all consider problems as they come up and do our honest best with them we will do some good. That creed may not sound as splendid as some you hear thundered out, but it is the most likely way to substitute performance for mere promise.

"I don't mean that in merely a negative way, either. I have some pretty positive views on some questions and when the proper time comes I expect to express them, just as the others will express theirs. We can then consider all the views together. But it's only common sense for me not to expect to revolutionize the city's affairs in the Board of Aldermen when I am only one member out of sixty-five."

It was at about this point that Mrs. Pratt indulged in her humorous reflections as to how much of a "nuisance" her election must seem to the men who were to sit with her. She referred only to the fact that she represented the entrance of a woman into a field hitherto "sacred to the male sex."

Family Socially Prominent.

Mrs. Pratt's husband, John T. Pratt, is a son of Charles Pratt, one of the early Standard Oil associates and founder of Pratt Institute of Brooklyn. The family is prominent socially and numbered among the wealthy ones of the city.

It added piquancy to the situation to reflect, as she talked yesterday, that New York's first woman Alderman should come from a home such as hers to a body governed in the days of its glory by old-timers like "Little Tim" Sullivan and the others.

The Pratt home is in Sixty-first Street, just off Fifth Avenue. As Mrs. Pratt talked yesterday she sat in the great library that runs across the front of the house. In her home she appeared just as she had appeared at the political meetings she addressed, simple, direct, with a mind that flashes around all sides of a subject and a vein of humor that plays through her ideas. Above all, she creates an impression of sincerity. That is perhaps why on Tuesday she ran ahead of the Republican ticket, and in addition to the normal Republican majority of her district won in four or five election districts which have never been carried by anybody but a Democrat before.

She was as proud of these Democratic votes and some Socialist votes, too, she said, as of the fact that her eldest son had been able to cast his first vote for her. She has five children. A seventeen-year-old daughter is to make her début between her time of election and her time of taking office.

"So you see," she said yesterday, "I have to think of frivolous things, too, as well as these great matters of state."

She was asked whether she thought the overwhelming Tammany majority in the board would interfere with her activities there, and what were her theories about politics. That question raised another smile.

"You know politics is nothing but theory with a lot of people, and that's the trouble," she replied. "To my mind politics, or at least the thing that makes politics move, is personality. I happen to be one of those who like people, people of all sorts and conditions. I had a great time as associate leader of my district during the campaign, just going around and meeting people in their homes. There were lots of homes, too, where they had to clear off a chair to get some place for me to sit down.

"I just said to people, 'Here, I'm asking you to vote for me and so that the least I can do is to come around and let you look me over.' Then we'd talk about anything that came handy and they seemed to enjoy it, and I certainly did.

Interest in People Needed.

"It seems to me that unless you have some sort of feeling like that, unless you like people and have a sincere interest in them, you ought not be in the active work of politics. It also seems to me that if you have that sort of feeling you can know what people really need and puzzle out whatever way there may be through public agencies to help them.

"That is why I say all these political theories do not appeal to me as much as actual contact with people, which, in order to get one word, I call personality."

She was asked whether she would follow this reasoning in the Board of Aldermen.

"Why, of course," she replied, "that's the only way I know. You can't teach an old dog new tricks, and I'm an old lady, you know."

One thing she said very emphatically she would not do in the board, and that was to have very much to say.

"People get awfully tired of you when they hear you continually quoted, don't they?" she asked. "In my awful position as the only woman member I suppose every one will be after me to learn what I think on this and that. I don't see how that can be avoided. But I'll just tell them I don't know. The important things I'll study and have opinions on. But the sole woman member will be found to have the ability to hold her tongue."

"The men may feel they ought to provide special accommodations for you, give you a specially favored seat, for instance," it was suggested.

"If any one does that, it's going to make me angry," was the reply. "I'm all against women going into politics and demanding special privileges to which they are not entitled by experience and accomplishment."

DALTON WON BY 154 VOTES.

Entire Democratic Ticket Triumphed at Long Beach.

LONG BEACH, L. I., Nov. 4.—The entire local Democratic ticket, headed by Mayor William J. Dalton, won by substantial majorities in yesterday's election. Dalton defeated former Mayor William H. Reynolds by 154 votes, while former Mayor Frank Frankel, Republican nominee, who withdrew from the race in favor of Reynolds after the primaries, received eighteen votes. Reynolds ran as an independent. Thomas J. Hogan, Democratic candidate for Supervisor, won over Wilfred M. Thompson, Republican, by 300 votes.

Other complete returns follow: City Judge, Francis J. Hogan, Democrat, 1,734; Morris A. Vogel, 692; Councilman, James Tower, Democrat, 1,245; Charles Daly, Democrat, 1,190; Louis J. Saltzman, Democrat, 1,239; Arthur T. Smith, Republican, 178; Edward J. Healy, Republican, 100; Murdoch Lind, Republican, 86; Louis Edwards, Independent, 568. T. J. De Vine, with 761 votes, Eugene Blumenthal, 920, and Frederick C. Merkert, 871, were defeated for re-election on the Reynolds ticket. Smith, Healy and Lind were on Frankel's ticket, but after the primaries threw their support to Reynolds.

Thomas A. Cook, Democratic candidate for Tax Assessor, received 1,294 votes and Lauritz Sondergard, candidate on the Reynolds ticket, 1,122.

ALBERT BEAT CLAESSENS.

No Socialist Elected, but Vote Is Put Above Last Year's.

An error in a statistical table on election night indicated that August Claessens, Socialist, was elected to the Assembly from the Fourth Bronx District. Claessens was defeated by Herman M. Albert, Democrat.

Not a Socialist was elected in any borough of the city. Some pleasure was manifested at Socialist headquarters that in the Fifteenth Assembly District, a "silk stocking" district, the Rev. Dr. Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, received 712 votes, as compared with 535 last year when he ran for Governor. Voting machines were used in this district. It was also said that this year's Socialist vote, as compared to the entire vote, was slightly above the percentage of last year.

PLEA TO COMMUTERS WINS.

Yonkers Assemblyman Elected on Pledge to Fix Rates by Law.

Former Assemblyman Arthur I. Miller of Yonkers was elected to the Assembly Tuesday on his pledge to introduce a bill to fix by statute commutation rates on all railroads in the State. Miller, a Democrat, defeated Assemblyman George Krug in a strong Republican district.

Miller said yesterday that he would try to rally the commuters in all the suburban counties around New York City to the support of his proposed bill.

SAYS MACHINES FAIL TO PROTECT VOTER

DENIES HE ENDORSED THEM

Holds Record of Vote Must Be Accepted on Faith—Conklin Tells of Inspectors' Praise.

John R. Voorhis, President of the Board of Elections, said yesterday that he had inspected several polling places where voting machines were used on Tuesday, but that he was still of the opinion that they did not safeguard the vote as well as the ordinary ballots.

Mr. Voorhis said that a representative of Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State, who ordered the voting machines tried out in New York City over Mr. Voorhis's objections, had asked him what he thought of the machines.

"I replied," he went on, "that I had been interested in them and thought they had been doing the work expected of them very well. I have not, however, changed my opinion regarding them. My belief is still that they furnish no evidence to the voter of a correct record of his vote. The record afforded by the machine has to be accepted altogether as a matter of faith as to the machine's accuracy. Errors cannot be detected or corrected."

He denied a report that he had characterized the work of the voting machines as "perfect."

George W. Conklin, Deputy Chief Clerk of the Board of Elections, said that none of the machines had given any trouble. Both Democratic and Republican inspectors who handled the machines reported favorably, according to Mr. Conklin.

After the election the machines were sealed. They will be stored in a warehouse until next November.

S. Howard Cohen, Chief Clerk of the Board of Elections, said that the election was the "quietest" New York had ever had, with only one complaint received at the Board of Elections. This concerned officials in one election district who were folding ballots incorrectly. Police went to the polling place and adjusted the trouble at once.

SAYS VOTERS FAILED TO GRASP PARK PLAN

Long Island Board Regrets Defeat, as Funds Are at Hand to Complete Project.

TO KEEP ON WITH PROGRAM

All Five Proposals Were Defeated in the Oyster Bay Referendum.

The Long Island State Park Commission issued a statement yesterday commenting on the failure of the voters of Hempstead and Oyster Bay in a referendum Tuesday to transfer to the State park authorities beach property it owns and a rightofway to the beach. The statement says this action was anticipated, as "it takes a long time to explain a great program." The statement also refers to the failure of the voters of Oyster Bay Township to ratify by referendum the turning over of public lands on the south shore to a private individual.

The statement is as follows:

"The election returns of the Towns of Hempstead and Oyster Bay indicate that the proposition to transfer the Hempstead Beach and rightofway to the State failed and that the proposal in Oyster Bay to cede all of the town lands on the south shore to a private individual was overwhelmingly defeated. The rejection of the Oyster Bay proposition was of course expected. As to the Hempstead proposition as the State planned it, it is clear that this proposal was not sufficiently understood by the voters, and the campaign of misrepresentation and funds spent on this campaign by persons living outside of the town must also have affected the vote. The voters apparently voted against all the four State propositions and against the charter, and many of them included the town beach proposition with the other adverse votes. In other words, they voted against all propositions, State and local.

Calls Vote Unfortunate.

"We are not in the least surprised at this result. It takes a long time to explain a great program. It took from three to ten years to put through the State propositions which have just passed. It is, however, unfortunate that the town proposition should have failed at the very time when funds are being made available to complete the entire State park program. It is also unfortunate that there is a plan for the beaches, and that the power of the State cannot be exercised at a time when the Seaman heirs are apparently about to start suit to establish title to part of these beaches.

"The Long Island State Park Commission is going right on with its program, working with the other regional park commission on the State plan and with the city authorities on the city park plan and the connections between Long Island and the city and also arranging for the transfer of the water-supply properties in Nassau County.

"It is a most fortunate thing for the State that funds are now in sight to develop the entire unified State park system according to the plans outlined and mapped by the State Council of Parks."

Vote on Propositions.

The results of the Oyster Bay referendum were included in returns compiled yesterday, which showed the town had voted down all five of the questions submitted. The first three questions referred to the disposition of the township's land at Oak Neck Beach, first to be held for park development by the town authorities; second, to be leased on short term for bungalow sites; third, to be leased to persons or corporations. The fourth question was as to the appropriation of $10,000 for printing and binding town records. The fifth question, which had excited considerable controversy and is the one referred to by the Park Commission, was as to whether town lands on the South Shore, between Merrick Road and the Atlantic Ocean, about 25,000 acres in extent and valued at approximately $25,000,000, should be conveyed to W. R. Bein Jr. on consideration of his providing a bathing pavilion for public use and a suitable park of 100 acres in extent.

The votes by which the questions were defeated were as follows:

	Yes.	No.
Question 1	1,763	1,789
Question 2	743	2,809
Question 3	615	2,941
Question 4	1,537	2,017
Question 5	576	2,718

In the contest for Supervisor of the Township C. Chester Painter, Republican, defeated Dr. William J. Buras, Democrat, by 4,583 to 2,800.

JAYNE TO PROSECUTE RANCOCAS RUM CASE

Ocean County Official Picked for Inquiry at Request of Justice Lloyd.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—By request of Justice Frank T. Lloyd of the Supreme Court, Attorney General Edward L. Katzenbach today designated Prosecutor Wilfred H. Jayne Jr. of Ocean County as Special Assistant Attorney General to investigate recent rum running operations along the Rancocas Creek in Burlington County and to prosecute the principals involved in the seizure of a large quantity of liquor by State police.

Justice Lloyd had previously expressed dissatisfaction with the manner in which the case against the alleged bootleggers was being handled by the county authorities, believing that too much leniency had been shown and that sufficient diligence had not been manifested in trying to apprehend the "higher-ups" in what the State police and the people of Burlington County generally believe was an organized band of rum runners operating on a huge scale.

Mr. Katzenbach explained that the action of his office taken at the instance of the Supreme Court, was in no way a reflection upon Prosecutor George M. Hillman of Burlington County, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Hillman will be superseded by Mr. Jayne in running down the case against the Rancocas bootleggers.

Mr. Jayne has a State-wide reputation for bringing criminals to justice.

He was designated several months ago by the Attorney General to investigate and present to a special Grand Jury conditions in Morris County. The result was that James H. Bolthe, former prosecutor of that county, was made a defendant in forty-nine indictments, charging mal-feasance, bribery, extortion and other offenses while in office. Bolthe was convicted and sentenced to prison, the operation of the sentence being held up by an appeal.

WHITNEY'S DEFEAT LAID TO DRY LEAGUE

MOORE TO DEMAND WINES

National Fight on Enforcement Predicted—Republican Gains in Legislature.

Public sentiment in New Jersey is so "wet" that the Anti-Saloon League, by its endorsement and support of State Senator Arthur Whitney, Republican candidate for Governor, was the real cause of his defeat in Tuesday's election by Commissioner A. Harry Moore, the Democratic Governor-elect, according to statements made yesterday by Republican leaders.

"Apparently the voters refused to be convinced the divorce (of the Republican Party) from the Anti-Saloon League is real. It must be conclusive by now that no nominee can win if that organization is credited, rightly or wrongly, with direct influence over him, much less with sponsorship. I am very sorry for Whitney, who made a hard, determined fight. He should have won."

Tried to Ignore Prohibition.

Backed by the Anti-Saloon League, Whitney defeated Senator Edge's candidate, former Attorney General Thomas F. McCran, in the Republican primaries for the Gubernatorial nomination. Although he tried to ignore prohibition as an issue during his campaign against Moore, Whitney never repudiated the Anti-Saloon League's support. It has been reported that he refused advice from Senator Edge, an avowed enemy of the "drys," to cast aside the Anti-Saloon League and take a liberal stand on prohibition. The result was, according to New Jersey political experts, that the Republican organization failed to make an enthusiastic fight for Whitney, especially in districts which are normally Republican but "wet."

Republican women active in New Jersey politics will hold a meeting in Trenton some time this month, it was learned yesterday, to analyze the reasons for their candidate's defeat, with special reference to reports that he was "knifed" by "wet" Republican leaders. It is understood that the women cannot understand how a Republican plurality of 377,000 for Coolidge in 1924 could be turned into a Democratic plurality of about 40,000 for Moore in 1925. Charges were made that Republican leaders "fell down on the job."

Some Republican leaders in Jersey City admitted their State campaign had been inefficient and that Whitney might have won if his backers had put more "heart" into the fight. Both Republican and Democratic leaders were surprised that Moore's plurality was only 40,000. The best informed Democratic opinion in Hudson County was that Moore would get a State plurality of more than 100,000, and many bets were lost on this wager.

Sees League Repudiated.

Commissioner Moore repeated yesterday his statement of Tuesday night that as soon as he was inaugurated as Governor he would begin a movement to have Congress modify the Volstead law so as to permit light wines and beer.

"The outstanding result of the election in my opinion," Moore added yesterday, "is the repudiation by the people of the Anti-Saloon League and its hypocritical propaganda, designed to throw fear into all those who dare oppose their dictates. We carried the fight right to their door and revealed their tactics and proved that they are composed of a handful of men who have been masquerading under the cloak of decency, drawing fat salaries and assailing any one who disagrees with them."

That Moore's victory means New Jersey leadership in a national movement to modify the prohibition law was predicted by Harry Hsher, Democratic State Chairman, in the following statement at Trenton:

"The decisive plurality given Governor-elect Moore is a notable triumph for popular government. It expresses once again the deep-seated dissatisfaction of the people with the prohibition law and places New Jersey in the forefront of the movement that will soon assume nation-wide proportions to bring relief from the present well-nigh intolerable conditions resulting from this impractical law. Not only that, it conclusively establishes popular disapproval of the Anti-Saloon League as a political agency. There is no place in our Government for this group of self-appointed guardians of the moral and political welfare of the people."

The Anti-Saloon League, which remained silent under Moore's continued attack throughout the campaign, issued a long statement yesterday through Marna S. Poulson, State Superintendent. It denied Moore's charges that the Anti-Saloon League was a well-financed organization with vast sums of money at its disposal, that this money was absorbed in salaries paid to three officials and that it sought to dominate politics in New Jersey.

"When the wet organizations of the State and nation show their books to the Anti-Saloon League," it said, "it will be time enough for us to show ours to our enemies."

Challenge by League.

Challenging Moore as Governor to do his worst to put the league out of business, the statement goes on:

"They call upon the voters to drive the Anti-Saloon League out of existance by voting 'wet,' as if this would put us out of business.

"This is false and they know it. We have been 'kilt and buried' so often by such 'wet' tactics that we are used to it. The day after election we will have begun the next offensive against the 'wet' effort to elect a nullification Congress. The Anti-Saloon League program every day, unfortunately, has to be built upon the supposition that it must be in the field for years. The Anti-Saloon League was not organized to live forever, but the 'wets' cannot destroy it, and 'wet' politicians cannot dishearten it. The harder and longer the 'wets' fight the greater the need for its work and the longer it will have to stay on the job. Whenever the churches decide that the Anti-Saloon League is no longer needed, they will give it decent burial with all the honors of war."

Commissioner Moore, his wife; Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Democratic boss of Hudson County and chief Democratic leader of New Jersey; Mrs. Hague, United States Senator Edward I. Edwards and others will leave tomorrow for two weeks at Hot Springs, Va. Some New Jersey politicians predicted that this trip would be marked by conferences to draw up a plan of campaign to make Moore a national figure when he becomes Governor, by his assault upon the Volstead law, with an eye on possible Presidential ambitions on a "wet" Democratic ticket in 1928.

The Governor-elect pledged himself in a statement yesterday to act in a strictly organization manner in distributing patronage. He said he would recognise the Democratic Party in every county, and that any Democratic officeholder who had been "regular and loyal" had nothing to fear.

Many Posts to Fill.

Soon after taking office Mr. Moore will have the appointment of a State Purchasing Agent, Commissioner of Banking and Insurance, a Circuit Court Judge, head of the State police, two State Tax Board members, a Civil Service Commissioner and many County Judges and board members.

With only nine out of the 2,810 election districts in the State still missing, Moore led Whitney last night by a plurality of 39,095 votes. Seven of the missing districts were in Bergen County, two in Burlington County.

The practically complete returns showed that Moore carried only three of the twenty-one counties—Hudson, Middlesex and Passaic—but that his overwhelming plurality in Hudson, his home county, outweighed all the Whitney pluralities in the less populous counties.

Whitney failed in his only chance to offset Moore's Hudson County plurality by rolling up a big Republican vote in Essex County. The Republicans carried the outlying parts of this county, but Moore's big vote in Newark kept Whitney's plurality for the county down to 611 votes. Whitney carried his home county, Morris, by only a little more than 6,000, whereas he had hoped to double this plurality. Whitney's greatest strength was in the "dry" rural sections, especially in South Jersey.

Gain for Republicans.

The complete vote for Congressman from the Third District of New Jersey, including Ocean, Monmouth and Middlesex Counties, gave Stewart Appleby, Republican, 56,380; and Dr. J. Lyle Kinmouth, Democrat, 47,851.

Besides sending a Congressman to Washington, the Republicans increased their majority in the Legislature at Trenton from 40 to 50 on the joint ballot of Senate and Assembly.

Assemblymen Frank D. Abell of Morris County and A. Crozer Reeves of Mercer, Republicans, were elected to the Senate, together with four Republican Senators who were standing for another term. Alexander Simpson, a re-elected from Hudson County, was the only winning Democratic candidate for the Upper House. The Republicans have a majority of fifteen in the Senate.

Because a dead man—Hunter Lindsay, who died during the campaign—was elected in Essex County, there will be only fifty-nine members of the Assembly at the 1926 session. It is not believed that a special election will be called to fill the vacancy, as another vote is not needed by the Republicans, who hold forty-seven seats now.

Thomas M. Muir, blind Republican, of Union County, was among the Assemblymen re-elected, while seven women will also be seated in the House, as against five last year.

The new feminine members are from Essex, Hudson and Passaic. In addition to renaming Mrs. Madge I. Ebert from Essex, the Republicans there elected Agnes Jones. In Hudson Mrs. Catherine Finn and May Carty were returned to the House and Marian Urbanski was named for her first term. Isabelle M. Summers was chosen as one of the five Assembly delegates from Passaic. Miss May Ashmore Thropp of Mercer is the remaining feminine member re-elected for another term. Mrs. Lila W. Thompson, who represented Ocean in the House at the last session, did not seek re-election.

As yet the women voters have been unsuccessful in electing one of their sex to the Senate. Mrs. Thompson made a try for the nomination from Ocean, but was defeated at the June primaries by Senator Thomas A. Mathis.

The legislative list published yesterday was correct with the following exceptions: Joseph Altman, Republican, was omitted from the Assembly list in Atlantic County; Horace G. Prall, Republican, was elected to the Assembly from Hunterdon County instead of E. D. Trimmer, Democrat, and Elmer C. Lockard, Republican, was elected to the Assembly from Warren County instead of G. T. Smith, Democrat. The names of L. W. Mallin and Edison Hedges were published by mistake in the Atlantic County Assembly list.

BALLOT BOXES GUARDED.

Democrats Take Precaution in Jersey Freeholder Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 4.—The Democratic leaders early today took care to have the ballot boxes in the 135 voting districts in Middlesex County protected by guards when it was discovered that the vote in the Freeholder race was close. On the face of the returns Klemmer Kalteisen, Democrat, won by nearly 1,000 votes and Thomas Layden lost by 124.

The first tabulation gave Layden a plurality of 47 over Freeholder Clarence M. Haight, and the Democrats still claim that Layden was elected. County Clerk William Hilker sent men to the several municipalities today to get the official returns and also the ballot box keys. In view of the closeness of the vote he insisted on having the official returns filed away.

Upon the result of the official count depends action as to application for a recount. This is the first time the Democrats have had a representative in the Board of Freeholders in six years.

PLAN TO ELOPE TOLD IN HAMMER MURDER

SAYS THEY HAD $2,000 FUND

Police Seek to Identify Fingerprints on Hammer Used With Those of Ironworker.

Special to The New York Times.

HILLSIDE, N. J., Nov. 4.—Joseph H. Cowen of 179 Dewey Street, Newark, held here without bail pending the result of an investigation into the murder of William J. Clark, who died after being beaten over the head with a hammer in the garage of his home at 218 Pennsylvania Avenue shortly after midnight Monday, pleaded with Mrs. Priscilla Kent Clark, the dead man's 23-year-old wife, to elope with him the evening before the murder, according to the story Chief Detective John A. Galatian of Union County says Mrs. Clark told him today.

Although Galatian says that Mrs. Clark told him she had refused to go away with Cowen Monday night, she admitted that she had made a quasi-promise to join him later in Florida. Money for their life together, the detective says, was to have been provided from an "elopement fund" of $2,000, which he alleges Mrs. Clark had deposited in the Howard Savings Institution, at Newark.

A portion of this, $500, represented money that Cowen had given Mrs. Clark to save for him during the last few months. According to the story, Galatian says, Mrs. Clark told him her mother, Mrs. Nelson Kent, and her stepfather, who lived with her in the bungalow where her husband died, knew of her association with Cowen, ironworker, jewelry salesman and former insurance agent, and acquiesced in their frequent meetings.

Cowen in Garage Monday.

Cowen was to have started for Miami Tuesday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Cowen's stepfather, Nelson Kent, the detective declares Mrs. Clark told him. She said that Cowen spent most of Monday in the Clark garage tinkering with Ford coupé, which the two were to have used on the trip. He left shortly before Clark returned home for his evening meal.

Cowen, the police learned yesterday, has a wife, Mrs. Lillian Cowen, and a four-year-old daughter living at 10,758 126th Street, Richmond Hill, Queens. Four years ago he was arrested on a charge of abandoning them. Sentence was suspended and he was ordered to pay $8 a week for their support.

Mrs. Clark was questioned at intervals today by Detective Galatian and Chief of Police Morgan L. Sanford. After signed statement, as given out at Police Headquarters, says:

"I, Priscilla Clark, left my home with my husband and mother [Mrs. Nelson Kent] at about 7:30 P. M. [Monday] and drove to William and Broad Streets, Newark, and picked up Mr. Alford, who went with us to Mrs. Stevenson's, 637 Presidunyan Avenue, Newark, where we spent the evening until about midnight. We left Mr. Alford off at about six blocks from Mrs. Stevenson's on Frey Avenue and came on home.

"We drove in the yard and Mr. Clark stopped the car and got out to open the garage door. Mother and I got ready to get out when I heard a cry and looked up and saw Mr. Clark. He was coming toward the car bleeding from the head. I ran to him and helped him into the house. I then called Dr. Lippard and couldn't get him. I then called Dr. Bersler and the operator couldn't get him.

"The operator asked if any other doctor would do and I said 'Yes. Quick!' She got Dr. Metzner and then I went and helped my husband and told daddy to call the police [the words "call the police" are crossed out] and then go to Dr. Lippard's and get him, which he did. Dr. Lippard and Dr. Metzner came at about the same time."

Dr. C. A. Metzner of 1,444 North Broad Street, Hillside, the physician who responded to the call, said today that Clark had been struck four times on the head, but that his skull had not been fractured. The hammer with which the blows were struck has a five-pound head and was ordinarily kept, the police say, in the cellar of the Clark bungalow. It was sent to Newark today, where the police are trying to identify the finger prints on the handle. A report is expected tomorrow. It is believed that action with respect to Cowen is being held up pending the arrival of this report. The forty-eight hours he may be held on suspicion will, under the New Jersey law, expire at 5 o'clock tomorrow night.

Says Cowen Declared Love.

Chief of Police Sanford said today that both Mrs. Clark and Cowen admitted to him their intimate relations and that Cowen declared his love for her. Mrs. Clark told the police that Cowen had repeatedly urged her to run away with him, it was said.

Kent, who married Mrs. Clark's mother and who, with his wife, lived with his foster daughter and her husband, told the police today that he was aroused by voices late Monday night. He put on a dressing gown and went down stairs, he said, where he saw his wife and Mrs. Clark dragging the injured man through the rear door into the kitchen. He said that Clark's head was bleeding and that, when he asked who had hit him, Clark answered, "I don't know."

At 2 A. M. Kent said he talked with Clark, but he declined to say what their conversation was. Ten minutes later Clark was dead. Kent admitted, according to the police, that he and Cowen intended starting for Miami in Cowen's motor car Tuesday morning. He said that the trip was to have been a business one. Kent told the police, they said that Cowen was a constant visitor at the Clark house and that he and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Clark and Cowen frequently made Sunday trips into the country in the Clarks' closed automobile.

Cowen, who lived with his brother, Milton, and Milton's wife, Catherine, gave additional details of his movements Monday night to the police today. He seemed unconcerned at his plight and protested that he knew nothing of the attack on Clark.

The prisoner said that he left his brother's home in Newark in his automobile about 8 o'clock and drove to the home of Jay Cowen, another brother, at 99 Lincoln Place, Irvington, N. J., intending to assist him with some work on the books of the Ironworkers' Union, of which Jay is secretary.

Got Home at 1 A. M.

"I left there about 11 P. M. and went back to 179 Dewey Street, but no one was at home," said Joseph Cowen, "so I went to 310 Elizabeth Avenue to meet Milton and Catherine. My car stopped on me at the railroad at Peddie Street and Elizabeth Avenue, and I found that my brother and his wife had left, so I left my car there and got on a Lyons Avenue bus and went home (179 Dewey Street, Newark]. I got home at 1 A. M. and went to bed."

Milton today verified his brother's story that the car had broken down in Elizabeth Avenue. He said he had towed it back to the garage at his home at his brother's request. Milton said that he and his wife had gone to bed when Joseph returned home Monday night. He knew nothing, he declared, of the trip to Florida Joseph and Kent said they had intended making.

Leroy Williams, manager of a service station at North Broad Street and Hillside Avenue, and Harry Harper, a taxi-driver, failed today to pick Cowen out of a line-up at the Hillside Police Station as the man they had seen on Pennsylvania Avenue, not far from the Clark house, the night of the murder.

The garage in which Clark was attacked adjoins the right of way of the Pennsylvania Railroad and a path leads to within a few feet of it.

Mr. Clark's funeral will be held at the undertaking establishment of Joseph H. West, 597 Clinton Avenue, Newark, at 2 o'clock tomorrow. The Rev. O. A. Browning, pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church at Avon Avenue and South Tenth Street, will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery, Hillside.

DUCHESS OF YORK DIRECTS MOVING

All Mayfair Watches Transfer to Curzon House of Royal Couple's Possessions.

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Five large furniture vans were required today to move the possessions of the Duke and Duchess of York from White Lodge, Richmond Park, to Curzon House, Curzon Street, Mayfair, which will be the Winter home of the son and daughter-in-law of the King and Queen.

The Duchess herself personally superintended the moving. All Mayfair was out to watch the transfer of scores of trunks, boxes and suitcases containing the personal belongings of the Imperial pair.

As Curzon House is furnished, it was only personal effects that were moved. Little use has been made of this town residence for the last twenty years. It is a small Georgian house—small, that is, as royal dwellings go, having only twenty-odd bedrooms—but it is well arranged for entertaining and is only a stone's throw from Chesterfield House, the London residence of Princess Mary and her husband, Viscount Lascelles.

The Duchess of York, before her marriage on April 26, 1923, was Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, third daughter of the Scottish Earl of Strathmore. The romance of the Duke of York and the Scottish Earl's daughter had its beginning at the wedding of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles and was hailed as a real love match.

Prior to her marriage the Dutchess was the only unmarried daughter of the Strathmore family. As her mother was ill, she acted as hostess at Glamis Castle, the ancestral seat of the Strathmores, when, in 1921, a royal party, including Princess Mary and the Duke of York, were entertained there. The Duke is said to have proposed three times before he was accepted.

TELLS OF BABY SALES AT BARGAIN PRICES

Cincinnati Wife's Story of Purchase of Children Starts Grand Jury Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 4.—An alleged "baby store" where children are said to have been offered for sale at prices from $25 to $100, depending on age and the purchaser's ability to pay, is under investigation by the Hamilton County Grand Jury and the Cincinnati Juvenile Court.

Mrs. Helen Samuels, 22, who was sued for divorce by her husband, Thomas B. Samuels, a railroad fireman, told officials of the Court of Domestic Relations that her two children, Earl Ward and Tommy, had been purchased "like so many groceries." She declared that she had paid $40 for Earl Ward and $30 for Tommy, and that she had bought a baby girl about a year ago, the infant later dying.

"I got the children in order to fool my husband," Mrs. Samuels said. "It was easy. A woman who lives across the river in Kentucky met me in a room in the Dixie Terminal Building and we transacted our business there.

"I do not know anything about the parentage of the two boys. I decided that I wanted a family, and knowing I could buy babies I called up the woman and told her what I wanted. The woman has sold a lot of children in Cincinnati. They always are accompanied by a birth certificate."

It is alleged that the woman said to have sold the children holds an official position in Kentucky. In addition, it is said, a Kentucky physician is involved. The physician, officials charge, makes out the birth certificate when the transactions are completed.

POET TELLS OF SLAYING.

Chocano of Peru Says He Shot Elmore in Self-Defense.

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 4 (AP).—Santos Chocano, poet laureate of Peru, held by the police for the fatal shooting last Sunday of Edwin Elmore, a writer, today issued a statement giving his version of the affair. He said:

"I had had not public discussions with Elmore on any subject, but he sent to the newspaper La Cronica an article insulting me personally. This was not published, but I learned of it and demanded satisfaction of Elmore. He attacked me and I defended myself. I received several blows and then fired once at him.

"The discussion over Vasconcelos (José Vasconcelos, Mexican editor and former Minister of the Public Instruction) was in regard to his internationalistic doctrines, which at this time, when the fate of Tacna and Arica is being decided, I considered treason to the country and a personal indignity."

Señor Vasconcelos had attacked Chocano in Mexico City newspapers, while the Peruvian poet had denounced his Mexican adversary in the journals of Lima.

ALL SAVED IN SHIPWRECK.

Coast Guard Takes 11 From Yacht Aground Off Vero Beach, Fla.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Nov. 4 (AP).—Aground off Vero Beach, Fla., the auxiliary schooner Genesee, $80,000 yacht owned by Sylvanus Stokes, Washington (D. C.) financier, was being lashed to pieces by a high sea, Coast Guardsmen reported by telephone to The Associated Press tonight.

After battling all day with the heavy seas, a Coast Guard cutter succeeded in taking from the craft Sylvanus Stokes Jr. of Warrenton, Va., and Washington, and J. B. Clarke of Warrenton, Va., his guest, and the crew of nine.

The Genesee was on the way from Boston to Miami when it went aground Tuesday night. It is a steel yacht 148 feet long.

Belgian Heir Apparent to Be Senator

BRUSSELS, Nov. 4 (AP).—There will be inducted into the Belgian Senate when it reconvenes on Nov. 10 one of the youngest, if not the youngest, Senators in the world. He is the Duke of Brabant, heir apparent to the throne, who was born in Brussels Nov. 3, 1901, and thus will be slightly over 24 years of age. The Prince will occupy the seat once held by Leopold II, his grandfather, and Albert I, his father, before they became Kings of the Belgians.

Curran Trails Alien Smuggling Ring, After Escape of Six From Ellis Island

The escape of six aliens from Ellis Island Monday night brought to light yesterday the fact that Immigration Commissioner Henry H. Curran has been working for some time to uncover an extensive plot to smuggle aliens into this country from Italy in defiance of the quota laws. One man who escaped, Francesco Caputo, was being held as a witness, and from him and perhaps some of his compatriots Mr. Curran hoped to gain information as to the working of the smuggling syndicate.

Three of the men were stowaways and three of them convicted criminals awaiting deportation. The stowaways had reached this port on the Fabre liner Brecannia, and with fifteen others, who had been discovered on reaching New York from Italian ports, were being held for deportation. On Monday they tied their blankets together and escaped from their room on Ellis Island.

They made their way to the water without discovery because of the absence of many guards, who had gone to Jersey City to meet a trainload of immigrants who were to be deported. There a motorboat was awaiting and the men headed for the Jersey shore. The captain of a coal barge tied up at the island pier saw them and ran to give the alarm, but by the time guards got to a boat to follow the fugitives were at the Jersey side. They scrambled up a pier in the Jersey Central yards and disappeared.

Commissioner Curran was reluctant to discuss what he had learned of the smuggling plot yesterday, although he frankly admitted the escape had taken place. He said that to tell of the ramifications of the plot would defeat his plans to put an end to the system whereby immigrants are aided in stowing away on ships from foreign ports and helped to escape when they land here.

BRINGS CROWN GEM OF MOROCCO RULERS

STONE WEIGHS 183 CARATS

Possessor Has Authority to Sell It —Values It Between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

Joseph C. Stehlin, 28-year-old soldier of fortune, arrived in New York last night on the French liner Paris, bringing with him the famous Sultana diamond which for three hundred years has been the chief ornament of the crown of the Sultans of Morocco. The diamond weighs 183 karats and measures about an inch by an inch and a half across the face.

Although he is not owner of the stone, Stehlin holds legal authority to dispose of it. He said the diamond was worth from $500,000 to $1,000,000, according to what the collectors of precious stones would care to pay.

Stehlin acquired the diamond in Morocco in July, 1924, at El Kasar. In August, 1924, he planned to bring it to this country, but was unable to obtain permission from the French authorities. At the time he originally acquired the stone it was said that he had purchased it from Sultan Mulley Hafaid on behalf of a wealthy Spaniard from South America.

The gem was brought to this country to be exhibited. It is exquisitely cut and mounted upon a base which suggests Gothic sculpture and hangs as a pendant from a black silk cord. Stehlin brought the diamond into the pier in a red morocco case. He expected to bring it ashore immediately but owing to difficulties with the customs officials he was unable to do so and it now rests in the safe of the Paris.

Like a great many other diamonds, it has accumulated its store of legends. The Arabs believe that bad fortune will follow any one who takes it from Morocco. Twice, they say, it was actually taken from the country. In each instance the man who took it met a disastrous end and the diamond was mysteriously returned.

After Stehlin first acquired the diamond it was stolen from him and he had to return to El Ksar el Kebir, 100 miles inland in Morocco, to recover it. He went there in disguise. His task was complicated by the fact that a rumor arose among the Arabs that somebody was attempting to obtain the stone.

In October, 1920, a diamond described as being of the same weight as the Sultana and also the property of Sultan Kafid of Morocco, was brought to New York by Fred Withram, manager of the Madrid branch of the Mercantile Bank of America, who said the North African potentate had entrusted him with the crown jewels to sell in the United States. Customs appraisers who examined this diamond said that it was yellowish in color and might be worth $50,000 to $75,000 to cut into smaller stones or $500,000 to a collector. After being locked up in the public stores for some weeks the big diamond was returned to Spain, as there were no bidders.

Stehlin said this story has nothing to do with his diamond. That its size was said to be the same—183 karats—was a coincidence, he asserted.

FIND FASTING RETARDS MENTAL ALERTNESS

3 Chicago University Experimenters Say Keenness Rises Above Normal on Eating Again.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Mental ability and alertness are retarded during a long fast and suddenly increased, often above normal, when eating is resumed, according to physiological tests conducted at the University of Chicago by J. A. Glaze on himself, his wife and Frederick Holzel, who holds a record of thirty-three days of experimental fasting.

The experiments were conducted at the time when Mr. Holzel went through his month of prolonged hunger. At the same time Mr. Glaze fasted seventeen days and Mrs. Glaze ten.

Scientists have not yet learned why these conditions obtain during extended hunger periods, Mr. Glaze says. The research presents the problem as to whether fasting rests the nerves. His series of tests show that the hand is steadier and the brain is clearer after the fast than before and during the fast.

The total loss of weight was recorded as follows: 13.5 pounds lost during the ten-day fast, 22 pounds in fifteen days, and 26 pounds in thirty-three days.

Dreams are more numerous in longer fasting than in shorter ones. Usually, but not always, they are about food.

One subject lost all taste for tobacco after the third day of fasting.

ENDS LIFE UNDER 'L' TRAIN.

Woman's Body Found as Husband Reports Disappearance.

Ten minutes after a woman had committed suicide by jumping under a southbound Jerome Avenue train at the elevated station at Kingsbridge Road, the Bronx last night, Julius Singer of 2,902 Grand Concourse telephoned the Kingsbridge Police Station that his wife, Fannie, 27 years old, was missing and that he feared she had ended her life through grief over the death of their baby.

He was sent to the Kingsbridge Road station and identified the body of the woman, who had been killed instantly, as that of his wife.

EXPLOSION WRECKS SCHOOL CLASSROOM

CAUSE OF BLAST MYSTERY

Leaking Gas Ignited in Way Not Yet Known—Youngsters Leave Another Room Calmly.

An explosion of leaking gas, ignited in a manner not definitely known, wrecked a class room of Public School 3, Melrose Avenue and East 156th Street, the Bronx, yesterday morning at 9:40 o'clock, just a few moments before the room was to have been filled with forty-nine small pupils. The fact that the children were in the assembly room and escaped death or injury under tons of falling timbers and plaster was regarded as "an act of Providence" by both District Attorney John E. McGeehan of the Bronx and Deputy Fire Chief Gooderson.

"Had the youngsters been in their seats," said Deputy Chief Gooderson, "many of them would have been seriously injured, if not killed."

The only person in the room was George Zipf, 18 years old, an electrician, of 583 Beach Avenue, the Bronx. He had entered to search for a reported gas leak. A pocket of gas had formed between the metal lath and plaster ceiling and the flooring. Zipf was manipulating the electric wires when something, probably a spark from crossed wires, ignited the gas. The explosion dropped the ceiling intact on top of the desk. Zipf ducked under the teacher's desk as the mass of wreckage, weighing many tons, settled like a blanket over the entire room, and in that way escaped serious injury.

Later he crawled from under the debris and went to the basement, while Burt P. Feeley, Principal, who had heard the explosion, sounded the signal for fire drill and turned in a fire alarm. The pupils marched from the assembly room into the street without excitement. The electrician's injuries, minor ones, were treated in the emergency room of the school by Dr. Abraham Hosman of the Board of Education. He was able to go home.

Protected by the police reserves from the Morrisania Station the children remained in the street until firemen had ascertained the extent of the damage. Then they were permitted to file back into their rooms to get their belongings and books.

Deputy Fire Chief Gooderson found that no fire followed the explosion. But on his recommendation Principal Feeley dismissed the pupils for the rest of the day.

District Attorney McGeehan reported after an investigation that he had found no evidence of culpable negligence.

"The school authorities reported the gas leak promptly after it was found and everything humanly possible was done to repair it before damage resulted," he added. "I cannot see that any one was to blame. The leaking pipe was in an old building. One of my assistants, Albert Anderson, was graduated from that school, and he tells me that the building is more than fourteen years old."

WEALTHY MAN DEAD, TAGGED AS A SUICIDE

But Paris Police Disbelieve Note Found on Peruvian Who Had Been Out With 3 Others.

PARIS, Nov. 4 (AP).—Suicide or murder is the problem facing the Paris police who are investigating the death of Pedro Dolbois, a wealthy Peruvian, known as a joyous and liberal spender in Paris night life, who was found dead today in his apartment in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne. A note pinned to his coat told of his intention to kill himself.

The case, however, promises to be another famous Paris mystery. The police have ascertained that Dolbois returned home in the early hours with three chance acquaintances picked up in the Montmartre district. Four half-filled glasses and several empty bottles were found in the room, and there were signs of a struggle.

The note pinned to the Peruvian's clothing read: "Do not accuse anyone of my death. I have committed suicide."

But the authorities assert that this was not written by the dead man.

MISTAKES MAN FOR FATHER.

Kearny Resident Brings Him Home Dying, Then Father Arrives.

After watching the election returns and rejoicing in the victory of his party John McAlevy returned to his home at 38 Howell Place, Kearny, N. J., early yesterday morning. As he walked up the front stairs an excited neighbor ran up with the news that his father, Charles McAlevy was lying unconscious in front of 408 Schuyler Avenue, Kearny. The place was half a mile from his own home and McAlevy took a taxicab.

McAlevy and Otto Elmer, the taxicab chauffeur, arrived at Schuyler Avenue, found the unconscious man and placed him in the taxicab. It was dark, and in his haste the son did not stop to ascertain whether the unconscious man had been hurt. The latter was safely placed in his father's bed, and McAlevy went to his own room. He had just taken a seat when the front door clammed, and a few seconds later his father very indignantly inquired why a stranger had been put in his bed.

The son explained. Both returned to the father's room to find that the occupant of the bed was dead. Assistant County Physician Dr. A. A. Mulligan was called, and later McAlevy explained to the police how a strange body was found in his house. Later the dead man was identified as Thomas Mitchell, 68 years old, who had lived with a grandson at 402 Schuyler Avenue.

DEFEATS OF KLAN CHEER POLITICIANS

elections yesterday found the Republicans very generally dominant, with victories for their candidates for Mayor in cities that have shown strong Democratic inclinations. The Republicans ousted the Democrats from Mayoralities in Crawfordsville, Evansville, Elkhart, Fort Wayne, Frankfort, Jeffersonville, Lafayette, Peru and Terre-Haute. The Republicans were defeated in Marion, Richmond and South Bend.

These Republican municipal victories are taken to indicate that the Klan is still strong among the Hoosier people and that Senator Watson retains a firm grip upon the voters of the State. They are considered significant in a State which will choose two United States Senators in November, 1926.

Senator Watson will be a candidate to succeed himself and the voters will choose a Senator to fill out the unexpired term of Senator Ralston, Democrat. Governor Ed Jackson, whose candidacy for his present office was backed by the Ku Klux Klan, has appointed Arthur Robinson, a Klan favorite, to fill Senator Ralston's seat until next year's Congressional elections, and the expectation is that Robinson will not be a candidate at the polls but will retire in favor of Governor Jackson or some other prominent Republican of Klan proclivities.

Political Washington appraises the overwhelming victory of State Senator Baker in New York City and the adoption of amendments to the New York State Constitution advocated by Governor Smith as having a national slant in the dominating position they give the Governor. These results are regarded as more of a triumph for Governor Smith personally than as demonstrating the strength of the Democratic State and city organizations.

The Walker victory and the election of the Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, as well as election results elsewhere yesterday, were seen today by Representative William A. Oldfield of Arkansas, Chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, as forecasting the election of a Democratic Congress next year and a Democratic President in 1928.

Hails Democratic Opportunity.

"The sweeping victory of Democratic candidates at the polls yesterday," he said in a statement, "makes it more apparent than ever that the pendulum has begun to swing the other way. The election of a Democratic Congress in 1926 appears to be certain, to be followed by the election of a Democratic President in 1928.

"While the elections of yesterday were not general, there were some of special importance and significance, such as New York, New Jersey, Congressional bye-elections in New Jersey and Kentucky and such Mayoralty elections as Kansas City. The Democrats won in each instance, except the New Jersey Congressional election, where the Republican majority was greatly reduced.

"These results should be very heartening to Democrats throughout the country. They are not, however, surprising. They are evidence that the people cannot long be deceived and misled by the huge amount of inspired and misleading propaganda exalting and glorifying the Coolidge Administration almost beyond human imagination, such as been inflicted upon the country from Washington and other points for some time.

"It also is evident that the people are now more fully realizing the outstanding and lasting service which they received from the recent eight years of Democratic administration. Democrats will have as many opportunities to win in the future as in the past, and they have but to engage in whole-hearted teamwork in order to capitalize those opportunities."

Sees Blow to Volstead Law.

"The election of a Governor yesterday in New Jersey can in no sense be regarded as a political contest and is, of course, no indicative barometer of future elections on the Atlantic Coast or any place else for that matter," said Congressman Fred A. Britten of Chicago today.

"The sole question at issue between the two contending aspirants for the Governor's chair was whether or not good men and women were to have their appetites regulated by well paid or fanatic reformers, and the overwhelming protest against an un-American principle is a compliment to New Jersey and not necessarily to the Democratic Party as a political organization.

"If the Garys, the Morgans and the Rockefellers would withhold their contributions which make fat salaries for the officers and legal advisers of the Anti-Saloon League this organization would soon find itself in the poor-house basket, but so long as millionaires . . . are willing to contribute to this freakish combination of money-getters and cranks and until the crazy Volstead law is amended, the political declaration of the people will be secondary to a menace which has moved the public saloon to the hip pocket, the automobile, the cellar and to the rich man's club at a money waste to the taxpayer of hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

"New Jersey voters do not wish the return of the saloon but like millions of other representative citizens they know that the Volstead law has been a costly failure and their desire now is to get rid of prohibition in its present extreme form and substitute for it moderate but effective liquor legislation that will have the support of public sentiment, will produce real temperance and above all will save the youth of the nation from its present peril."

DIFFER ON NOMINEE'S DEATH.

Philadelphia Leaders Uncertain What to Do in Patterson Case.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4 (AP).—Judges and lawyers spent many hours today scanning the election laws for information concerning the situation brought about by the death of former Judge John M. Patterson a few hours after he had been elected District Attorney of Philadelphia. Several statutes said to cover the case were found, but tonight legal opinions were still far apart in their interpretation.

Mr. Patterson, the Republican nominee, received a plurality of nearly 44,000 over Frederick J. Shoyer, former City Treasurer, despite desperate last-hour efforts made by the Republican organization to elect Shoyer by the use of "stickers." William P. Brennan, the Democratic candidate, polled less than 27,000 votes.

Some of those who examined the laws expressed the opinion that Samuel P. Rotan, the incumbent, would remain in office until his successor is chosen at the election next November and qualifies. Others said that Governor Pinchot was empowered to appoint a District Attorney, while still others maintained that the appointive power rested with the Board of Judges. A few said the election judges were entitled to certify the candidate receiving the next highest vote, who would be Mr. Shoyer.

A lawyer close to leaders of the Republican organization said he would not be surprised if the matter finally ended in the courts, winding up in the State Supreme Court.

"Possibly nothing will be done until the first Monday in January, when Mr. Rotan's term expires," said the lawyer. "Then, if an appointment is made, quo warranto proceedings probably will be instituted to determine its legality."

Mr. Patterson, called by his friends "the most popular man in Philadelphia," received 167,526 votes, and the total for Shoyer was 123,614. Brennan received 26,876.

"Stickers" bearing Shoyer's name were hurried to the election divisions yesterday afternoon while Mr. Patterson was dying in Lankenau Hospital. Reports that he was dead were in circulation about the polling places throughout the afternoon and evening, but the end did not come until nearly midnight.

Replying to criticisms of the action in printing the ballots with Shoyer's name, Representative William S. Vare, one of the Republican organization leaders, said in a statement tonight:

"Had there been the slightest chance for Judge Patterson to have lived there would, of course, have been no vote cast for Shoyer. Judge Patterson was the nominee of the Republican organization, and every member of it loved him and would have given everything he possessed to see him live and occupy the office to which they had hoped to elect him."

Mr. Patterson will be buried Saturday. Hundreds of letters, telegrams and personal calls were received at the Patterson home today expressing sorrow at his death.

KLAN IS ROUTED IN DETROIT.

DETROIT, Nov. 4 (AP).—The open effort of the Ku Klux Klan to put a candidate in the office of Mayor of Detroit failed yesterday when voters re-elected John W. Smith by a majority of 29,787 over Charles Bowles, who ran with Klan support. The vote for Mayor was:

Smith, 140,938.
Bowles, 111,051.

The Klan was more successful with its slate of five candidates for Councilmen, four of the number being elected, while two out of three candidates who ran on a slate opposed to the Klan were defeated.

The Mayoralty vote followed a spirited campaign in which both candidates spoke several times daily. The issue was never sharply defined, Bowles seeking to fix vice conditions as the chief issue, while Mayor Smith held that the question of Klan rule was at stake.

PURCELL WINS IN VIRGINIA.

But Catholic Fought by the Klan Trails Other Democratic Candidates.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—John M. Purcell, Democratic candidate for State Treasurer, ran far behind his ticket in yesterday's election on the face of unofficial returns which indicate a victory for him over John P. Bassett, Republican, by 17,000 votes.

Harry F. Byrd of Winchester and the other candidates on the Democratic State ticket were swept into office by margins of 50,000 votes and upward.

The contest for State Treasurer attracted wide attention because Mr. Purcell's affiliation with the Catholic Church played a part.

FRAUD CHARGES IN LOUISVILLE

Republican Mayor Has Majority, but Democrats May Contest.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 4 (AP).—Post-election charges and denials of fraud in the Mayoralty election were made today. Republican headquarters announced that The Times was to be sued for an aggregate of $3,750,000 for alleged libel of seventy-five Republican workers.

Democratic headquarters said that the success of Arthur A. Will, Republican, at the polls yesterday was accomplished by fraud, and then came a statement from the Republicans, proclaiming the fairness of the election and the untruth of the Democratic charges. The Republican statement also hinted that not everything was regular in the conduct of Democratic workers.

Complete returns compiled by newspapers gave Will, 68,206, and Joseph T. O'Neal, Democrat, 65,919, a majority of 2,286 for Will.

Democratic campaign managers announced that they had begun compiling evidence of fraud for an expected contest. The Republicans countered with the report that they would be ready for the suit, which would put the legality of the election up to the Court of Appeals. The court threw out the Republican victory in the Council election of two years ago as fraudulent and illegal.

Kentucky returned the Democratic Party to control of the General Assembly with slightly increased majorities in each house in yesterday's election.

The Third Congressional District elected a Democrat, John W. Moore of Morgantown, to succeed the late R. Y. Thomas, Democrat.

Three persons were killed and four wounded as the result of gun fights in the mountain districts of Kentucky, and armed election celebrants last night slightly wounded five persons with bullets.

NICHOLS'S PLURALITY 21,790.

Republican Candidate for Mayor Polls a Total of 64,486 in Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 4.—Malcolm E. Nichols, Republican, has been elected by a plurality over his nearest opponent of 21,790, a record since 1903, when the late Patrick A. Collins, Democrat, defeated George N. Swallow, Republican, by 26,376.

Malcolm E. Nichols	64,486
Theodore A. Glynn	42,696
Joseph H. O'Neil	31,915
Daniel H. Coakley	20,030
Thomas C. O'Brien	9,440
John A. Kelliher	7,725
William T. A. Fitzgerald	2,190
Alonzo B. Cook	1,777
Owen A. Tomasello	497
Charles L. Burrill	378

The City Council, which will take office with Mayor Nichols on Jan. 4, consists of 13 Democrats and 9 Republicans. However, there are already signs of factionalism may strip the Democrats of their council power, with rivalry for the leadership of the party involved. Four members of the council are Curley men and they are expected to be opposed by two others, henchmen of Martin Lomasney, who are certain to see that the outgoing Mayor receives no advantage in city politics.

KANSAS CITY FACES CONTESTS.

Republican Candidate for Mayor Has Apparent Majority of 438.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 4 (AP).—Hints of contests because of narrow margins separating candidates in Kansas City's election came today from supporters of the two groups of candidates, headed by Mayor Albert I. Beach, Republican, and Ben Jaudon, Democrat, and City Treasurer.

Mayor Beach won the Mayoralty contest from Jaudon, according to unofficial returns, by a margin of 438 votes, while three of the four Jaudon group of candidates for Councilmen at Large were elected. Two Jaudon candidates and two Beach candidates for District Councilmen were elected.

Supporters of both groups of candidates said the official canvass of votes would be awaited before any action was taken. The Beach group supporters declared they were not willing to concede the election of George Goldman, who led L. R. Jewell by 378 votes for Councilman at Large on the unofficial returns. If Goldman's lead is sustained it will give the Democrats preponderant influence in the council.

Only two of twenty-five bond proposals received the necessary majorities. These provide $1,200,000 each for extension of the Fire Department and the City Hospital. The proposals defeated aggregated more than $24,000,000.

NEW POLITICAL FIGURE LOOMS IN BUFFALO

Henry M. Naylon, Head of Democratic Club, Backed Republicans in the Election.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 4 (AP).—A new figure looms upon the horizon of Western New York politics in the person of Henry M. Naylon.

Hitherto little known outside his own bailiwick, Mr. Naylon is commanding as much or more attention than the winners in the city's non-partisan election yesterday. Politicians concede that Mr. Naylon will have more than a little to say in politics here in the future.

In yesterday's election he supported Mayor Frank X. Schwab, a Republican, who was re-elected by the largest vote ever given to a municipal candidate in Buffalo under the charter form of government. He supported and directed the campaign of James P. Moore, a Republican, for the four-year term in the City Council, and Moore was elected, to the surprise of the city. Even more surprising was the victory of John J. Love, a Democrat, for a two-year Council term. He, too, had Mr. Naylon's support.

Before the Volstead act was enacted Mr. Naylon was engaged in the wholesale liquor business and is reported to have accumulated a fortune numbered in the millions. He now owns office buildings in Rochester and Buffalo and handles his business affairs in the offices of the Naylon Securities Corporation.

Mr. Naylon was the founder of a political organization here known as the Cleveland-Jefferson Club, which had as its announced object the rejuvenation of the Democratic Party but which has been somewhat of a mystery to local politicians. Its membership worked hard for the election of Moore, a Republican.

OPPOSES SALE OF POWER.

San Francisco Votes for a Municipal Distribution System.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4 (AP).—In electing nine Supervisors of the "minority group" ticket at the municipal election here yesterday, San Francisco voted disapproval of the sale of hydro-electric power from its Hetch Hetchy municipal project to a private corporation for distribution in the city.

This group in its platform opposed the contract recently entered into between the city and the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, and favored acquisition of a municipally owned distribution system. It also stood for lower taxes.

Of the thirteen officers to be elected only one present office-holder, the city recorder, was re-elected.

The initiative to purchase for $36,000,000 the Market Street Railway was defeated 8 to 1.

By a small majority the proposition to remove non-Catholic cemeteries outside the city limits was defeated.

Scranton Mayoralty Race Close.

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 4 (AP).—With eight districts out of ninety-four still missing tonight indications were that it would require an official count to decide the Mayoralty contest at yesterday's election between Mayor E. B. Jermyn, Republican, and Superintendent of Police M. J. McHugh, Democrat. Unofficial returns give McHugh 25,922 and Jermyn 25,844. Races for council and school board are also so close that it will probably require an official count. The entire Republican Lackawanna County ticket was assured of election with about 35 districts out of 224 districts still missing.

POLICE FIND ROBBER HIDING IN SUBWAY CAR

Arrested in Pistol Chase After Hold-Up in Bronx—Companion Got Away.

Detectives armed with rifles, protected by bullet-proof vests and riding in the new fast automobiles with which police divisions are furnished, made their first capture in the Bronx last night when Paul Macoq, 24 years old, of 964 East 163d Street, was arrested in a subway car on the elevated section of the Interborough tracks a short distance from the Jackson Avenue subway station. Macoq and another man had held up Abraham Simon, a perfume dealer at 686 Westchester Avenue, a short time previously, the police say.

Simon was robbed of $60 and a quantity of merchandise by the two men, who then proceeded to bind him and leave him on the floor of his shop. As the two men ran from the store they were seen by a boy, Edward Rabinowitz, who had been looking in the shop window. He told Patrolman John Fredericks of the Mercer Street Station, who was on his way to the station house to report for duty, and Frederick gave chase, firing two shots at the fugitives.

In the meantime Simon freed himself, telephoned to the Morrisania police station and five detectives were sent out in the automobile.

Fredericks followed the bandits to the Jackson Avenue subway station, where they passed through the turnstiles and jumped on the tracks. Here they separated, one fleeing north and the other south. Fredericks fired three more shots, and by this time the detectives arrived from the station. They brought searchlights with them and commenced to examine the subway cars that at that hour of the night are stored on the middle tracks. In one of the cars they found Macoq. He was treated by an ambulance surgeon at the station for bruises he suffered when he was run along the tracks. The police say that he confessed to the robbery and that they found $60 in his pocket.

ITALY CELEBRATES AUSTRIAN ARMISTICE

Mussolini in Speech Calls on Nation to Seek Peace and Be Ready for War.

VICTORY AS STEPPING-STONE

He Hails Fascism as Its Logical Outcome—10,000 March After Solemn Mass for the Fallen.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 4.—The anniversary of the armistice with Austria, celebrated with the greatest solemnity throughout Italy today, culminated in a speech delivered by Premier Mussolini at the Costanzi Opera House in Rome.

The Premier, whose impassioned oratory stirred an audience of several thousand people in the opera house and many scores of thousands who heard the speech by radio installed in all the principal public squares, sought to show that Fascismo was the logical outcome of the new spirit born in Italy as a result of the World War.

His greatest triumph, however, came at the end of his speech, when, amid a storm of applause, he called upon his countrymen to consider Italy's victory over the Central Empires merely as a stepping stone toward greater things. He said that he had every reason to look forward to a long period of peace, but that he did not believe in eternal peace, and, therefore, urged Italians to prepare materially and spiritually for any new trials fate may hold in store.

"The victory over the Central Empires," he said, "gave us our present sacred inviolable boundaries. Woe unto any one who would attempt to violate them! The whole Italian people would hurry to the frontier with lust for battle in their hearts."

But the Italian people must not rest on their laurels, he continued, but should rather keep the memory of the victory alive in their hearts in order, "if destiny so wants, it may become the springboard from which a new leap forward may be made in the future."

Peace, he added, is what every one desired, but "while I believe we are confronted with a period of long peace, we have not yet arrived at such a sublime degree of optimism as to believe peace possible for centuries."

"Italy participates in all efforts made to stabilize peace," he said, "but cannot close her eyes to the fact that a few days after the greatest pacifist event of our times cannon roared in Macedonia, and cannon continues to roar at the eastern extremity of the Mediterranean and parades of ex-combatants who dream of revenge occur in a great city beyond our borders.

"Let us by all means look with one eye with sympathy at the dove of peace now appearing on the horizon, but let us with the other eye also warily watch the concrete necessities of life which cannot be contained by any treaty. Let us hope that the tomorrow of history may develop different from the past, but while we await this miracle we must perfect ourselves materially and morally. We must have an efficient army, a sufficient navy and aviation to dominate the skies, but, above all, we must teach our people how sublime it is to sacrifice one's self for one's country."

The celebration of Armistice Day began in the morning with a solemn mass attended by all official Italy in the Royal Church of Santa Maria degli Angeli in commemoration of those fallen in war. This was followed by an aviation display, in which 300 flying machines participated.

In the afternoon a parade of 10,000 ex-combatants marched to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where a great number of wreaths were deposited. Soon afterward scores of thousands of citizens collected under the windows of Premier Mussolini's office and loudly called upon him to speak till he was obliged to appear on the balcony of the Palazzo Chigi and address a few words to the crowd.

In the evening the official celebration of Armistice Day occurred at the Costanzi, with speeches by Deputy Carlo Delcroix, the blind and handless war hero, and Signor Mussolini. At night moving pictures were shown in the Piazza Colonna in front of Signor Mussolini's office, explaining to the people what Fascism has accomplished for Italy during the past three years. In many public squares fountains were gorgeously illuminated with electric lights.

WANT LAW TIGHTENED AGAINST AUTO KILLERS

New Jersey Grand Jurors Also Urge Local Option on Sunday Amusements.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—Three presentments urging revision of State laws and sixty-three indictments were given to County Judge Stein today by the October grand jury.

It is proposed that the criminal procedure against drivers of automobiles causing accidental deaths be changed so that convictions may be obtained more easily. Drivers in such cases are now indictable for manslaughter, and conviction often is difficult because the State must prove them guilty of a reckless disregard of human life.

Local option on the question of legalizing Sunday amusements and other activities now prohibited, is recommended. The third presentment grows out of the grand jury's investigation of alleged embezzlement of funds of a Rahway building and loan association, and recommends more stringent regulations to safeguard investors' funds.

The grand jury directed that copies of the presentments be sent to Gov. Silzer and the in-coming legislature with a request for legislative action on the recommendations.

URGES A WARLESS WORLD.

Council of Churches Declares That Should Be the Goal.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—In an Armistice Sunday message made public tonight, the Commission on International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of Churches declared outlawing of war was the goal, and that "we must move toward a warless world step by step and as rapidly as possible."

Declaring that the churches recognized the national right of self-defense, the message asserted:

"They do not oppose the army and navy under existing world conditions nor seek their abolition. But they contend that national security and prosperity will be more surely achieved by reliance on the processes of international understanding, conciliation and cooperation for world peace, than by reliance on brute force."

The World Court, it said, should have the "fullest possible prestige and honor," and the United States "can help better by being a member than by standing outside."

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Nov. 4 (AP).—The Government won a sweeping victory in today's general elections, assuring Premier Coates a good majority in Parliament. The state of the parties at midnight was: Government Party, 55 seats; Labor, 12; Nationalists, 10; Independents, 2. Miss Melville Grey Lyon was elected as the first woman Member of Parliament.

SOVIET AIDS PROJECT FOR SEA WATER GOLD

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Nov. 4.—That old dream of extracting gold from sea water has been revived by the Odessa professor, Talmud, whose experiments are already declared sufficiently successful to induce the technical science department of the Supreme Council on National Economy to place at his disposal a laboratory and to assist in materials and funds for further investigation as to the possibility of developing the process on an economically profitable scale.

Professor Talmud claims to have isolated four milligrams of pure gold from two tons of water by utilising the absorptive or filtering qualities of charcoal.

The secret of his process, he declares, lies in previously saturating the charcoal through which water has passed with a substance possessing a chemical affinity for chloride of gold—the form in which gold exists in sea water. The other sea-water salts are not absorbed, but the gold chloride remains, he says.

DRUGS FEED STUBBORN FIRE

Fighters Hampered by Smoke From Brooklyn Waterfront Blaze.

Fireboats and land apparatus answered to three alarms at a fire early today in the three-story brick warehouse at 261 King Street, Brooklyn, on the Red Hook waterfront, where thousands of pounds of drugs and spices are stored.

Firemen under Deputy Chief Davin were hampered in fighting the blaze by the variety of pungent odors given off by the burning drugs. They were forced to retreat several times. Three ambulances stood by for more than two hours while the flames continued to make headway toward Sullivan Street, menacing the three-story plant of the Lefranc Chlorosone Company, 262 Sullivan Street, where a large supply of chlorine, used for bleaching compound, is stored.

Firemen kept wetting down the walls of this plant, in fear that an explosion might occur. A steady stream of water was kept on a large railroad oil tank car containing 10,000 gallons of gasoline, standing on a nearby siding with a number of freight trains.

The fireboat William J. Gaynor took a position near the Sullivan Street dock and played three streams on the structure, causing huge clouds of smoke to rise to great heights over the bay.

The police department and fire department rescue squads were on hand. The damage was estimated at $50,000.

POLICEMAN'S POCKET PICKED

He Arrests Two Suspects, but Fails to Get His $20.

Charged with grand larceny, two men were arrested in the subway last night by Patrolman William G. Guiness of the East Sixty-seventh Street station, who was robbed of his pocketbook containing $20 while on his way home with his wife from a theatre.

Guiness boarded a northbound subway train at the Times Square station and noticed that he was being followed by two young men and an older companion. As the train pulled out he was jostled and a few seconds later discovered that his pocketbook had been taken. Before the train reached the next stop, at Seventy-second Street, Guiness grabbed two of the men but lost sight of the third in the crowded car.

At the West Sixty-eighth Street police station the prisoners described themselves as Thomas Martin, 53 years old, of 257 West 111th Street, and George Petersen, 17, of 803 Sixth Avenue. Neither of the prisoners had Guiness's wallet or money when searched.

ROCKEFELLER PAYS $56,975.

Son of William G. is Taxed on Inheritance in Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 4 (AP).—Percy A. Rockefeller of New York has paid $56,975.82 to the State of Connecticut to cover the State's inheritance tax assessment against the estate of William G. Rockefeller of Greenwich, of which he is trustee.

The tax was computed on a net taxable estate of $1,483,145.56, after the State of New York had collected a tax of $568,509 from the estate. While the tax payment is one of the largest to be assessed by the State Tax Department, the amount is not so large as the gross value of the estate might have indicated.

The late Mr. Rockefeller's porperty was appraised at $8,237,000, but it was found that he had debts aggregating $6,753,855, of which $6,115,800 was due the estate of Mr. Rockefeller's father, William Rockefeller, who died June 24, 1922, a few months before his son.

EX-REICH MINISTER HITS AT STRESEMANN

Schiele Charges 'Flagrant and, Moreover, False' Violation of Cabinet Secrets.

NEW SUPPORT FOR LOCARNO

Economic Union Falls Into Line—Socialists Today May Decide Fate of the Present Reichstag.

By LINCOLN EYRE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—Charges of "flagrant and, moreover, false, indiscretions on the part of one of the participants in the Cabinet sittings"—by which Foreign Minister Stresemann is evidently meant—are preferred tonight by Herr Schiele, former Minister of the Interior, one of the three Nationalist Ministers who resigned after their party's rejection of the Locarno treaties.

Herr Schiele's accusation, given out on his behalf by a news agency, follows publication by the Hamburg organ of the People's Party, Dr. Stresemann's faction, of a story to the effect that the Nationalists' Cabinet representative broke down and sobbed on bidding his fellow Ministers farewell and indicated his regret at his party's action.

This account comes as a sequel to the Berliner Tageblatt's statement—denied officially last night—that when asked in the Cabinet meeting whether he approved the Locarno settlement Herr Schiele answered "with a loud and joyous 'yes.'"

Hamburg Story Not Denied.

The ex-Minister's declaration tonight contains no denial of the Hamburg paper's story. It merely points out that a "strictly limited circle of persons" was present at the Cabinet council and that absolute secrecy was obligatory, adding that the "indiscretion" relative to occurrences on these occasions is an "unprecedented violation of official duty."

Herr Schiele leaves it to Chancellor Luther to take steps to "cleanse leading State functionaries" of the grave suspicion resting on them and demands a formal explanation.

His erstwhile associate's complaint probably seems less important to Dr. Luther than a pledge of loyalty to his Government formulated by the Economic Union, a party hitherto Nationalistically inclined, but whose spokesmen today told the Cabinet that their Reichstag faction approved the action taken yesterday by the Government groups. The action in question favored continuance of the Locarno policy and vetoed the Nationalists' future collaboration in the Cabinet.

With the Economic Union's votes, and those of the Socialists and Democrats, the treaties could be ratified by a two-thirds majority, if that should be found constitutionally necessary against the Nationalist Voelkische and Communist opposition.

There is every likelihood, however, of the Socialist Reichstag caucus, scheduled to meet tomorrow, confirming the demand for Parliamentary dissolution voiced by their leaders. Together with the Communists, who also advocate dissolution, the Socialists can muster the pivotal 91 Reichstag membership required to bring it about.

The pro-Locarno press is making the most of the conciliatory moves initiated by the Allies in the Rhineland, but until the date of Cologne's evacuation is fixed German public opinion is bound to remain dubious about the "logical consequences." The recall of thirty-five Allied civilian district delegates by the Rhineland High Commission and the re-establishment of a German High Commissioner in the unoccupied territory is greeted as a welcome sign of the Entente's intention of permitting the Reich's administrative processes to function there without its controlling supervision. On the other hand, a report that the Conference of Ambassadors was ready to drop its demand that General Von Seeckt, Commander of the Reichswehr, be shorn of his supreme powers is denied in official quarters, where it is intimated that this question has not been settled.

German Jurists Interpret Treaties.

BERLIN, Nov. 4 (AP).—The treaty of mutual guarantee between Germany, Belgium, France, Great Britain and Italy, which is known as Annex A of the Locarno protocol, does not conflict with the rights of self-determination, in the opinion of the Executive Council of the German Society of International Law.

The council, of which Dr. Walter Simons, President of the Supreme Court, and other prominent jurists are members, is also unanimously of the opinion that Article 3 of this treaty subjects controversies between France and Germany and Belgium and Germany over existing treaties, as well as the Treaty of Versailles and the Rhineland accord, to the decision of arbitration courts, and that Germany is wholly within her rights if she declines to participate in penalties imposed on League members by virtue of Article 16 of the League Covenant.

The United Patriotic Societies, whose leaders include such men as Count Reventlow, noted "diehard" Nationalist and Prince Oscar, fifth son of the former Kaiser, were arrayed today among the opponents in Germany of the Locarno security treaties.

Meeting in a national conference convoked yesterday, these organizations passed a resolution to the effect that the Locarno security compact meant voluntary recognition of the dictates of the Treaty of Versailles, and was, therefore, unacceptable. The conference was attended by prominent German Fascisti.

It was announced at the conference that the Patriotic Societies had entered into a working agreement with such nationalistic, anti-Semetic organizations as the Stahlheim, the Wehrwolf and Tannenberg.

PRAISES JEWISH COLONISTS.

Dr. Moskowitz, Back From Russia, Tells of Relief Work.

Among the Americans returning from Europe yesterday on the Paris was Dr. Henry Moskowitz, Chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Ort Reconstruction Fund, who has been traveling in Russia.

"I have returned," he said, "firmly convinced that for the vast majority of the Russian Jews the reconstruction problem must and can be solved in Russia. I visited the new colonies of Russian Jews in the Pherson region of the Ukraine, where within six months the joint distribution committee under Dr. Rose settled 1,600 families, built more than 300 houses and laid out all the necessary public utilities. One only has to visit these countries to be persuaded that the Russian Jew has the courage and the physical stamina of the pioneer.

"I am enthusiastic, from what I saw in Russia, for a fifteen million dollar campaign. My inspection of the Ort work and my visit to Poland, Bessarabia and Russia have shown me the possibilities of rebuilding the shattered lives of Eastern Jewry. The campaign we plan to this end will bear fruit."

FOCH REPORTS ON GERMANY

Is Said to Show All Disarmament Demands Have Not Been Met.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Marshal Foch's report on German disarmament was delivered to the Conference of Ambassadors today and will be discussed on Friday.

It is believed to indicate that Germany recently has made efforts to live up to the military clauses of the Versailles Treaty so far as material is concerned, but is still far from completion of the measures required by the Conference of Ambassadors on May 30.

Also that on three of the most important points the German attitude is still very reserved—secret reorganization of the General Staff; the security police organization, which doubles the strength of the Reichswehr, and secret associations which give military instruction to youths.

CLOCHE HATS HOLD OUT.

Parisiennes Resist Drive for Big Ones and Cling to the Bob.

PARIS, Nov. 4 (AP).—The recent offensive led by the trade against the small hat for women and the cloche shape apparently has failed. At recent public gatherings the larger and more complicated types of hats which dealers have been attempting to sell were missing. There was only the small hat, and few except cloche shapes.

Some of the French people are beginning to ask whether the women are not far more faithful to their ideas than they generally get credit for, and to wonder whether the French proverb which says "Women are always changing" applies to the present generation.

Two Carpenters Killed in Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Nov. 4.—Cornelius Post, 54 years old, a carpenter, of Garfield, was almost instantly killed and his fellow-worker, Charles W. Ronk, 52, of Passaic, was fatally injured this morning when the contractor's shaft which they were constructing on the new D., L. & W. freight house gave way and crashed fifty feet to the earth. Ronk died later at the General Hospital. The Passaic police, after investigating, reported that only three guide wires were attached to the structure, while there should have been four.

INSISTS THE SOVIET PLANS HUGE ORDERS

M. Guryevics Denies Talk of Large Purchases Is Propaganda for Recognition.

SAYS RUSSIA NEEDS GOODS

He Declares Agreements Have Already Been Made on Satisfactory Terms to Buy in Germany.

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Nov. 4.—Great interest is aroused here by American comments on the statement by Director Guryevics of the Foreign Department of the Supreme Council of National Economy published in THE NEW YORK TIMES a month ago regarding the immense foreign purchases the Soviet is contemplating in the next few years.

M. Guryevics said today:

"I am rather surprised that responsible newspapers should at this date revive the old charge that we are putting out the information which THE NEW YORK TIMES publishes just as propaganda for recognition. Surely every one now knows that recognition is chiefly important to the Soviet union in so far as it leads to the establishment of business relations. Besides recognition is a diplomatic matter and I am not a diplomat, but a representative of a business organization.

"So far as the Supreme Council of National Economy is concerned the question of whether this or that country recognised the Soviet union does not arise. All we want to know is will it do business with us on terms we are prepared to accept.

"As I said, the United States produces quantities of the goods we need. We have bought much already without recognition. Now we want to buy more, but for that it is a question of industrial credits, not recognition.

"It is said, too, in America that my statement is a bluff, that Russia does not really want to place such large orders and could not utilize the goods if it got them. The figures I quoted correspond to the estimates drawn up by the State planning and other departments for the coming years. I did not say the full amount would be placed in America—indeed, part of it will be supplied in the coming years from Russian sources—nor did I ever claim we would place no orders unless we could get credits.

"On the contrary I specifically stated that our resources only permitted us to pay from 30 to 35 per cent. cash. But I repeat we do intend to place these orders and Russia can use the goods.

"For instance I categorically affirm that we will buy 20,000 tractors in this fiscal year and find use for every one of them. What is more, we have already placed some of the orders I mentioned in Germany, England, &c. Our coal commission which has been in Germany for three weeks has already placed large orders for coal cutting machinery, drills, &c., on acceptable credit terms. The commission buying for the oil industry has placed orders for well piping and other machinery in Germany, also on satisfactory conditions.

"Despite the American doubts about our program I am convinced we will be able to place the full amount of this year's orders in Europe. By Spring I will be ready to give a full list of the transactions. Then American business men can judge for themselves.

"There are doubts, too, regarding our paying capacity. It is not easy we pay, but do we pay? We do. None of our bills are ever protested and won't be protested, because we are determined to keep our credit good. Proof of our ability to pay lies not only in the restoration of a solid currency, but in the development of exports. Last year we exported 500,000,000 rubles. This year the figure will be doubled.

"In conclusion, the question whether financial and business circles in America really doubt the genuineness of the Soviet orders or the Soviet's ability to meet the bills on time. The underlying fact of the whole affair is that American, and to a considerable extent English, bankers prefer to lend money to foreign countries at high rates rather than to finance their own industry. We are not unaware that a recent American industrial congress criticised the financial policy of foreign loans involved by the Dawes plan and similar projects and suggested that foreign credits should be given with greatest circumspection, lest Germany and other foreign industrials profit at the expense of their American competitors. Similar complaints were voiced at a recent meeting of the British Conservative Party in Brighton."

ASKS 'TRUTH' OF CHARTERIS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The "categorical denial" by General Charteris of the statements attributed to him in New York concerning a German "corpse factory propaganda" does not satisfy the Daily News, which, in reiterating its demand that "the full truth shall be told impartially and with official sanction and authority," gives support to THE NEW YORK TIMES version of the speech.

"We have seen," says the Daily News, "the original report of his speech in THE NEW YORK TIMES as transcribed by a responsible member of its staff. We also have seen an issue of the same paper containing his subsequent denial. THE NEW YORK TIMES makes the significant observation that in the course of his denial he offered no comment on his reported admission that he had avoided telling the truth when questioned about the matter in the House of Commons or on his own description of the scheme to support the corpse factory story by 'planting' a forged diary in the clothing of a dead German prisoner.

"On being confronted with this partial denial, THE NEW YORK TIMES reporter insisted on the accuracy of his account. He repeated it in detail and mentioned the circumstances in which the General gave permission to him to publish the story. Is it the General's theory that the reporter invented the more piquant parts of the column speech on this very out of the way subject, or is it that he so grossly misunderstood the narrative as to mistake some imaginary propagandist for the General himself?

"Was he, in other words, either a clever knave or an ineffable fool? Well, our New York correspondent is certainly neither one nor the other, and he had an interesting conversation with General Charteris almost immediately after the event. He has again cabled to us some of the exact particulars of that conversation, to the course of which the General remarked that the report was 'not quite accurate,' and when our correspondent offered to take the matter up with THE NEW YORK TIMES he protested vigorously, saying he could not think of challenging the report as the defects were of only minor importance. That is surely a strange method of describing a statement which, if substantially true, implicates him in scandalous association with lying propaganda.

"We, therefore, invite General Charteris again to examine the report with all his faculties alert to secure what testimony he can in his favor from those who were his hosts at dinner and to say without any beating about the bush whether it was a pure fabrication that he refrained only from using the fake diary because he was afraid the forgery would be detected."

CALLS MINUTE WOMEN TO WATCH LEGISLATION

D. A. R. Head Backs Immigration Curb and Warns Against Peace Propaganda.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4 (AP).—Too many women organizations are endorsing projects without investigating them, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, President General of the Daughters of the American Revolution, today told more than 300 members of the Pennsylvania State branch of the society assembled here for its annual conference. Women, she added, should not waste their energy and influence upon movements that have no definite constructive value.

Mrs. Cook endorsed the Johnson immigration act and warned the delegates against the "insidious propaganda of so-called 'peace' literature, circulated in the public schools, intended to stir up unrest in the minds of pupils and teachers."

"More than ever today," Mrs. Cook declared, "the world is in need of men and women of recognized integrity, who are not afraid to avow their ideals of justice and right—whose conscientious scruples are strong enough to stand four-square against the careless infraction of our laws, and the ruthless letting down of those moral bars of society."

Appealing to her hearers to be "the vigilant minute-women of our generation in legislative fields, just as our ancestors were the 'minute-men' of their age when duty called," Mrs. Cook said that the face of the society is not turned to the past, but instead has blazed the trail in carrying out innumerable enterprises of national, patriotic and civic usefulness, and is looking to the future welfare of the children of tomorrow, both native and foreign-born.

Mrs. Cook said that during the coming session of Congress "unscrupulous efforts" would be made to nullify the effects of the Johnson Act "and to prevent its being even more useful by its supplementary measure which would insist upon the registration of aliens and the deportation of those who are found to be notably unworthy."

A ROOF TRAGEDY.

Hold-Ups Who Operate on the Tops of Tenements.

Not long ago a sailor of the United States Navy plunged to death from the roof of an uptown negro tenement. How he came to be on the roof at an early morning hour is a matter of conjecture. The police, however, who investigated the affair believe he was lured there on some pretext by negroes, who then attempted to rob him.

It is known that he did not submit tamely to being robbed, for tenants in the house were awakened by the sounds of an encounter above them. The noise died suddenly and it is surmised one of the negroes knocked the sailor senseless with a club or blackjack. A negro across the way told of seeing several men fleeing across the roof tops, and another, a tenant in the house, told of seeing a man lowering himself from the roof with the intention evidently of entering an open window below. The next moment he saw the body of the man hurtling from the roof to the court below. Later, the body of the sailor was found in the court. It is believed he either was thrown from the roof by his assailants or, finding himself a prisoner there, fell to his death while attempting to escape.

The incident calls attention to the danger of a stranger entering tenements in certain sections of the city in search of adventure. There are rows of tenements almost identical in appearance. On promise of meeting with adventure strangers have been lured to those lowly premises. After ascending two or more flights of stairs the stranger is told to wait in the hall a moment until his conductor ascertains if everything is all right. That is the last he sees of his escort. A few moments after the latter disappears the stranger is confronted by several men who step out suddenly from the shadows. He is curtly told to "throw up his hands," and, seeing that the men are armed, he obeys; or he is commanded to proceed up the stairs while he is prodded in the back by the muzzle of a gun. After he has ascended to the roof he is robbed and left there. Likely as not he discovers that the exit is locked and he makes his escape, if he can, by walking over the roof tops until he finds an open skylight.

Such hold-ups are not uncommon in certain neighborhoods. Usually an investigation shows that the robbers were not known in the house. They simply picked out a house the appearance of which was identical with a dozen other houses in the block. After robbing their victims the robbers have not always been satisfied to leave them unmolested on the roofs but have beaten them up so badly that their victims had to have the services of an ambulance surgeon.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The Supreme Court of Appeals today issued a rule against Alfred C. Smith, Norfolk lawyer and State Senator, directing him to appear Nov. 18 to show cause why his certificate to practice law in Virginia should not be revoked.

This action followed the filing of charges by the Norfolk-Portsmouth Bar Association, alleging that Senator Smith had been convicted of forgery in Clarendon County, S. C., June 2, 1915, and had been dishonorably discharged from the army at Fort Monroe, Va., Aug. 6, 1924, for a similar offense.

The complaint alleged that he had been sentenced to one year at hard labor in South Carolina and to six months in Virginia.

CLERGYMEN THRONG HIGH CHURCH MASS

Hear Decadence of Home Life and Politics Assailed by Milwaukee Bishop.

CELIBATE PREACHERS URGED

Yale Professor Says at Anglo-Catholic Conference Such an Order in Episcopal Church Is Needed.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—Using the complete Catholic ritualistic service in the celebration of mass, the Anglo-Catholic Congress impressively opened its second day's program today in Christ Episcopal Church. The open-air procession this morning was headed by thurifers, whose scarlet robes, smoking censers and fragrant incense indicated the close relationship to the ceremonial of the Roman Catholic Church. The mass seemed identical in both form and substance.

Following the thurifers were the congress officials, whose copes of rich tones contrasted with the simple black of the more sombre line of priests. The officials were the Rev. Dr. J. H. Barry, rector of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York City, and his associate rector, the Rev. Dr. S. P. Delany; the Rev. Dr. J. P. McComas, vicar of St. Paul's Chapel, New York City, and Professor G. C. Edmunds of the General Theological Seminary, New York City, who is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the congress.

The Bishops who were in line included the Right Rev. Benjamin I. Ivins of Milwaukee, the Right Rev. Paul Matthews of New Jersey, the Right Rev. H. M. Carson of Haiti and the Right Rev. J. C. White of Springfield, Ill. Each was accompanied by two deacons and a crucifer, and two lighted candles preceded them.

Rev. Dr. Penfield Is Celebrant.

A black-robed choir of priests and monks sang the mass, conducted by the Rev. Canon W. Douglas of Peekskill, N. Y. The organist was Dr. Harold Gibbs, organist of St. Ignatius Church of New York City. The celebrant of the mass was the Rev. Dr. Frederick S. Penfield, rector of St. Stephen's Church, Providence, R. I. He was assisted by the Rev. Father W. O. Baker of New Haven and the Very Rev. Charles Carver, dean of the Cathedral of All Saints of Albany. The church was crowded for the impressive ceremony.

The Right Rev. Benjamin I. Ivins, Coadjutor Bishop of Milwaukee, preached the morning sermon from the familiar St. Paul text of the Macedonian cry for help.

He asserted that all forms of organized religion are faltering in America and that there are signs of impending disorganization of our civilization, while faith in our municipal or even national Government is sometimes shaken. Graft and dishonesty are often in evidence, he said, and professionals of untrained type have been given the administration of our affairs, while diplomacy sometimes means chicanery.

The social graces of the home have become the manners of the restaurant and the dance hall, he charged, and though we have tried remedy after remedy, from compulsory education to prohibition, we have such results as the I. W. W. and a multiplication of luncheon clubs that are feeling after the right thing but whose service is a mere abstraction.

This afternoon Colonel Anthony Dyer of Providence spoke eloquently of the mass as the central act of a Christian life. He urged the Catholics of the congress to display patience in their relations with fellow-churchmen who have not accepted episcopal authority. Colonel Dyer said that the Catholic Church and its symbolism were the hope for the present and the future.

Finds Optimism in Faith.

"I am not discouraged," he said. "I do not believe the world is going over to machine-made things. The trouble is that there are so many who only see the beaten paths. If you would only come out with me to the unbeaten paths, where faith abounds, where a red light burns to the left of the altar typifying the presence of Christ, you could not help feeling a spirit of optimism."

Colonel Dyer told of his travels through the little French villages and churches, and said that it was in one of these quaint little edifices that he felt nearer to the divine being than ever before. This effect was due, he said, to the presence of the symbolic red light at the altar.

"No matter how beautiful is the building, no matter how eloquent the words of the preacher, no church cannot give us the feeling of reverence without the presence of the red light," he said.

"In those French villages I asked what is the matter with the world and they said 'It is because our little churches are empty,' but the situation is improving. At the New Orleans congress we all felt encouraged. Never have I been to a convention in which every one was working so strongly to strengthen the Kingdom of God. Those of us who received a new lease of life there must feel a sacred trust to spread what we have received.

"I felt the yearning of a great many people for richer things in life and they will stick to our faith if we keep on the straight road pointing toward God. Our main hope and our main strength is in the sacramental part of our service. I hope that this great cause which we are strengthening here today will open its arms to others. Let painters, clergy and preachers paint for all of you such a marvelous picture of our Lord that even in the darkest hours we may follow it through."

Business and Church Out of Step.

Professor Chauncey B. Tinker of Yale, who spoke in the absence of Mayor Thomas L. Raymond of Newark, N. J., said that the prevailing spirit of the business world struck an inharmonious note to the churchman. He felt that the Catholic Church today has a mission in recreating an age of faith through the medium of an order of celibate preachers.

The Rev. Father Shirley Hughson, Chairman of the Organization Committee of the congress, today stated that he does not favor compulsory chapel services in American colleges.

"I cannot see why men who happen to be students in college," he said, "should be compelled to go to daily chapel when home on vacation they would be regarded as queer if they went to chapel daily. Why should they be compelled to do so simply because of their residence at college?

"So far as I can understand the history of the custom it is a survival of the medieval days when all education was in the hands of the Church, much of it in the hands of the monastic orders. Now that education has been secularized, I can see no reason for clinging to this shred of the old custom."

"The monks and their pupils, most of whom looked forward to holy orders, went to their daily services as a matter of course, but our college professors are no longer monks, and their students are not expected to enter the ecclesiastical state. To the average man of today it is an unnatural compulsion and I fear it produces a reaction against wholesome personal religion."

anthem, and the Star-Spangled Banner. Mr. Taft, as President of the Japan Society, called for toasts to the Emperor and to the President. As the lights went up again there was an eager leaning forward on the part of the guests, as the women took in the orchid beaded Paris gown, softened with a scarf of tulle, worn by the Princess. The Prince wore a typically Western wing collar and white tie and white waistcoat with black buttons. On his left breast he wore the gleaming star of the Daikunji.

Prince Reads Address.

The Prince read his address, which was later translated by Consul General Saito. His high voice carried well through the large room, and his poise bespoke the trained public speaker. Mr. Saito was frequently cut off by applause from the guests as they caught the force of the sentiments the Prince had spoken. The Prince said:

"It is a matter of sincere gratification and appreciation for the Princess and me to be accorded such a courteous reception by the Japan Society of New York. We have stayed in Europe for the last few years for the purpose of study and experience, and I am glad that we have been able to arrange to return home by way of this great country.

"We have always been admiring the marvelous power and efficiency of the American people. Combined with your traditional idealism and moral vision, such power and efficiency are molding a great nation whose chief aim is, I fully believe, the establishment of an enduring peace upon this earth. That lofty aspiration of yours we of Japan share to the fullest measure, and herein we see a common bedrock upon which I confidently believe we can build a firm and indestructible structure of peace and friendship for all time to come.

"Japan highly prizes the friendship of America—friendship that is marked by great historical events and that has never been found wanting in times of need. We are happy to know that the Japan Society is doing a splendid work in the promotion of friendship between the two nations. In bringing Americans and Japanese face to face in social contact, it is effectively dissipating the darkening clouds of misunderstanding not infrequent in international relations. Your task is noble and far-reaching, and we are sincerely rejoiced that your endeavors are yearly bearing big fruits of good-will on all sides.

"The old era of international strife is fast yielding its place to a new era of international cooperation. Such a society as yours is in itself a sign of the times and will be a potent factor more and more prominently in diplomatic dealings which will in the future be every more directly in the hands of the people themselves. We heartily congratulate you, officers and members of the Japan Society, for the happy conception, the successful development and the worthy activities of your great association. May I express our firm belief as well as our ardent hope that the Japan Society will continue to prosper and will always be a fitting symbol of everlasting friendship and peace between Japan and the United States.

"The Princess and I are traveling incognito on this tour. In spite of that fact, you have done us today such great honor for which we wish to return our best thanks. It is our sincere regret that our itinerary obliges us to cut our stay here very short. However, we are taking home with us a memory which is long and most pleasant and with which is mingled a lasting sense of appreciation of your magnificent friendship and hospitality."

Mr. Taft, in advance of the arrival of the guests of honor, said that it was a pleasure for Americans to reciprocate when they could "the friendly and neighborly hospit

CANTON IS CENTRE OF REDS' ACTIVITIES

POWER WANES ELSEWHERE

UNWARY CONVERTS WON

"Standpatism" by the Powers Is Declared a Factor in the Soviet's Gains.

By THOMAS F. MILLARD.
Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 11.—The thing called Bolshevism has in China two forms or phases. One phase is its influence and effects as a political philosophy. The other phase is its influence and effects on international polity. The two forms are distinct, but they are closely related and interdependent.

Bolshevism as a political practice among Chinese is confined almost exclusively now to the region of Canton. Cantonese always have been the most aggressive, venturesome, progressive and turbulent people in China. They first opened China to foreign contacts and trade. They were the first Chinese to emigrate in considerable numbers.

Chinese in Malayasia, the Dutch Indies, Siam, Burma, the Philippines, South America, Mexico, Hawaii and the United States went almost altogether from Kwangtung Province. Those Chinese emigrants and their descendants provided funds to carry on a propaganda in China to overthrow the Manchus. It was they who backed Sun Yat-sen in his effort to create a republic here. Today they contribute liberally to all patriotic movements here, to maintain the Koumingtang (People's Party) and to carry on the struggle to get real representative government established. New ideas for China generally find the most fertile soil at Canton.

Therefore it is not surprising that this new political doctrine which came marching across Asia from huge partly Asiatic Russia would find it easier to get a foothold at Canton than elsewhere in China. It found there a number of conditions already shaped for its purposes and arguments. There was the provocative old quarrel between the Kwangtung people and the British about Hongkong and related issues. There was an "independent" Government, which did not acknowledge allegiance to Peking. There were Sun Yat-sen and his followers, a group of Chinese "advanced thinkers" who vaguely aimed at bringing on political and social revolution, and who especially aimed at restoring China's sovereign rights. The ground was plowed for sowing Soviet propaganda.

I have just been running over a mass of press clipping, giving details of acts of the "Red" Chinese Government at Canton during the last few months. At the moment this Red Government appears to have the upper hand, although its tenure is precarious and there is a strong local faction opposed to it.

I will not attempt now to describe fully the Red methods at Canton, nor to analyze their policy and apparent objectives. In general these seem much like acts of the Bolsheviki in Russia, although at Canton the extreme of Bolshevist administrative practice is not yet reached. Methods include confiscation of public and private property, enforced special taxation, arbitrary levies on wealth and business, arbitrary arrest and imprisonment and execution of citizens and political opponents. A number of Red Russians are employed by the Canton Government. The Soviet Consul General at Canton is what amounts to an ex-officio member of the Chinese Red Ministry. Methods of the Red Russian Chekka are used unsparingly. A body of Red Russian troops forms part of the Canton forces, and Red Russian officers train Chinese troops and conduct a military academy for Chinese cadets. It is believed that Russian officers gave the order to fire which started the fighting at Shameen (the foreign settlement) in July.

Reds in China Lose Ground.

The foregoing outline is given not so much to illustrate Bolshevist methods transplanted to China as to explain counter-reactions among other Chinese elements.

There is a large and apparently a growing class of Chinese at Canton who are "fed up" with the Reds. And what has happended there is getting known now in all parts of China and is causing a revolution of the better Chinese elements against Sovietism.

Only a few months ago Peking was impregnated by Soviet influence; it lingers there yet, but the object lesson at Canton is having effect, and there is a shift of opinion among Chinese progressives and nationalist leaders away from Bolshevism. Here at Shanghai, and throughout Central China, distaste of Bolshevism is particularly evident. I have not talked with one intelligent Chinese who wants to have Sovietia as an administrative practice spread in China.

On the other hand, there are in China, as in all countries, many men and some politicians who expect to be able to profit selfishly by a complete political and social overturn and who will throw in their lot with any party that professes these objects. A transition from orderly administrative processes to Red government means a period of confusion and absence of law, of looting in the name of authority, of grasping the property and wealth of others by trumped-up means. Such an opportunity tempts unscrupulous men, who hope to "clean up" and get away with the spoils.

It scarcely is possible now, except by hearsay, to determine the extent that Sun Yat-sen was influenced by the Bolshevist. Some of his close advisers have told me that Sun never really believed in Bolshevist political doctrine; that he only recognized how Soviet influence in the Far East might be made useful to China in international affairs, and how it could give the Canton Government leverage on internal politics. That may be so. It is not of much consequence now that Sun is dead. But if Sun was astute enough to see through the wiles and sophistries of Soviet agents and to turn them to his own use, many younger Chinese in Sun's entourage are less experienced and clever and without doubt became imbued with Bolshevist ideas. After the death of Sun Yat-sen, when his restraining hand was removed, a struggle was precipitated between the Red element and moderates in the Kouomintang to control that party. This struggle still is going on, and one immediate effect of it is to hold up for the time certain moves in the young China nationalist program.

It is interesting to observe that one of the first things the Red Canton Government did after obtaining power was to adopt an outright treaty repudiation policy. After the Shameen shooting incident the Canton Government took steps which practically nullify a number of treaty provisions and which almost suspend trade and communications with Hongkong. British interests at Hongkong passed strong resolutions demanding that the British Government take military action to enforce the treaties which has not been done yet and is not likely to be done because of international complications it would precipitate. The case, however, indicates that treaty repudiation or abrogation by ultimatum quickly would follow a lapse of China into Bolshevism.

Says Feng Has to "Play With" Soviets.

Turning to North China one finds that Bolshevist influence takes a different form. The diplomatic flirtation of Peking with Soviet Russia seems on the wane, although it probably will revive if other major powers continue a policy of standpatism vis-à-vis treaty revision.

But Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang more or less is forced by conditions and circumstances to lean toward Russia. His great rival for power in the North, Chang Tso-lin, is so located that he controls all avenues of transportation into North China except by way of Russia. Feng's territory is cut off from rail communication through China. He is unable to get important quantities of arms and munitions by that route. Also, Chang is believed to have a degree of diplomatic support from Japan.

The geographical and political situation throws Feng back on Soviet Russia. It is possible to bring supplies across Mongolia via Urga by motor transport, of which Feng recently made large purchases. Those supplies can come either from European Russia or, by entering at Vladivostok, they can be brought over the Amur and Siberian railways entirely in Russian territory to a point near Urga, thence to Kalgan. In the event of trouble and a collision with Chang, Marshal Feng's only line of communications and support is through Siberia. Therefore while this situation continues Feng can be expected to "play with" the Soviets.

This collocation does not prove that Marshal Feng is a sincere convert to Bolshevism any more than his strategical position and relation to Japanese interests proves that Marshal Chang is pro-Japanese. In both cases their policies are influenced by practical considerations.

Chang Tso-lin, who a year or so ago effected a somewhat dramatic rapprochement with Comrade Karakhan, the Soviet Ambassador at Peking, now seems to have fallen out with his erstwhile friend over the matter of railway management and development in Manchuria. Chang wants to build several new lines of railway and Comrade Karakhan is putting obstacles in the way, because, as things stand, Chang expects to use Japanese capital, and the Russians probably figure that the new lines will mean an extension of Japanese influence over railways in Manchuria and will lessen the strategical importance and business of the Chinese Eastern Railway, in which the Russian Government retains an interest and a share in the management.

Thus the old diplomatic battle over communications and strategy inside of China is revived at a time when, if China does regain sovereign rights, all such contentions are useless.

That outline shows that Soviet influence in China has taken hold only at the two extremes of North and South. In Central and Western China it has made no important progress as a political philosophy, although it can be traced in ideas that are working in the labor unrest here and in some of the "student" demonstrations.

In South China Bolshevism as a form of government actually has come into existence and it may cause a good deal of trouble before it passes on.

Foreigners Unwittingly Aid Moscow.

The centre of Bolshevist influence and propaganda in Central China apparently is the Russian Consulate in Shanghai. This is a fine building on "Consulate Row," contiguous with the German, United States and Japanese Consulates, and across Soochow Creek from the British Consulate.

In view of the fact that officially and diplomatically the position of the Soviet Consulate here is as "regular" as those of other nations, some efforts of the foreign municipality and police to check up and suppress alleged Bolshevist activities and propaganda are entertaining. Scarcely a week passes without the police of the International Settlement raiding a Bolshevist agency and seizing a lot of papers and pamphlets. Often alleged Bolshevist agents are arrested and haled into the Mixed Court on charges of inciting disorder. None have been convicted recently, and in one case the evidence against the accused Russian smacked strongly of having been "framed" by the police. The Soviet Consulate strongly supports its nationals and agents, and whatever value such police action has as anti-Bolshevist propaganda is offset by counter-accusations and propaganda of the Soviets. Often I think the Bolshevists have the best of these tilts as to psychological effects with Chinese.

The foreign press in China and the Governments of some powers incessantly are demanding that the Chinese Government shall suppress Bolshevist activities in China as a precedent to treaty revision. Yet the foreign administrations here are unable to suppress them. And it is questionable if the feeble and ineffective efforts of foreign authorities in China to do that will help matters. After all, the Bolshevists have as much right to put out their arguments in China as other Governments have; and if their arguments prove the stronger and more persuasive, and are supported by a set of conditions giving them practical effect in the eyes of Chinese, they may prevail.

As things stand, by far the larger part of respectable Chinese are averse to Bolshevism, fear its spread and ultimate effects, and are trying to arouse and carry on an opposition to its doctrines and influence. It is debatable whether the general foreign attitude and policies of the stable Governments vis-à-vis China now are helping conservative Chinese to fight Bolshevism, or are giving indirect aid and countenance to Bolshevist diplomacy and propaganda here.

Calls It a Case of Cause and Effect.

It is evident that the two phases of Bolshevism exhibited in China today are related as Cause and Effect. Soviet influence got a foothold here because of its application to China's international position and to the new Chinese nationalism. Having for that reason gained the sympathetic attention of Chinese progressives and patriots, it was possible then to get attention to Bolshevist political philosophy and to make some converts. The diplomatic aspect of Soviet propaganda and influence in China is Cause, and other developments are Effect.

Policies of some foreign Governments and the general position of so-called stable nations gave plausibility and effect to Soviet diplomacy in China in recent years. In a word, it was our diplomatic standpatism, our failure to understand that the new Chinese nationalism is a genuine and probably a lasting thing and must be reckoned with. Therefore, foreign Governments which are opposed to the extension of Bolshevism in China and everywhere plainly have contributed to and still are helping to extend its influence here.

To me the remedy for this condition, if indeed it is not too late to apply it, lies in a change of policy toward China by the principal stable Governments; a shift from standpatism to sympathetic action. Stable Chinese elements which want to fight Bolshevism and as yet are in doubt how to do this effectively need outside help and encouragement. They get little of either from diplomatic lip-

TO ASK AID OF DAVIS IN SEEKING HER SON

Mrs. Margaret Henderson Turns to Labor Department in Fight on Spence Alumnae.

ILL, SHE GIVES UP SEARCH

Her Lawyer Hopes That If Her Deportation Is Ordered Boy Must Be Found and Sent Also.

While Mrs. Margaret Henderson lay seriously ill in her Bronx home calling in her delirium for her son, David, whose whereabouts she has been trying to force the Spence Alumnae Society to reveal for three months, Bernard H. Sandler, her lawyer, made known last night a plan to invoke the aid of the Department of Labor in bringing Mrs. Henderson and her boy together.

Mrs. Henderson was said to be in straitened circumstances and to have become ill through her efforts to find her son. According to Mr. Sandler, the woman came to this country from Scotland with her son and gained admission by posing as a widow although her husband was alive in Scotland, and saying that she was coming to marry an American citizen.

She was married here in 1922 to a Robert Marshall, but did not live with him long. Then finding it difficult to support her child she placed him in the care of the Spence Alumnae Society, which had a well-to-do family adopt the child. When Mrs. Henderson attempted to get the boy back later she met with a refusal. She sued and finally gained a ruling from the Supreme Court that the Alumnae Society would at least have to tell where the boy was. This ruling was upset recently by the Appellate Division.

Mrs. Henderson had in the meantime been searching through New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania in the hope that she could find the boy herself. When these efforts failed, she returned to the home of friends in the Bronx, penniless and ill. It is feared that she may not recover.

Mr. Sandler, in explaining the probable appeal to the Department of Labor, said that he hoped first to submit the case to the Court of Appeals in an attempt to get that body to reverse the Appellate Division and force the Spence Alumnae Society to reveal the whereabouts of the boy.

"If that fails," he said, "I shall probably appeal to Secretary of Labor Davis and ask him to have Mrs. Henderson deported on the ground that she entered the country illegally by posing as a widow when she was married. If she is deported her son will have to be deported with her, as he has no right to come into the country unless she did, and in that case the woman and her son would be united."

NEW VICTROLA SHOWN.

Orthophonic Machine Wins Approval of Big Audience.

An audience of 1,500 filled the auditorium of the New York Electrical Society at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street last night to hear a lecture and see a demonstration of the new orthophonic victrola. J. P. Maxfield of the Bell Telephone laboratories and W. W. Clark, Musical Director of the Victor Talking Machine Company, were the speakers.

The selections played included every kind of music from instrumental solos to vocal ensembles, and a jazz record by a band. In order to furnish a comparison records were played on an old-type machine. The new type proved to be much clearer and elicited much applause.

Mr. Maxfield explained that the new machine, while sounding louder than the old, was not actually louder but merely comprised a larger number of "harmonics," or variations of pitch. The new type, he said, reproduced the sound as if it were actually in the room, whereas the old machine gave the effect of sound coming out of a box. To illustrate the capabilities of the new machine a record of a chorus of 125 voices, accompanied by an organ, was played.

START FOR ATLANTIC FLIGHT

Count Casagrande's itinerary provides for stops at Las Palmas, Canary Islands; St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands; Porto Praia, on Santiago Island, one of the Cape Verde group; Fernando Noronha Island, off the eastern extremity of Brazil; Pernambuco, Brazil; Rio Janeiro and Buenos Aires.

He is flying a hydroplane driven by two motors of 500 horsepower each. His plane has two intercommunicating pontoons, one of which is equipped with both wireless telegraphic and radio telephonic apparatus, permitting the aviators to keep in touch with ships or shore stations at all times.

Count Casagrande, born in Venice in 1896, distinguished himself as an aviator with the Italian forces during the World War, rendering particularly conspicuous service during the retreat from Caporetto. He was four times decorated for valor and later received the title of Count from King Victor Emmanuel.

GINGER SCARCE IN LONDON.

Christmas Staple Is Affected by Canton Disturbances.

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP).—London shops advise: "Buy your Christmas ginger early. The supply is limited." This is the warning they have issued to customers.

The revolution in the Canton area of South China has upset the ginger trade. Hongkong supplies the British Isles, and most of the rest of the world, with the sugared and preserved ginger which enters so largely into the manufacture of Christmas puddings and Christmas fruitcake.

But it has been impossible this year for the trade to get the ship loads of ginger in quaint blue Chinese porcelain jars which ordinarily are distributed through London.

GO ON COMMUNISTS' BAIL.

Countess of Warwick, G. B. Shaw and A. J. Cook Join Sureties.

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Countess of Warwick, George Bernard Shaw, Josiah Wedgwood, who was a member of the Labor Cabinet, and A. J. Cook, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, today were added to the list of sureties for the half of the twelve Communists recently arrested on charges of inciting to sedition.

The twelve defendants were committed for trial, after a hearing in which they entered pleas of not guilty.

MITCHELL WON'T CALL MEMBERS OF CABINET

He Agrees That Their Papers Are All the Defense Requires—Many Subpoenas Issued.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Wholesale subpoenas for defense witnesses were issued today in the Mitchell court-martial proceedings, but those who ranked highest on the list as submitted by counsel for the accused air officer were not summoned.

Under a compromise worked out by opposing counsel, no step was taken to bring into court either Secretary Davis of the War Department or Secretary Wilbur of the Navy Department, Secretary Jardine of the Agriculture Department or Everett Sanders, secretary to President Coolidge. It also was agreed that some of those now in far-distant cities should be permitted to give their testimony by deposition.

Along with the subpoenas, the court's Judge Advocate sent out requests for the many Government documents cited by Colonel Mitchell as essential to the preparation of his defense. These include official files of the War, Navy and Agriculture Departments as well as the White House.

Colonel Mitchell and his counsel agreed to waive the request for subpoenas for the three Cabinet officers on condition that the documents in their possession be presented by accredited representatives of the departmental heads. The same concession was made in the case of Mr. Sanders.

The Judge Advocate holds, however, that the mere issuance of subpoenas for witnesses and requests for delivery of the records will not prevent the prosecution from objecting to the admission of such testimony. It is regarded as virtually certain that objections will be made if the defense attempts to open up in court the whole Air Service controversy.

RARE MANUSCRIPTS ARE SOLD FOR $1,700

Eighteenth Century Specimen Brings Highest Price—Fish Auction Receipts $17,528.

A fine specimen of early eighteenth century illuminated manuscript brought $1,700 yesterday when the library of Mrs. Hamilton Fish was sold at auction in the American Art Galleries. The library was moved from the Fish homes at 810 Fifth Avenue and in Hamburg, Germany.

This manuscript, antiphonal on vellum, written and illuminated for the Church of St. Germain, Paris, about 1729, is interspersed profusely with miniatures and rivals in workmanship medieval manuscripts of similar style. It brought the day's highest price and was bought by Henry Woods.

The library brought a total of $17,528. Among the other items which brought high prices was a fine, extra-illustrated set of the memoirs of Le Duc de Saint-Simon, which was bought by M. L. Turner for $430. The J. P. Horn Company paid $520 for a set of the author's autographed edition of the writings of Bret Harte. The same buyer gave $310 for a set of the Edinburgh edition of the works of Robert Louis Stevenson. Mr. Bernet, agent, paid $225 for a set of 1,500 photographs of celebrated paintings, sculpture and architecture. E. W. Johnson paid $225 for a set of the illustrated library edition of the works of Charles Dickens.

ASK TARIFFS ON HARDWOODS

New England Senators Urge Matter to Coolidge.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Tariff protection for the hardwood industry of New England was advocated today to President Coolidge by Senator Hale of Maine, Senator Keyes of New Hampshire and Representative Hersey of Maine, all Republicans.

Birch and maple flooring can be imported duty free and the group advised the President that Canadian had an advantage over American producers because of the 25 per cent. ad valorem Canadian tariff tending to shut out importations from the United States. The Congressional delegation said the tariff law should be amended to provide a duty equal to the Canadian levy or negotiations should be begun with Canada to have its duty abolished.

Boulders, Carried Down Mountain Crushed Homes in Wales.

CONWAY, Wales, Nov. 4 (AP).—Sixteen persons are thought to have met death yesterday when the dam of the power company on Lake Elgian burst and loosed 3,000,000 tons of water down the mountainside. Eight bodies have been found and eight persons are missing.

It is believed more persons were killed by falling houses and swiftly rolling boulders than from drowning. But for the fact that the population in the valley is sparse and scattered the fatalities would undoubtedly have been greater. The material damage was relatively light.

Thousands of persons visited the scene today. They saw large areas covered with huge boulders, to a depth in some of which would have required the work of several men, but they had been driven along by the torrent as if they were pebbles.

Beneath some of the rocks lie the homes of the people of the valley and the hillside. Beneath them also are the little wooden church and the schoolhouse. Deep ravines score the hillside, dug by the rushing water and the swiftly moving rocks. The entire appearance of the peaceful valley has been changed by the deluge.

Henry Jack, manager of the power company which owned the dam, said the break could be repaired easily and the powerhouse would be running again in a week. The damage sustained by the company, he added, was minor. What troubled him was the destruction of the lives of persons among whom he had lived for a long time, and every man, woman and child of whom he knew.

MORE COUBERTIN MEDALS.

Baron Will Continue University Debate Prizes Here.

LUSANNE, Nov. 4 (AP).—It is the purpose of Baron Pierre de Coubertin to continue to offer medals in some American universities for competition by students in debate on subjects connected with current French politics.

For many years Baron de Coubertin has been offering these medals—the Finch medal at Princeton, the Pasteur medal at Harvard, the Carnot medal at Tulane, the Tocqueville medal at Johns Hopkins and the Joffre medal at California.

Recently he was thinking of ceasing the gifts, believing interest in them had died out. He received so many requests from young Americans to continue them, however, that he has now decided to do so.

The revival of the Olympic Games was due to the efforts of Baron de Coubertin. He recently resigned as President of the Olympic Games Committee, an office he had held for many years.

VENIREMEN SHUN MACRI JURY SERVICE

ONLY ONE IN THE JURY BOX

Special to The New York Times.

LITCHFIELD, Conn., Nov. 4.—Just before the end of the second day of Olympia Macri's second trial for murder this evening the electric light system in the village failed. As the courtroom was suddenly plunged into darkness a big bailiff stepped up behind the chair in which the defendant sat and stood there until temporary lights were procured.

A lantern was set on the railing of the witness box, a flashlight was held for the stenographer and a candle cast a faint illumination over the press table. The lights came on again a few minutes after Judge Hinman adjourned court.

One juror was selected from fifteen veniremen yesterday, but none was obtained today out of the sixteen men placed on the stand.

In this little town, where wealthy New Yorkers hold much of the land, resentment is shown against the invasion of the New Haven murder case, growing out of the slaying of John Bagnano, alleged father of Miss Macri's child. The women are especially aroused over the present spectacle, and they seem to have influenced the men from this vicinity who have appeared for examination.

Todays' panel of possible jurors was excused until tomorrow, and the men summoned for tomorrow will not have to attend until Friday, when a new batch will be drawn.

These new veniremen who are to be in court Monday will be of a different sort it is predicted. They will come from Northwestern Connecticut ,and they will be accepted or the twenty-five peremptory challenges permitted each side will be exhausted.

William J. Hunt, the lone juror accepted yesterday, was permitted by the Court today to go to his home in Bethlehem and remain until Friday.

Olympia Macri will not plead guilty to any manslaughter charge, it was said today, and the defense will battle to the end for an acquittal. This disposes of rumors of a sudden termination of the case which began when the girl shot Bagnano at New Haven last February and continued when the jury in her first trial at New Haven last May disagreed, 11 to 1.

One of the few breaks in the monotonous routine proceedings came this afternoon when Daniel L. Barber of Goshen was called for examination. It developed that Mr. Barber was a fellow officer years ago in the National Guard with the State's Attorney, A. A. Alling, who is prosecuting the murder charge.

"Well, Captain, how are you? I haven't seen you in nearly twenty years," was Colonel Alling's greeting.

"Just twenty-eight years," Mr. Barber corrected him. "I'm pretty well. How are you?"

"As I haven't seen you for so long, may I ask if you are married?" inquired Colonel Alling.

"Still," replied Mr. Barber.

TO OPPOSE SCAFFA'S MOVE.

Pecora Will Fight Demurrer to Indictment in Donahue Gem Theft.

Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora began yesterday to prepare briefs in opposition to a demurrer which is to be filed with Judge Talley in General Sessions next Thursday by counsel for Noel G. Scaffa. An indictment charges Scaffa with compounding a felony in connection with the return of $685,000 in jewelry stolen last month from Mrs. James P. Donahue's suite in the Plaza.

The demurrer, it was understood, would contend that no charge that a crime was intended was contained in the indictment and that the indictment was generally faulty. Answering a question whether somebody higher up than Scaffa might be brought into the case, Mr. Pecora said:

"The investigation by the Grand Jury did not end with the indictment of Scaffa. It is still open. To discuss what we propose to do before the Grand Jury would be to try our cause in advance in the newspapers. This I will not do. It is sufficient to state that the investigation is still open."

GIVE AUTO TO DR. STIRES.

St. Thomas's Parishioners to Make Other Presents to Rector.

The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, retiring rector of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, who on Nov. 24 will be consecrated Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Long Island, has received an automobile from the parishioners of St. Thomas's. The car will be ready for Dr. Stires today. It has on it the seal of the Diocese of Long Island.

Among the members of the committee which arranged for the gift were Charles A. Stout, Clerk of the Vestry; William A. Kissam and John J. Watson, vestrymen. Two sets of bishop's vestments will be a gift from women of St. Thomas's. The clergy of the Diocese of New York will present to Dr. Stires his Episcopal ring, which will be of sapphire. The Chairman of this committee is the Rev. Robert S. Wood, rector of St. Mary's Church, Tuxedo.

A dinner will be given in honor of Dr. Stires by the Rev. Dr. Alexander G. Cummins, rector of Christ Church, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., next Monday evening in the University Club.

NEIGHBORS HELP MACKINS.

Sister of Missing Boy Still in Serious Condition From Burns.

The condition of Agnes Mackin, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mackin, who was removed to Bellevue Hospital from her home at 350 West Thirty-ninth Street on Tuesday after being badly burned, was said last night to be still serious.

The little girl is a sister of 5-year-old Frankie Mackin, who disappeared from his home a week ago last Sunday and for whom the police are still searching. In leaning over the kitchen stove a celluloid necklace caught fire, igniting the child's clothing. Her mother's hands were severely burned in extinguishing the flames.

Neighbors of the stricken family continued yesterday to contribute for their relief. THE TIMES acknowledges receipt of $10 for the injured girl and the family from a woman who does not wish her name mentioned, as a contribution in memory of a "dear son."

In Aid of Dead Policeman's Family.

There will be a benefit performance at the Martin Beck Theatre on Sunday night, Nov. 15, in aid of the widow and children of Charles Singer, the traffic policeman who was killed on duty a week ago. The performance is sponsored by the Eighth Avenue Association, Inc.

MORSE WILL WORK FOR A NEW CHARTER

Westchester Commissioner Willing to Support Another Plan if Voters Want It.

HOME RULERS MARK TIME

Future of Body Which Fought Project to Be Decided Next Week —Democratic Gains Shown.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Henry R. Barrett, Chairman of the Westchester County Government Commission, and William L. Ward, Republican leader, were silent today about the defeat yesterday of the Westchester County Charter, but Winfield L. Morse, one of the members of the commission, said he would work for the appointment of another commission to draft a new charter.

Mr. Morse, who voted against the acceptance of the charter by the commission, said he would support a movement for a new charter if the voters signified they wanted it, although, he added, he believed there was no need for a new form of government in the county. The Legislature must authorize the Board of Supervisors to appoint a commission, and should one be appointed next year, it was pointed out, it would require at least eight or ten years before the new form of government could become operative.

Official figures on the charter vote, amendments and county officers will not be available until tomorrow, because several up-county townships did not bring in their figures until closing hour today.

Richard H. Lee of Pelham, Chairman of the Home Rule Association of Westchester County, which opposed the charter, said the future of the organization would be determined at an executive meeting next week.

"The Home Rule Association was established as a permanent body," he said. "While it is true that it initiated formal opposition to the charter, its real purpose is to provide a leader in the fight for the protection of the interest of the people of the county. Before another charter is drawn an intensive study of the present government should be made. It is not sufficient to say it is old. The fact that it has stood through the years may prove its virtue. Certainly its defects should be made apparent before any act is drawn to correct them. Every section of Westchester County has its individual problems.

"The defeat of the charter shows that the people of the county are unwilling to accept a makeshift charter which accomplishes nothing but political control. As a result of this election it is to be hoped that the Supervisors of the county will make more of an effort to give the people what they want and listen less to the commands of political leaders."

The Republicans lost three members of the Board of Supervisors, having thirty-three members on the board against thirty-six at the last election. The Democrats elected eight men against five at the last election, but surprisingly, were defeated for the first time in twenty years in Mount Pleasant Township, where Winfield L. Morse lost to Charles J. Morasco. This was attributed to the failure of John J. Sinnott, minority leader of the Board of Supervisors, to run for re-election. Mount Pleasant also gave a majority against the charter.

The Democratic gains were made in the election of William Winn, John F. Ryan and James A. Sullivan of Yonkers, James N. Strang of Yorktown and Herbert Tompkins of Cortlandt, who defeated David S. Murden, majority leader of the Board of Supervisors.

MOODY MOVES TO STOP TEXAS ROAD CONTRACTS

Action Involves 31 Counties—Grand Jury Expected to Return Indictments.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 4.—Suits for the cancellation of highway contracts awarded by the State Highway Commission will be filed by Attorney General Dan Moody tomorrow.

The petition embraces 15,000 words and its preparation was finished this evening. It is not publicly known how many counties are involved in the suit, but it is said that it will be directed against the contracts, covering thirty-one counties, which were awarded the American Road Company.

Recovery of alleged excess profits of that firm, amounting to $436,800 also will be sought, it is understood.

The Travis County Grand Jury, which is investigating Governor "Ma" Ferguson's administration, took a recess until next Monday, when, it is expected, a number of indictments will be returned.

TO OPEN WEST VIRGINIA PITS

Consolidation Coal Co. Will Run Two Mines on 1917 Pay Basis.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Two additional mines of the Consolidation Coal Company are being cleaned up preparatory to resuming operations under the 1917 wage scale, the company announced today.

Orders to reopen the Monongah and O'Donnell Mines, the company reported, followed the negotiations of an agreement on wages and working conditions by separate miners' associations representing the employes of the two pits.

Officials of the United Mine Workers denied there had been any break in their ranks. A union statement said the men who signed an announcement of the negotiation of an agreement were not members of the union.

TO ABOLISH HONOR SYSTEM.

Rutgers Students Disapprove It Because of "Squeal Clause."

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 4.—The honor system in tests and examinations, adopted at Rutgers five years ago, is to be abolished at the institution, according to a decision reached today at a meeting of the undergraduate body of the men's college.

The system failed to succeed, chiefly because of the objection to the so-called "squeal clause," which obligated a student to report any irregularities in classroom conduct.

It is believed that some time in the future a new honor system with this clause eliminated will be established.

No Democratic Votes in Hobart, Ind.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 (AP).—Only 700 persons in Hobart, Ind., with a population of 3,600 voted at yesterday's municipal election, and not one voted Democratic.

The Republican ballot was the only one, and has been the only one in effect officers in Hobart since it was incorporated as a town four years ago. David Livingston was elected Mayor.

BUTTER AND EGG TRAIN ARRIVES FROM OMAHA

New York City can find a great new larder, one which can also serve direct, in Western wheat States which hard times have forced into diversified farming. This message accompanied a $500,000 fifty-car shipment to the metropolitan market of live and dressed poultry, butter, eggs and dairy products from Nebraska which left Omaha Nov. 1 and was scheduled to arrive at the Erie freight terminal at Jersey City last midnight. The message was from Governor A. McMullen, and will be delivered to Mayor Hylan at City Hall today, according to plans of a party of Nebraskans aboard the special train.

D. L. Gray, Vice President in charge of traffic of the Erie Railroad, said this was the first attempt ever made to send a solid train of these products to New York from the food reservoirs beyond the Mississippi River. Mr. Gray said that the "butter and egg" special was routed by way of the Rock Island Lines over the Omaha-Chicago leg, and "came Erie," in freight parlance, from thereon.

The train carried a banner for its non-stop trip which reads: "This train carries a $500,000 breakfast for New York, ordered from Nebraska, sponsored by the Nebraska Poultry, Butter and Egg Association, Will W. Blackman, Fremont, Nebr, President." Cars attached to the rear carried twelve Nebraska boosters. They announced that they would inform the East that the present growth of diversified farming in the Mississippi basin, supplemented as it was by Red Ball fast freight service, provided a new and wider radius to the food supply of the Middle Atlantic States.

Advance spokesmen emphasized that the "butter and egg men" from Nebraska had their minds on the West and Washington Streets produce market rather than on Broadway.

WIDOW'S FUND INCREASES.

Mrs. McGauley Gets $45 and Food for Four Children.

Mrs. Mary McGauley will not have to throw stones through any more grocers' windows to get food for her four children while she waits for the city to pay her husband's insurance due since his death on Oct. 5. She said yesterday at her home at 344 East Twenty-second Street that during the day she had received additional supplies of food and $45 from persons who had read of her plight.

When the widow was arraigned for trying to take food from a grocer's window to keep herself and her children from starvation, the Magistrate discharged the complaint and newspapers printed stories of the circumstances. On Tuesday the woman received nearly $50 and boxes of provisions and with yesterday's additional gifts, she said she felt sure she could care for her children until her claim had been adjusted. She expressed thanks to those who had helped her.

Mrs. McGauley's husband had been employed in the Department of Health as a laborer. The amount due her is estimated at about $1,200.

PRAISES BRITAIN FOR PEACE

Its Efforts Not Appreciated Here, Sir John Power Says.

The part played by Great Britain in bringing about the recent treaties in Europe has not been appreciated in the United States, according to Sir John Power, member of Parliament and delegate of the Inter-parliamentary Union, who spoke yesterday at a luncheon of the Canadian Club. "If I believed all I read in the American newspapers," he said, "I should believe that we are a decadent nation, a set of dolts not able to manage our affairs.

"Whatever finally brought Germany to her senses," he went on, "was largely due to the influence of Great Britain, a wonderful achievement that I have been astonished to find has been regarded here with complete indifference. I am surprised there is so little sympathy for what we are doing."

The speaker declared that Wilson's policy of self-determination was the root of the evil days following the war. "He was the greatest idealist of his time, but with too little executive ability," he said. "His theory of self-determination was a bomb he threw into the world, and after the mess caused by its explosion the United States withdrew."

RESEARCH SAVES MILLIONS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—About $35,000,000 is spent annually by American manufacturers in research work, and probably $500,000,000 annually is saved as a result of such researches, according to estimates given out today by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Describing some of the principal research activities now in progress, the chamber said that the majority of trade associations were spending above $20,000 each annually in cooperative research, while expenditures by large corporate units are much more.

The National Canners' Association reported $120,000 as its yearly research budget, while the Portland Cement and National Lime Associations each accounted for $100,000. Heavy permanent investments in laboratories also were reported.

COURT CALLS MRS. TURNER.

Must Explain What She Did With $20,000 for Mine "Death."

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 4.—Vice Chancellor Buchanan signed an order today requiring Mrs. Margaret H. Turner to appear before a special master for cross-examination regarding the disposition of $20,000 paid her by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company for the supposed death of her husband, William H. Turner, in a mine explosion in Kentucky.

In answer to a bill instituted by the insurance company for an accounting of her assets, Mrs. Turner said that $10,000 had been taken to Hungary by her father, Joseph Tack Sr., to be invested in real estate. She said she had not heard from her father since he left, on Sept. 22. She declared that the remaining $10,000 was deposited in the Mercer Trust Company here.

Counsel for the insurance company, in opposing modification of the decree, said that Mrs. Turner knew, prior to the mine explosion, what her husband was planning to do.

SURRENDERS IN RUM CASE.

Herman Chemical Company Head Held in $10,000 Bail.

Theodore I. Schwartzman, President of the Herman Chemical Company, 222 Adams Street, Brooklyn, surrendered to the Federal authorities yesterday and was released in $10,000 bail on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Recently forty-seven barrels of alcohol were said to have been stolen from the company. Investigators reported that the stolen goods had been removed by employes acting under orders, Edward Kaufman, the watchman, Adam Eckhardt and Charles Di Salvo, drivers, were held in $5,000 bail each.

SUBWAY FIRE GIVES RIDERS A BAD SCARE

HALF-HOUR TIE-UP ENSUES

Short Circuit Causes Trouble for Firemen—Police Get No Reports of Injuries.

Acrid smoke from burning insulation on one of the cars of a southbound express on the Interborough west side subway at Columbia University station caused a brief panic about noon yesterday and sent several hundred persons hurrying to the street. The smoke filled the subway station and tied up traffic on the south-bound line nearly half an hour.

After a short circuit, which resounded like a pistol shot in the train, the insulation on a shoe beam caught fire and it was about twenty-five minutes before firemen under Battalion Chief Bentley put out the blaze. Meanwhile the burning insulation sent off billows of heavy smoke and trains jammed the south-bound tracks between 116th and 137th Streets.

Trouble developed in the train after it drew out of the 125th Street station. The passengers heard sputterings and saw sparks as the train drew into the 116th Street station, where about 300 Columbia students were on the platform.

The motorman apparently experienced some difficulty in getting the train started. There was a booming sound as the short circuit occurred and immediately dense clouds of smoke filled the train.

Women screamed and the guards flung open the doors. Passengers dashed up the steps to the street through thick, black smoke which rolled through the station and up into the street, causing considerable excitement on Broadway. Patrolman William O'Neill of Traffic A turned in an alarm of fire and then ran to the station, where he tried to calm the crowd.

In a few minutes the fire apparatus arrived and the firemen started work. The power was turned off in that section of the subway and except for the dense smoke the firemen had no difficulty in putting out the blaze. No injuries were reported to the police.

EXTRA TRAINS ON SUBWAYS.

New Brooklyn Express Schedule for Rush Hours Brings Relief.

The schedule of increased service during rush hours on the Brooklyn lines of the Interborough subway went into effect at 6:30 yesterday morning, bringing relief to thousands of passengers. Little confusion attended the addition of express trains. Express service was reported as running on a headway of between three and four minutes.

Under the new schedule the East Side-Lexington Avenue expresses extended operation through Atlantic Avenue to Utica Avenue, instead of terminating at the former station. Franklin Avenue is now the only stop between the two. Service to Flatbush Avenue and New Lots Avenue, furnished by west side trains, was also increased, although trains made all local stops in Brooklyn as usual. The schedule will be in effect daily from 6:30 to 9 A. M. for Manhattan bound trains, and from 5 to 7 in the evening for Brooklyn bound trains.

Boulder (Col.) for a City Manager.

BOULDER, Col., Nov. 4 (AP).—The city manager form of government was upheld by a majority of 425 votes in yesterday's nonpartisan municipal election. Voting upon an amendment to the city charter which would have made the City Manager responsible to the City Council was the feature of the balloting.

RADCLIFFE GIRLS GIVE OPINIONS ON HARVARD

In Writing 'Crime' Column of the Crimson They Answer Male Jokers.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4.—Radcliffe's opinion of Harvard and its students is given in the "Crime" column of The Crimson, released for publication tonight. The column is written by the girls of Radcliffe and gives them an opportunity to get back at some of the jokes of which they have been the butt.

One paragraph in "Crime" reads:

"If you see a slouching figure shuffle up the street; if you perceive a face, rough within an unshaven growth and half-hidden under a fish-peddler's hat; if you stand up in a subway train while the man seated in front of you gazes blankly, but with a distinct motive, at the advertisements; if you receive a Dempsey-like punch in the ribs as you try to get out of the door; if you step off the boardwalk into the mud to let him pass; if his taste runs to widows—my dear, you have discovered a Harvard man, lord of the earth."

Another miss wrote:

"There are, so our Lampoon philosophers inform us, certain trials in life that men and women cannot pass. Examinations, for instance. In commenting upon this, we would say there are one or two things in particular that a Harvard man cannot pass gracefully:

"1. A football.
"2. A bargain counter.
3. Out."

Another girl offers three verses, the first of which is:

I sing of the Harvard lampoon,
The home of the fool and buffoon,
Whose humors confounded,
With insult unbounded,
And sung to a doggerel tune.

Still another offered to present photographs of the twelve prettiest girls in Radcliffe to be entered against members of the Lampoon in a beauty contest.

The strike of Vienese bakers, which has been in effect for two days, has given rise to numerous street corner squabbles and the police and gendarmes have been obliged to interfere in many cases.

Strike pickets are reported to have handled roughly travelers suspected of attempting to bring bread into the city.

BIG BUYING WAVE SETS NEW RECORDS

ance of advances, also showed several declines.

To the average observer of the stock market the advances which have taken place and the broad markets which have developed are no less than a "seven-day wonder" because of the fact that it is only on the stock market that such wild speculation is evident. It is entirely absent from the commodity markets and from other markets which should respond to improved business conditions which now are evident. Nevertheless, the continued advance of the motor and steel shares seems to have fired the speculative imagination of the country in unprecedented fashion.

Taken as a group, the automotive industry probably is the most prosperous in the country at the present time because of the sustained demand for its product. This seems to have infiltrated the country to such an extent that present prices for automotive shares appear "cheap" to the speculative mind. Yet motor stocks as a whole are selling far above their intrinsic value as measured by actual return in dividends.

List of Most Active Stocks.

Of the fifteen most active stocks on the Exchange yesterday eleven established new high records. The record of transactions in these issues was as follows:

33,100	Beth. Steel	42⅝	41⅛	42⅛ +1⅛
83,500	Dodge, Bros.	26⅝	26⅛	26⅝ +⅜
121,600	General Motors	142⅝	139⅜	142⅜ +2⅝
78,600	Hudson Motor	128	120	126 +5
24,800	Hupp Motor	20⅝	19⅝	20⅛ +⅝
131,500	Inter Combust.	56⅜	51⅝	55¾ +3⅞
62,500	Inter Nickel	41⅛	39⅞	41⅛ +2
40,300	Montgom Ward	85	79½	81½ +2½
40,100	Pan Am Pet B	75⅜	72⅝	75¼ +2⅝
51,200	Studebaker	67	63⅝	67 +3⅜
27,900	United Cigars	81⅛	79¾	81⅛ +1⅜
167,900	U S Steel	134⅛	128	134⅛ +6⅛

The market yesterday, large as to volume, was very orderly. There were a few sharp fluctuations apparent here and there throughout the list, but as a rule, the progress of the market was made in methodical fashion in response to the buying and selling orders received on the floor of the Exchange. Most of the day the ticker was far behind the market. It has become virtually impossible to "trade from the ticker." Many suggestions have been made with a view to speeding it up and the probable result of this will be a separation of the industrial stocks from the railroad issues and a duplication of tickers, despite the expense attached to the change.

Ample Funds for Loans.

Market conditions continue favorable, and so far as is evident on the surface, no natural or artificial restraint is likely to be placed upon present speculation. Call money rates yesterday were at 5 per cent., at which price ample funds were available for brokerage loans. In addition to this as a bullish factor, the dividend and industrial news of the day was entirely favorable. It included several extra dividends and a multitude of corporate earnings statements showing net income far ahead of last year.

So far as actual conditions are concerned there is said to be little danger in the present market, because of the fact that margins have been so well maintained. Stock Exchange houses as a rule have tightened up their requirements measurably during the last few days in fear of a break in the market which might impair their position through large amounts of stock carried by their customers. In practically every case precarious situations have been corrected.

The question most frequently asked in the financial district is how long the present market can last at its present pace, which is widely admitted to be a headlong one and entirely abnormal. Public participation is on such a wide scale and so insistent is its demand for stocks that it is this feature which is being given the most attention at present. Artificial or natural breaks may develop within the next few days. Nevertheless, at the close of the market yesterday, Wall Street as a whole had lost none of its bullishness of the last few months and was inclined to predict even higher prices than these which ruled yesterday. This attitude which has been accepted as "blue skies" in the speculative game.

BERRY TO CONTINUE AS COAL BOARD HEAD

DELAY SOFT-COAL LESSONS

Monaghan Has No Funds to Teach Public How to Use Substitutes for Anthracite.

Major Gen. Charles W. Berry, Controller-elect, probably will continue as Chairman of the State Coal Commission until Jan. 1, at least, if the anthracite shortage continues that long, it was learned last night. When he assumes his new duties as head of the city Finance Department, the question of whether he will have time to retain the fuel post, it was said, will be decided by Governor Smith and will largely depend upon how serious the coal situation is at that time.

General Berry said last night that he believed the Governor would want him to continue his work with the Coal Commission until the first of the year because of the various measures he now has pending to protect the public in the fuel emergency. He was unable, however, to express an opinion as to his availability after that time.

Inference was drawn in coal circles that if anything like the acuteness which marked the fuel situation in 1922-23 developed this Winter the need of providing a successor for General Berry would be regarded as inevitable.

Requires Much Time.

The work of a Fuel Administrator in New York State when conditions were severe was pronounced strictly "a full-time job." William H. Woodin, President of the American Car and Foundry Company, and General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, the administrators three years ago, one a volunteer and the other a paid official, could both testify to this from their experiences, it was said. Equally, it was seen, the pressure of the Controllership would scarcely permit time to any but the lightest outside responsibilities.

Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Health Commissioner, said yesterday that establishment of "demonstration rooms" where the public could receive free instruction in the proper burning of soft coal or other substitutes for hard coal was largely a question of dollars and cents. A city appropriation would be necessary, Commissioner Monaghan said, to carry out the plan which General Berry reported was being tried out in up-State cities. Leases of store space and the cost of stoves and fuel while experts built sample fires for public guidance "would cost money," he declared, and as at present the city had no available funds for such a purpose he appeared to doubt whether the plan could be carried out here.

Commends Soft Coal Users.

Commissioner Monaghan had a word of commendation for consumers here in the discretion he said they had thus far shown in taking advantage of his lifting of the smoke ban. He pointed to the skyline as the best evidence that consumers who had turned to soft coal in place of anthracite were not abusing the new privilege.

The Health Department, Dr. Monaghan said, had so far received about 200 applications from householders in distress through lack of coal. All had been promptly taken care of, he said. The Commissioner further disclosed that he had received many free-will letters from coal dealers in the fire boroughs, offering relief in any cases where there were hardship.

Senator Royal S. Copeland in Washington yesterday urged Government intervention in the coal situation if necessary. He added a hope that President Coolidge would find it possible to use his good offices in solving the problem. He was opposed to Government ownership or operation of mines as a matter of policy, he said, but he emphasized that the present situation called for prompt relief measures. "People are sick and tired of these biennial disturbances in the anthracite fields," he said. "They want an uninterrupted flow of coal."

DENIES LAXITY IN DETROIT.

Prohibition Head Calls Charges by His Assistant 'Exaggerated.'

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 4 (AP).—E. L. Porterfield, Federal Prohibition Administrator for Ohio and Michigan, said today he believed laxity of law enforcement in Detroit was greatly exaggerated in statements attributed to A. B. Stroup, resigned deputy administrator of the Detroit district. He said conditions were not nearly as bad in Detroit as in other large cities of the country.

"The liquor law violations in Detroit are conducted under cover and not in the open as in the large Eastern cities," he declared. "It necessarily follows that liquor is harder to procure under such conditions and also harder to intercept."

Mr. Porterfield said that Mr. Stroup's formal resignation had not as yet reached him, and that it was likely it would not be effective until Jan. 1. Part of the intervening time, however, may be used by Mr. Stroup as a vacation, since he is entitled to a month's leave, the Administrator added.

T. H. Brennan of Detroit, who has been Deputy Administrator at Grand Rapids, will take charge of the enforcement office at Detroit. Mr. Brennan was formerly chief enforcement officer under the old Federal enforcement plan of State areas.

Fred Cronenwet of Grand Rapids is Acting Deputy Administrator at Grand Rapids, following the advancement of Mr. Brennan. Mr. Cronenwet was formerly group chief in Grand Rapids under the old plan of enforcement.

Nurse is Victim of Poison.

Miss Josephine Boylette, a nurse, 19 years old, of 207 Hickory Street, Orange, N. J., was taken yesterday from the home of Mrs. Mary Sincovich at 452 West Seventeenth Street to Bellevue Hospital, suffering from bichloride of mercury poisoning. Mrs. Sincovich said the young woman collapsed a few minutes after her arrival.

ENRIGHT PROTESTS FREEING GAMBLERS

Asks Banton to Inquire Into Discharge of 19—Wants Evidence Reintroduced.

DESCRIBES ONE RESORT

Says $10,000,000 Was Bet There Since Last April by Business Men, Tradesmen and Clerks.

Martin Dolphin, Assistant Corporation Counsel and legal adviser to Police Commissioner Enright, made public last night a copy of a letter which, he said, had been sent to District Attorney Joab H. Banton on Oct. 30 by Commissioner Enright requesting an investigation of the action of Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky on Oct. 6 last in discharging nineteen men who had been arrested on gambling charges. The letter also asks that evidence gathered by a detective of the Special Service Division in five visits to an alleged gambling house in West Sixty-ninth Street, near Broadway, between August and September last be laid before the Grand Jury for indictment of the nineteen.

Edward C. Cone, the plain clothes man, Mr. Enright says in the letter, had made bets in the place on each visit, after having passed three sentinels and steel doors through the introduction of a patron of the place under a fictitious name and showing a photograph of himself.

The letter also alleges that since the place was opened for gambling last April more than $10,000,000 has been wagered there on horse racing, roulette, faro and other gambling games. Paraphernalia used in these games, the letter continues, was seized in a raid on the place on Sept. 22 on warrants obtained by Cone.

Says Evidence Is Sufficient.

Commissioner Enright contends that the testimony of Cone and Deputy Inspector McAuliffe, who stood across the street and saw the plain clothes man enter the place on each of the five visits, backed by the gambling implements, should have been sufficient to cause ten of the prisoners at the hearing before Magistrate Brodsky in the west side court on Oct. 6 last to be held on felony charges of violating the gambling law and the other nine under the misdemeanor clause of that law.

The letter in telling of several postponements of the hearing of the case at the request of Assistant District Attorney McGee, adds that Mr. McGee was not present when the hearing was conducted by Magistrate Brodsky on Oct. 5 and 6, and that Assistant District Attorney George Ewald refused to take part in the presentation of the evidence to the Magistrate by the police, although on at least one occasion he was in court while the proceeding was on.

The letter then goes on:

"Upon all the facts stated and upon the record of all the proceedings had in this Magistrate's Court and the manner in which this proceeding was conducted, I respectfully ask that you cause an investigation as to whether or not this proceeding was conducted according to law and as to the regularity of the proceeding, and that you cause the charges against these defendants to be properly presented before a Grand Jury, to the end that the defendants may be dealt with according to law.

"I am informed that during all the gambling in this house it was conducted under the protection of an injunction issued by a Justice of the Supreme Court. The persons who owned and maintained and conducted the place are known as notorious crooked gamblers. The place was conducted on a wholesale scale, hundreds of bets being received each day, many of them sums as high as $5,000, $10,000 and $15,000.

The place is systematically organized with many employes, and equipped with every modern gambling device.

Called Resort of Criminals.

"The large sums waged each day as shown by the records seized on these premises were taken from business men, small tradesmen, trusted clerks and other employes of business houses, and without doubt has been the cause of the loss of both the stock and savings of small tradesmen and the cause of the stealing of money by trusted clerks.

"This and like gambling dives are the resort of hold-up men, burglars and criminals of every description. These dens are the 'fences' where money obtained by murder, highway robbery and burglary is brought and handed over to gangs of the most brazen, insolent and law-defying criminals in the city of New York.

"That these gamblers were relying on assurance of protection from interference by the police and immunity from punishment provided by law in the event they were arrested is shown by the fact that the admitted chief employe in the preliminary examination in the Magistrate's Court did not consider it necessary to put the defendants on the stand to deny the testimony of the officer witness, corroborated by the production of the gambling equipment, except that one of the defendants, George Miller, a 'sheet writer,' testified that he was a salesman and that he did not record bets for anybody."

Seven Tribes Send Charges Against Commissioner to Coolidge.

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 4 (AP).—Charges that Charles H. Burke, Commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington, "has knowingly and intentionally permitted the property of Indians to be misappropriated, wasted and squandered and that he has violated his duty as Commissioner of Indian Affairs in many ways," were made yesterday by representatives of the seven Montana Indian tribes at a powwow. They forwarded to President Coolidge a request for the removal of the Commissioner.

There are thirteen charges in the resolutions asking for Mr. Burke's removal, and with them is a request for "an opportunity to prove said charges," and the further request "that the Indian Bureau will not be allowed to investigate itself."

Among the charges against Mr. Burke is that he has deliberately and maliciously withheld tribal payments as punishment to Indians, and that he has deprived Indian children of their right to attend public schools.

PHYSICIAN ON TRIAL FOR SLAYING DAUGHTER

Defense for Poisoning Crippled Denver Paralytic, Aged 32, Will Be Insanity.

DENVER, Nov. 4 (AP).—Dr. Harold E. Blazer, aged 61, County Physician, today calmly watched State's Attorney Joel Stone begin the State's effort to convict him of the murder of his daughter, Hazel Blazer, 32 years old, a helpless cripple and paralytic, known as the "child woman."

The trial began this morning at Littleton, near here. No jurymen were chosen.

The prosecutor's first questions to prospective jurors sought to determine whether the fact that the victim was an imbecile and a helpless cripple would cause them to reject evidence that she was a human being.

"Did she or did she not have the right to live?" he asked.

On objection by the defense the Court warned the prosecutor against discussing probable testimony with prospective jurymen.

The prosecutor asked talesmen to determine whether they believed insanity could be caused by "personal contact with a malformed imbecile for thirty-two years."

Blazer's counsel had previously announced that the defense would be temporary insanity. The State charges Dr. Blazer killed his daughter on Feb. 24 by administering poison.

CALLS 9 'PARDONS' ILLEGAL.

Arkansas Governor Orders Arrest of Men Freed by Acting Executive.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 4 (AP).—Dee Horton, Superintendent of the Penitentiary Farm, today received orders from Governor Tom J. Terral to arrest and return to prison the nine persons pardoned recently by S. B. McCall, Acting Governor, during the absence from the State of Governor Terral.

A provision of the law requiring publication of the fact that application for pardon has been made was the basis for the action of the State's Chief Executive.

Governor Terral said legal requirements were not met by Mr. McCall when he granted the pardons, and that he expected the case would be fought out in the State Supreme Court.

Coast Guard patrol boats have all four vessels under surveillance.

REFUSES BOARD'S PROPOSAL

Head of Western of Maryland Road Rejects Strike Intervention.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 4.—Striking enginemen of the Western Maryland Railway are supporting a lost cause, Maxwell C. Byers, President of the road, notified the Labor Board today in a sharp letter defying further efforts of the board to arbitrate the strike.

As the Western Maryland is running freight and passenger trains 100 per cent. up to schedule with enginemen hired from other roads and there is no public inconvenience, Mr. Byers holds the Labor Board has no right to intervene.

Mr. Byers said in his letter:

"The movement of loaded cars per day for the last week has exceeded the business handled per day during September. All passenger schedules are being maintained and no freight embargoes have existed. The public is not, therefore, interested. Why should the Labor Board intervene further at the suggestion of the striking organization?

SYNODS CONFER ON MERGER

The commissions on a proposed merger of the three largest Lutheran bodies in this area held a special meeting yesterday morning in St. John's Lutheran Church, 81 Christopher Street. These bodies were the New York Ministerium, the New York Synod and the Synod of New York and New England.

After a discussion lasting three hours it was voted that no definite action should be taken until after the special meeting of the Ministerium. This will be held in Albany, beginning next Tuesday, to vote on whether the merger plan will be accepted.

The presiding officer at yesterday's meeting was the Rev. Hermann F. Miller, pastor of the Church of Our Saviour, Buffalo, N. Y., who is President of the Western Conference of the Synod of New York and New England. Dr. Traxler and the Rev. Dr. G. A. Bierdemann of Albany were appointed a press committee.

SHOT WHILE HUNTING DEER.

Watkins Man Seriously Wounded by Discharge of Companion's Gun.

TUPPER LAKE, N. Y., Nov. 4 (AP).—M. J. Pettingill of Watkins is in a serious condition in a local hospital as the result of a bullet wound in the abdomen received yesterday while he was hunting.

Companions carried the wounded hunter eighteen miles through the woods to Hollywood from the Raquet River region and thence twenty-eight miles by automobile to Tupper Lake. After an operation was performed early today the surgeon declared Mr. Pettingill had small chance of recovery.

The hunters were trailing a deer when the accident occurred. A rifle carried by a hunter behind Pettingill was discharged, the bullet passing through the latter's body.

STATE ALLEGES WOUNDS CAUSED GIRL'S DEATH

Prosecutor's Case Against Former Klan Leader of Indiana Is Completed.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 4 (AP).—The State rested its case late today against D. C. Stephenson, Earl Klesek and Earl Gentry, charged with the murder of Madge Oberholtzer of Indianapolis.

The action came at the end of a day devoted to obtaining testimony of physicians that the girl's death was due partly to the effects of wounds suffered at the time of an alleged attack by the former Ku Klux Klan leader.

Judge Sparks admitted the testimony of George Oberholtzer, the girl's father, given Thursday and objected to by the defense. The Court left in the record Oberholtzer's quotation of his daughter as saying that Stephenson and Gentry both held guns at her sides when they stopped in Indianapolis on the ride home from Hammond, and that Stephenson said to her: "I am the law in Indiana."

Dr. H. O. Marts and Dr. J. A. Warvel held the witness stand virtually all day. Both said they believed some cause other than self-administered poison contributed to Miss Oberholtzer's death, and Dr. Marts identified the contributing cause as an infection, alleged by the State to have resulted from wounds inflicted by Stephenson.

The defense obtained permission today to recall to the stand for further cross-examination Lee Ayers, day clerk at the Indiana Hotel at Hammond.

She came to this country and met Bohrloch, whom she married.

What is Charm?
in a host . . in a party . . or in a cigarette?

Webster defines charm as "that which is irresistibly pleasing." But that isn't the whole of it.

Charm is good taste without sham or pretense; genuineness without make-believe; enjoyment without dull moments; good fellowship without flattery.

Charm is quality without adulteration or alloy. It rings true because it is true—all through. In men or in merchandise, where you find all quality, you find all charm.

Science agrees that Nature planted her coolest, mildest and most fragrant cigarette tobacco in Oriental soil. MURAD does not temporize with this scientific fact; it doesn't mingle the best with the ordinary. Every flake of tobacco in MURAD is Turkish; so superiority is not simply a part in MURAD; it is its sum and substance.

Nearly every wide-selling cigarette contains some Turkish. But in MURAD, Turkish—and the best Turkish—is the entity of the cigarette.

BERENGARIA LANDS INJURED VOYAGERS

Passengers, Reaching Southampton, Describe Their Experiences in Hurricane.

ONLY ONE SERIOUSLY HURT

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—With ship and passengers bearing marks of the hurricane and mountainous seas which buffeted them about for two days during the voyage from New York, the giant Cunarder Berengaria arrived at Southampton today.

Among the twenty-six injured passengers was Dr. E. Johnson, who was wheeled ashore in an invalid chair with a broken arm, injuries to his side, probably including a broken rib, a bruised leg and stitches in his nose, where it had been badly cut in a fall during the hurricane. Dr. Johnson said he received his injuries last Saturday evening.

"The ship was violently rolling, pitching and tossing and every minute we could hear the thundering, mountainous waves as they crashed against the prow and stern," he said. "I was going downstairs when an especially violent roll threw me against a bulkhead."

Another passenger, E. Owen-Jones, editor of The Caxton Magazine and a delegate to the conference of printers at Chicago, narrowly escaped death.

"My bed was under a big electric fan," he said. "On the night of the storm I moved my bed, wishing to be nearer a porthole. I was awakened by crashes. I switched on a light and found the violent rolling had broken the fan away from its support, causing it to fall on the spot where my bed previously had been. Had I stayed there I would have been killed. I saw a porthole window more than three inches thick smashed to atoms by the waves."

Another passenger said:

"Crockery and furniture were thrown about like feathers. People in chairs were sometimes lifted bodily and knocked across the saloon."

An American financier took what his fellow-passengers called "an enforced sleigh ride" across the dining saloon in his chair and was returned to his interrupted dinner when the ship rolled in the opposite direction.

The hurricane lasted for three hours, and in addition the Berengaria for two full days bucked mountainous seas which crashed all over her, dislodged lamps and other fixtures, sent deck chairs scudding over the decks, whipped passengers off their feet, and knocked down stewards carrying trays, sending food, drink and crockery whirling through space.

All in all it was about the most exciting chapter in the whole history of the 52,000-ton Cunard liner, accustomed to plow through the angriest seas and merely shake herself like a big dog when hit by waves which knock other ships about like a toy.

All the passengers were enthusiastic in praising Commander Irvine and the Berengaria's officers and crew. At no time were there the slightest signs of panic.

At the Cunard offices here it was stated that one reason why the passengers were knocked about so much was that those traveling on the Berengaria and ships of similar size are so accustomed to rely on the steadiness of the vessel that they do not take the precautions usual on smaller boats. Therefore big waves often catch them sitting in deck chairs which are not lashed to the rail or walking about without holding onto something capable of supporting them.

The Cunard Company estimates the bill for broken crockery, &c., will be about $10,000.

DISAFFECTED FASCISTI INVADE PARIS MEETING

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—The Fascisti headquarters in Paris were invaded today by armed "Corsairs of Death," who described themselves as Republican Fascisti angered at their exclusion from the group because they did not entirely approve its doctrines and the actions of Mussolini.

The regular Fascisti of both sexes were meeting and wearing black shirts, when twelve young men with black shirts and bonnets broke into the hall, the only difference in costume being a red band across the shirt and a skull and cross bones design on the cap.

Demanding the Fascist banner of the Paris headquarters, the invaders learned that it was sent to Italy for the anniversary of Fascismo celebrations and after a picturesque speech, the "Corsairs" retired, though not without striking the secretary of the Paris Fascisti.

The entire group has been identified by the police, who expect to give them light sentences, to be followed with deportation as undesirables.

RUSSIAN PRINCE-CHEF ARRESTED IN PARIS

Golitzine, Former Duma Official, Pays Fine for Outrage to Police in Championing Actress.

PARIS, Nov. 4 (AP).—Prince Boris Golitzine, former Vice President of the Russian Duma, cousin of the late Czar Nicholas, but more recently employed as head chef in the Yugoslavian restaurant at the Exposition of Decorative Arts, ran afoul of the French law and has been fined 25 francs and costs. He acted as protecting knight to an actress who was taking up a collection in the restaurant.

Incidentally, the Prince was convicted of an "outrage to the police." A policeman had attempted to prevent the actress from taking up a collection, observing which the Prince-chef rushed from the kitchen and called the officer a various assortment of names and was placed under arrest.

Prince Golitsine was sentenced to death by the Bolsheviki in Russia, but escaped from a Moscow prison in 1923. He made his way to Norway and reached Paris penniless and found work at the exposition.

COURT RULES A WIFE MAY LEAVE HUSBAND

She Cannot Take Child, However, He Tells Mrs. Fernandes, and a Reunion Follows.

Mrs. Barbara Guevara Fernandes and her daughter, Maria Isabelle, 3 years old, were taken yesterday from the steamer Caracas, bound for Venezuela, to the Bronx Supreme Court on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by Mrs. Fernandes's husband, Manuel, of 735 East 132d Street. He said she was leaving him because her two maiden aunts had "come into their home and made trouble" and he objected to her taking the child with her.

Mrs. Fernandes first said she was leaving because her husband beat her and then she wanted to go to Venezuela because the climate there was good for lung trouble.

"There is nothing to prevent a wife from running away from her husband," said Justice McCook. "She can do it any time she likes, but she cannot take a child with her."

Mrs. Fernandes seemed on the point of waverin r. Her husband's lawyers suggested hey all go outside to discuss the matter. They soon returned and announced a reconciliation had been effected.

"We will go to some other locality where a Fernandes is a Fernandes and where my wife's aunts won't have so much to say," said Mr. Fernandes.

PLANES NOW PATROL CANADIAN BORDER

Help to Catch Smugglers of Liquor and Aliens Crossing Into This Country.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Nov. 4 (AP).—Aided by an airplane patrol, United States customs officers along the Manitoba boundary are waging a vigorous war on liquor runners and persons seeking to evade the immigration laws. The border patrol is very effective and, it is declared, has cut rum-running considerably, although evasion of the immigration laws has created a big problem.

During recent weeks a fast airplane has been seen by residents on the Canadian side of the border skimming along the line, spying out nests of "bootleggers" or watching the unwary automobile driver in an attempt he may make to cross the line by avoiding the regulations.

Many persons have been arrested for trying to evade the United States immigration laws, and according to an American inspector here there are 225 of them from Winnipeg and district in the jails of North Dakota and Minnesota. They may have to stay there several months until they get a hearing, because of changes in the law.

COOLIDGE CONSULTS BORAH ON MESSAGE

Such was the information contained in the brief official announcement made in behalf of the commissions today, but much more interest was attracted by the fact that Senator Borah, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, conferred with President Coolidge at the White House this afternoon. The nature of all the subjects discussed at this meeting was not made known officially, but it was understood that the Italian debt problem was among them.

Senator Borah was one of the leading opponents, in political circles outside the commission, of granting lenient terms to the French Government during the recent negotiations here. At that time he was reported in frequent conference with Senator Smoot, Republican leader and a member of the American Commission, who fought against acceptance of France's offer of $4,220,000,000 in repayment of her $4,400,000,000.

Would Have Borah Submit a Plan.

It has been suggested that it would be better to call Senator Borah before the American and Italian commissions and obtain his views, or have him submit in writing his own plan covering Italy's capacity to pay and other features of the debt problem, than to have the present negotiations threatened by what appears to be the ever-present fear that a tentative funding agreement might be rejected by the Senate because the terms were not satisfactory to Senator Borah.

That the Italian commission would be able to exact from the American commission or the Administration any promise that there would be a change of tariff rates to permit the influx of more Italian merchandise, or a change in the immigration laws which would permit more Italian emigrants to enter this country, as suggested in the first statement made by Count Volpi, was put aside today as impossible of accomplishments. In fact, it was accepted that the spokesman for the Italian mission put forward the suggestions only in the belief that they would serve as additional arguments for leniency.

The Administration is opposed to tariff tinkering and there seems little chance of any change in the immigration laws for the present unless the bans are to be drawn more tightly. Chief hope of a quick settlement of the Italian debt problem seems to die in a reported determination on the part of Secretary Mellon not to be left in the position of facing a second defeat, now that the French negotiations have failed and the desire of Italy, as set out in the preliminary statement of Count Volpi, is to obtain the use of American private capital in developing the industries of Italy.

Herrick Expects New French Move.

PARIS, Nov. 4 (AP).—After frequent contacts with members of the French Government since his vacation, American Ambassador Herrick is of the opinion that negotiations for settlement of the French debt to the United States, slightly delayed by the change in the Painlevé Ministry, will be resumed very soon in a spirit that will augur well for final agreement.

Mr. Herrick has been greatly impressed by the general feeling he encountered in official circles that the negotiations must be resumed and pushed to a successful and early conclusion.

Premier Painlevé is as anxious as any member of his Cabinet to get the troublesome problem out of the way, being thoroughly convinced that it is to France's interest that the debt be funded at the earliest possible moment.

COURT WILL RULE ON COVER CHARGES

Whether Patron Entering Cafe Before Hour for Fee May Be Taxed Later Is Basis of Suit.

PLAINTIFF TELLS OF DELAYS

Says He Was in Restaurant an Hour and Three-quarters—Case to Come Up Nov. 20.

Magistrate Oberwager will decide in the Harlem Court on Nov. 20 whether a patron who comes into a restaurant before the hour fixed for a cover charge may be assessed such a charge if he remains until the hour it is effective.

Robert Lader, a realty broker of 904 Fox Street, the Bronx, brought up the point in the West Side Court yesterday when he had August Janssen Jr., manager of the Hofbrau House at 1,684 Broadway, brought into court on a John Doe summons.

Mr. Lader testified he and a woman companion had been seated in the restaurant at 10:15 o'clock Saturday night. Their order, he said, was not taken until a half hour later. There was more delay, he continued, in serving the first course and they did not receive a check until almost one and three-quarter hours after they had entered the restaurant.

Then, he said, he gave the waiter $10 in payment of a check for $5.15 and received $2.85 change, the waiter explaining $2 addditional was retained for the cover charge. Mr. Lader said he protested because the cover charge should not have gone into effect until 11 o'clock and refused to accept his change.

Magistrate Oberwager directed attorneys for both sides to submit briefs after Mr. Janssen testified the cover charge did not go into effect until 11 o'clock, and said he would decide the case when he is sitting in Harlem Court.

SAYS YALE RESEARCH ANSWERS TENNESSEE

Dr. McCurdy Declares Evolution Theory Is Backed Up by Its Prehistoric Discoveries.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4.—"The New World might be swallowed up by the Atlantic and the Pacific without the loss of any essential evidence bearing on the origin and development of man," Dr. George Grant McCurdy, Director of the American School of Prehistoric Research, said today.

Our geographic isolation, according to Dr. McCurdy, separates us from the tangible evidence of the great antiquity of man. First-hand contact with this evidence can be had only by a trip to the Old World.

The Tennessee Anti-Evolution law, which resulted in the Scopes trial, is ascribed by Dr. McCurdy to American ignorance of the evidences of evolution which are common in Europe.

This evidence is being secured, Dr. McCurdy said, and is being brought to the attention of Americans by the School of Prehistoric Research. The students of the school traveled this Summer in England, France, Spain, Switzerland, Germany and Belgium, visiting museums, prehistoric sites and excavations.

The school conducted excavations in most of these countries, notably in the celebrated cavern of Altamira, Spain, one of the few places where paleolithic amber has been found. One of the students found additional deposits on this journey.

The school also explored Pile and Moor villages of the neolithic period in Switzerland. In Zurich the National Museum uncovered for the students benefit two tumuli of the early Iron Age known as the Hallstatt epoch.

CLEAR MACKINAC'S CAPTAIN.

Inspectors Absolve McVay and Engineer's Aid in Steamer Explosion.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 4 (AP).—Captain George W. McVay and George C. Mullen, assistant engineer of the excursion steamer Mackinac, on which a boiler exploded last August, taking a toll of fifty-three lives, today were found not guilty by Federal steamboat inspectors, who heard the evidence in their cases charging negligence in connection with the explosion. John A. Grant, chief engineer of the Mackinac, several weeks ago was found guilty of negligence and his Federal license was revoked.

The Federal inspectors ruled that Mullen had reported a leak in the boiler to Grant before the start of the fatal excursion and that Captain McVay had never been informed of the condition of the boiler.

Youth Kills Himself in Restaurant.

Charles Noble, 20 years old, of 859 East Thirty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, shot and killed himself yesterday in a restaurant at 1,051 Flatbush Avenue. About 2 o'clock in the morning Noble got out of a taxicab, entered the restaurant and ordered a meal. He went into a washroom and then a shot was heard. The proprietor found Noble stretched out on the floor, a revolver in his right hand. No motive for the suicide was established.

In our country the demand for quality is great. So when people learned how this master spring cradled the body in luxurious comfort, coaxing every nerve and muscle to relax, sales grew quickly.

So the savings of huge production in the world's largest bedding factories made possible a price of $19.75. At this price, The Ace, always unmatched in quality, is unmatched in value for the money.

Its 99 deep main spirals are made of the finest tempered spring steel, cross-tied at the tops with 160 sensitive coils. Adding to their comfort and lifetime service, the centers of The Ace spirals are also spring-tied. This gives each spiral complete freedom of movement under its own load. All other springs, if at all center-tied, use unyielding wire or steel strips.

At first glance you might miss these 142 extra springs. Sleeping on The Ace, however, will tell you they are there. Look for them before you buy. Look, too, for the patented Simmons stabilizers, which prevent sidesway, spreading and sagging.

SCAPEGOAT

By Ben Ames Williams

A single day's play last season had made Buck Owens all-American full-back.

And now men called him "yellow."

Yet, huddled in his blanket, without setting foot on the gridiron, Buck Owens won the big game from the sidelines . . . a feat to rank his name with such heroes as Johnny Poe and Walter Camp—Percy Haughton and Pat O'Dea.

BET-YOU-A-MILLION GATES

He swore he never said it—but the nickname so fitted his vivid individualism that he could never rid himself of it.

BRITISH UNIONISTS ADOPT PROTECTION

Party Leader Predicts That It Will Be National Policy Within Three Years.

COMMUNISTS LOOK MILD

Inoffensive-Appearing Young Radicals Do Not Impress Spectators at Hearing.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.
Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—A week of small things, apparently, except for what is being done at Locarno; but the French proverb anent the little streams that make the big rivers may hold true in regard to the happenings of these days. There are, at any rate, two matters that may be fraught with serious and great consequences: Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the Home Secretary, has opened his much-talked-of campaign against the Communists, and Lord Birkenhead has nailed the Unionist Party's colors to the mast of protection. It is worth noting that Stanley Baldwin does not commit himself to either policy, though he has allowed it to be understood that he looks upon both with a sympathetic, or benevolent, eye. The tariff reformers are certainly making headway—not so much among those who by practical experience and economic study are best qualified to form a judgment for themselves, but among those who are prone to accept any verdict handed down to them by what they can regard as competent authority; and these latter, of course, constitute the largest section of the electorate.

It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that the Protectionists are rather cock-a-hoop. I heard one of them predicting the other day that the country would turn protectionist within the next two years; and now Lord Birkenhead has put the period of transmogrification at two to three years. Of course this is what one expects to hear in London. But Manchester has not yet been heard from. In any case it may be taken as certain that the Prime Minister will tread warily.

As a politician he has one great mistake to make amends for—the mistake of precipitating a general election; and he is not likely to go wrong a second time in the same way. His processes are rarely impulsive. He is, of course, a convinced protectionist in theory, but in practice he prefers to see how things work out. He is giving a good deal of attention to the various applications of the Safeguarding of Industries act, by means of which special tariffs can be imposed to meet the requirements of particular industries. This "safeguarding of industries" is of course a veiled form of protection—it is the thing under another name. It is claimed that those British industries which are already "safeguarded" under the act show results justifying a large extension of its scope. Silk, artificial silk, lace, motor-cars and cycles, clocks and watches, musical instruments and films are already protected. Other trades which are clamoring for protection under the act are concerned with a wide variety of articles ranging from gas mantles to woolen fabrics.

These claims are all receiving consideration from special committees appointed in some instances directly by the Cabinet and in others by the Board of Trade. The committees are non-political in their complexion and may be expected to judge each application on its merits. In any case Stanley Baldwin is not the man to be jostled by the perfervid advocates of protection into any inexpedient policy. Once bitten, twice shy.

Perturbed Over Reds on Communists.

Although the Tories generally are putting up a bold front in regard to the "campaign" against communism, there is really some very considerable perturbation of spirit over the raid on some of the "Red" leaders this week. Sir William Joynson-Hicks has been talking so much of what he was going to do that it behooved him to do something. What he has done has not impressed the public greatly. The half dozen or so young men who have been arrested on charges of having conspired together with other persons to publish seditious libels, and of having conspired together to incite other people to breaches of the Incitement to Mutiny act of 1797, did not strike those who saw them at Bow Street Police Station as very dangerous types. It remains to be seen, naturally, what the Home Office batteries will amount to when they are unmasked. The idea in what are called well-informed quarters is that the prosecution will rest chiefly upon the distribution of certain leaflets to soldiers during the recent army manoeuvres.

I have seen one of these leaflets. I don't think its language would have made much impress upon the mind of the average Tommy Atkins, who is not the sort of fellow to worry overmuch about the fraternal relations of himself and other members of the proletariat. However, all this will "come out in the wash."

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of the whole affair is that one of the arrested men is John Ross Campbell, editor of a paper called The Workers' Weekly, who figured in proceedings which were quashed by the Ramsay MacDonald Government, and that new light may be thrown on that still much-discussed affair. If Sir William Joynson-Hicks comes out of the business with flying colors it will surprise a lot of people—if he doesn't his resignation will be in order, for the Prime Minister has merely allowed him to play his own hand and is in no sense his sponsor.

It is rather amusing to notice that one of the papers which had been most active in urging the Home Secretary to cope sternly with the "Communist menace" appeared on Thursday morning without a single line in its news columns about Wednesday night's raid; and this although Joynson-Hicks had, at a meeting of the Hounslow Amateur Dramatic Society, early that same evening, informed his audience that "warrants had been issued, and in the majority of cases had been executed, for the arrest of a certain number of notorious Communists."

It has been suggested that, as the Home Secretary was so eager for publicity that he had to unburden himself to the ladies and gentlemen of the Hounslow Amateur Dramatic Society, it would have been as well to have rung up the editor of the paper in question and "put him wise." Possibly the reason he didn't was that some days earlier "J." had been inveighing against "newspaper plutocrats."

Politicians Tilt With Newspapers.

Quite a number of politicians, by the way, have been running a tilt against certain newspapers which are notoriously critical of the Baldwin Administration. Those papers which, according to one of the politicians, are indulging in a "journalistic vendetta," do not, as a rule, print what is said about them, and other papers, with a lively sense of the utility of "hanging together" perhaps, generally refrain from publishing the unpleasant things said about their contemporaries. Thus the result is that where the newspaper criticisms are read by millions, the politicians' rejoinders are heard only by religious audiences. It will be interesting to see which is the more powerful in the long run—the press or the platform.

Apropos of newspapers, many members of what may be called the old school of journalism in this country are finding heart of grace in the fact that although the new journalism of small beer, sensationalism, snippets and snapshots continues to increase its multitude of readers, other papers which strive to maintain old traditions while purveying real news are not losing ground and are in fact making a substantial advance in regard both to circulation and advertisement revenue.

From a purely domestic point of view it is probable that the homecoming of the Prince of Wales is the most important event of the week. A million or so people stood in a drizzle to roar out a welcome to this "Ambassador of Empire." Contrast this with the two or three hundred young men and young women who gathered around the Bow Street Police Station to express their sympathy with those extremely dangerous fellows who are at the head of the Communist movement in this country, and who are now getting just the advertisement their souls crave—at the expense of the taxpayer! What chance would the red flag have against the white feathers of the Prince of Wales in a plebiscite or referendum?

Prince Gives Impression of Maturity.

People who came in more or less close contact with the Prince today appeared to think that the most striking change in him was one that cannot be accounted for by the six or seven months' lapse of time since he started on his tour—the fourth in a series which began with his visit to Canada and the United States in 1919. It is not that he has aged appreciably. Though obviously feeling the strain of his long succession of ceremonial duties, the Prince retains those characteristics of exuberant youth which have always been his peculiar charm. But he now gives an impression of maturity. One man who has known him closely for years said: "He has not grown old; he has grown." For some months to come he will seek as much rest and quiet as is compatible with the necessities of his very exacting rôle.

The Prince's return synchronizes with the awakening of a new spirit in the British outlook. The mood of pessimism is passing away; Englishmen have been taking stock of themselves. Even Professor Keynes is growing hopeful. His jeremiads over the return to the gold standard are now shot with a strain of hopefulness. He accepts the gold standard, because, as he says, there can be no going back; and he admits that, despite all the disadvantages resulting from a "mistaken notion" that British finance had to be able to look the American dollar in the face, the bases upon which British trade is built are sound and solid enough to justify an optimistic outlook. It looks as if Mr. Keynes had come to realize that the earthen pot of theory usually gets the worst of an encounter with the iron pot of practical business experience.

Among employers of labor on a great scale there is, also, a marked revulsion of feeling. Not so long ago the conversational small change of the day among business men was that cost of production could only be reduced by depression of wages. Experience has shown that unrest among the working classes caused by the apprehension of an organized onslaught on the standard of living was likely to prove more costly than a maintenance of existing scales of wages. Tory employers of labor are coming to the conclusion that the industrial peace for which Stanley Baldwin appealed is only possible by a process of give and take in which they have to play their part. The Labor Conference's exorcism of communism relieved much of the apprehension of the labor wolf entertained by the capital lamb, and there are many signs that the two may get together and make excellent bedfellows.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Announcement was made at the War Department today that army motor transport plants are to be closed by June 30 next, the end of the Government fiscal year, including Camp Holabird, Md., and Camp Normoyle, Texas, as well as the repair section of the San Francisco depot. The step will be taken as a measure of economy. Thereafter minor repairs to motor vehicles will be made locally by posts and depots while major repairs will be made by commercial concerns. The Quartermaster, Corps Motor Transport School at Camp Holabird will be transferred to the Quartermaster Corps School at Philadelphia.

PREMIER KING DECIDES TO FACE PARLIAMENT

Session Will Be Convened at the Earliest Possible Date, It Is Announced.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 4 (AP).—Official announcement is made that Premier Mackenzie King will meet Parliament, which will be convened at the earliest possible date.

In the recent elections the Liberal Party, of which Premier Mackenzie King is the head, elected 101 members, and the Conservatives 116, placing the Government in a decided minority. The Premier has been in conference with the members of his Cabinet and with the Governor General, but he declined to make public his intentions, whether the Government would retire or whether he would go into Parliament, with the hope of deriving enough support from other than the Conservatives to carry on.

LAYS THEFTS TO HYPNOTIST

Providence Girl Says She Played Trilby to Fiance's Svengali.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 4 (AP).—After Beatrice P. Griffin, 23 years old, of 40 Noyes Avenue, had admitted stealing goods from a department store and jewelry from a former employer, Judge Howard B. Gorham in District Court today ordered her plea changed to not guilty when she said that the thefts were committed while under the hypnotic influence of her fiance.

For a period of many months Miss Griffin said she has played Trilby to the Svengali rôle of Roy Edward MacLean of East Providence.

"I didn't want to steal, but my sweetheart urged me to, and I couldn't resist him. I'd do anything he wanted me to," the defendant sobbed.

MacLean was arraigned before Miss Griffin on charges of receiving stolen goods and, on his plea of not guilty, was ordered held in bond of $500 for trial Nov. 7.

"Every time I looked at him and he stood looking down into my eyes I knew that I just had to do what he said," declared the girl.

Her case has been continued for investigation until Nov. 7. Bail was set at $500.

AGRICULTURAL PRICES SAG.

Cotton and Corn Are Outstanding, Department Analysis Shows.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Some recent price changes in farm products were pointed to as the unfavorable factor in the farmer's outlook, in the view of the Department of Agriculture, as expressed in its November analysis of the agricultural situation.

"Prices of wheat, potatoes and various lesser foodstuffs are at a stimulating level," the department's statement said, adding that the same has been true of cotton although its price has sagged discouragingly in the month.

"Recent declines in corn prices also are discouraging to producers who depend upon feed grains for their income," the statement added.

Hogs and sheep were reported as selling on a moderately strong market and prices of both beef and dairy cattle as having tended upward this Fall.

Discussing agriculture as a whole, the statement said the farmer still meets resistance in his efforts to regain a relative equality of purchasing power with other economic enterprises. Wages and commodity prices in industry, in the department's view, remain higher than in agriculture. The department's index of purchasing power of farm products showed a 5 per cent. decline in September from the 1909-1914 average.

The corn belt was said to have been affected by cold weather and rains during the past month, while the planting of Winter wheat was seriously interfered with, some intended acreage being abandoned. Winter wheat stands appeared good through Kansas and Nebraska where Spring wheat threshing is practically finished.

Editor Held in Contempt Seeks Release.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 4 (AP).—A petition for a writ of habeas corpus to free Alfred Lindsley, editor of The Humboldt News, who is serving 1,000 days for contempt of court, was filed today in the Court of Appeals. Lindsley holds that no contempt was intended and that the Judge who sentenced him exceeded his jurisdiction and that the sentence is excessive. He was judged guilty of contempt of court for editorials and stories he published in connection with his trial on a charge of criminal libel.

DIVER BRINGS UP PURSE.

Woman Who Dropped It Overboard in Danish Port Recovers It.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday from Copenhagen and Oslo on the United States of the Scandinavian-American Line was Miss Sophie Eskildsen, of 600 Lexington Avenue, Manhattan, who had a mishap at the Danish port which almost caused her to miss the ship.

As she was waving goodbye to friends on the pier, her handbag containing purse, jewelry and papers, slipped out of her hand and dropped into the water. The gangway was hoisted again to the liner and the young woman went ashore to try to get her property.

A diver was hired and he went down and brought up the bag. Miss Eskildsen caught a night mail train for Oslo, the capital of Norway and reached there at noon next day in time to board the United States which called there for passengers and mails.

CREW OF ALGIERS SAFE.

17 Taken Off Blazing Ship by British Craft, Says Brief Message.

The first news of the fate of the seventeen members of the crew of the American coastwise freighter Algiers, which had been abandoned on fire last Sunday, was received yesterday at the Maritime Exchange, 80 Broad Street. It came through the United States Hydrographic Bureau in Washington and said that the crew had been picked up by the British freighter Rassay and would be landed at Queenstown. No details of the rescue were given.

Until the message was received there had been considerable anxiety in shipping circles, as there were no signs of life on board the Algiers when the Birmingham City circled around her blazing hull Sunday night.

Mrs. Dunn Freed in Husband's Death

Mrs. Emma Dunn, 55 years old, of 501 East 163d Street, held as a material witness in connection with the death of her husband, who was said to have been dead five days when found in his bed Monday, was released yesterday. She said she thought he was sleeping because of drinking and a fall. His skull was crushed. An autopsy will be made today at the Fordham Morgue.

Supposing,

You Were Yourself Like Us

would you be glad to hear that high up in the air of sunlight and white clouds, or safeguarded from the blows of Winter by the thickest of hollow-tile fireproof walls, a Home had been given you, a house with the latch up? To be allowed to walk in and be met by Sister-nurses eager to serve you themselves and make you comfortable with the best of everything—if you were like us!

The cancer patients who pray every day for a fireproof Home for 100 at their country place, might in this way cry out if they were asked to beg.

COLD WEATHER DRIVING DEMANDS A CLEAN MOTOR

3 Ways to Remove Carbon —the 1 Way to Prevent it!

Mechanical Carbon Removers

Oxygen Burning

BY far the most popular method of removing carbon from a motor is to burn it out with oxygen.

This is not only the cheapest but the quickest of the two mechanical methods of carbon removal.

The real drawback to perfect motor performance in this or any other method lies in the human tendency to put off the periodical treatments to such an extent that the motor becomes choked with carbon before action is taken.

Hand Scraping

SCRAPING away the carbon deposits with a scraping tool is considered by many motorists to be more desirable than burning, but naturally this method runs into time and quite a considerably greater cost.

And in the hands of an inexperienced repair man there is the danger of accidental injury to the delicate parts of the motor in the scraping process.

Like the "burning out" method the chief drawback to this method is the natural tendency to put it off until it just has to be done. In the meantime the motor suffers.

Chemical Carbon Removers

SINCE the early days of the internal combustion engine, chemical carbon removers have appeared periodically. Many of these have been different forms of camphor—some have actually been nothing but moth balls, which the makers claimed would remove carbon if dissolved in the motor's fuel.

A few of these balls burned in a saucer will literally fill the air with floating flakes of carbon.

Other chemical carbon removers have appeared from time to time, the more successful ones taking the form of dissolvents to be applied directly to the carbon deposits.

The flint-like carbon deposits can be gradually softened by chemical action so that the carbon is blown out through the exhaust, but this takes time. Any chemical powerful enough to do this quickly may injure the carefully machined surfaces of the motor's vital parts and therefore should be used with great caution.

When a motor is choked with carbon, have it removed by one or the other of the two mechanical methods shown here. Once clean, Boyce-ite will keep the motor clean, eliminating the necessity for periodical carbon removal.

Boyce-ite, while it is not a "carbon remover" will remove carbon—but it takes time. Therefore we recommend for quick, safe removal either burning out or scraping.

Boyce-ite

BOYCE-ITE is a fuel—better and more economical to use than plain gasoline. It is not a "carbon remover"—it prevents carbon from forming.

Boyce-ite does more than prevent carbon—it creates a super motor fuel—a fuel that will give uniformly smoother operation and a quicker start—a fuel that gets the maximum horsepower from a motor and real fuel economy.

The time to Start is Now with Cold Weather Coming On

On the first cold morning your car encounters an entirely new set of conditions. Your gas becomes sluggish, slow firing and because you must use your choke to get a start, enters the cylinders in practically a raw state.

The constant repetition of this makes for a rapid accumulation of carbon to clog and retard your motor.

Boyce-ite treated gasoline ignites more quickly, prevents the rapid accumulation of carbon that follows the inevitable use of the choke, strain on the starting motor is relieved, the life of your battery prolonged and you have the satisfaction of a clean, sweet running motor all winter—provided Boyce-ite is used with every drop of gasoline.

Guarantee

REGARDLESS of the design of your motor, or the grade of gasoline used, if after adopting Boyce-ite treated gasoline as your standard motor fuel, you ever again find it necessary to remove carbon, have that carbon burned out and send the bill covering to Boyce & Veeder Co., Inc., Long Island City, N. Y., U. S. A. A check will be sent you immediately.

— — and now you can obtain the New IMPROVED Boyce-ite DOUBLE STRENGTH

Double Strength Boyce-ite is SAFE!

PENSTICK CAPTURES HOME-BRED STAKES

Ross Juvenile, 7 to 5 Favorite, Beats Sport Royal and Five Others at Pimlico.

152 TO 1 SHOT IS VICTOR

Special to The New York Times.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 4.—Penstick, running like a good colt, won the second running of the Fall Pimlico Home-Bred Stakes for Commander J. K. L. Ross this afternoon, beating six other first-class two-year-olds over the six-furlong route. H. Walls had the mount on the brown son of Cudgel and Pennsylvania, which carried 120 pounds. He was the 7-to-5 favorite, paying $4.80 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels. Penstick came from behind and ran the distance in 1:13 4-5 over a track that was good but far from fast. The victory was worth $2,586 to the owner of the winner.

The Glemore Purse, sixth race on the card, provided a startling upset when the Log Cabin's two-year-old High Star won at odds of 152 to 1. For a $2 ticket in the mutuels the son of North Star III, and Haute Roche paid $307.90 to win, $78.90 for the place, and $25.80 to show. This price to win is the third largest in the history of pari-mutuels in Maryland.

High Star, with only eighty-four pounds up and ridden by Haviland, was practically left flat-footed at the post. Haviland, however, got his mount going and gradually overhauling the other nine starters got up to win by a head from Black Bart, ridden by Marbien. The race was at a mile and seventy yards for all ages.

There was another large attendance, attracted by the two-year-old stake, and the track had greatly improved. Only two favorites rewarded the players of form during the afternoon's racing.

Third Straight for Penstick.

Not a little interest was withdrawn from the Home-Bred Stakes through the scratching of J. E. Griffith's Canter, the impressive winner of the Kentucky Club Stakes last Saturday. Seven went to the post, with Robert L. Gerry's Sarmaticus the second choice in the wagering. When the barrier rose on a good start Johnny Maiben shot Walter J. Salmon's Sport Royal to the front, and the son of Sackcloth's Double showed a lot of early speed. He went to the quarter in 0:23 2-5 and the half in 0:47 3-5. He stopped at the end, however, and his measure was easily taken by the Ross colt.

Penstick was making his fourth start and it was his third straight victory. Walls was none too alert at the barrier and the ultimate winner was one of the last in motion. On the far turn, however, he went up around the others, closed on the leader with a rush and drew away into an easy lead to win by more than three lengths from Sport Royal.

Sport Royal held on long enough to take the place by a length from Harry Payne Whitney's Broomstick filly Flyleaf. The latter took third money by a head from Commander Ross's filly Tatting, coupled with Penstick in the betting. Sarmaticus was never able to get up, finishing fifth.

The Wicomoc Handicap, a dash of six furlongs for all ages, was a nose victory for Harry Payne Whitney's three-year-old Courageous, the odds-on favorite in a field of five. The son of Whisk Broom II and Courage carried 105 pounds and Pony McAtee was up. Pony sent his mount to the front soon after the break and drew clear rounding the far turn. He held off a determined challenge from H. G. Bedwell's Senator Norris at the furlong pole and outlasted F. Keene's Topboot in the final drive to gain the decision by a nose.

Senator Norris Tires.

Senator Norris tired in the last sixteenth under his top impost of 114 pounds, but held on to take third money. Courageous ran the race in 1:12 2-5, earning $1,400 for Mr. Whitney. He paid $3.90 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels. Senator Norris was the even-money second choice.

The summaries:

DEMPSEY STANDS BY FITZSIMMONS DEAL

Denies Reports That Contract for Indiana Fight With Wills Will Be Scrapped.

HURRIES TO LOS ANGELES

Champion Cancels Other Exhibitions to Prevent Any Possible Entanglements.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 4 (AP).—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, declared here tonight that he expected his proposed bout with Harry Wills, negro challenger, to go through under the management of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City (Ind.) promoter, with whom he had signed a contract.

Dempsey scoffed at reports that the Fitzsimmons contract would be scrapped, paving the way for a reconciliation with Jack Kearns, his deposed manager. He also declared positively that the Wills bout would not be staged in New York. The champion arrived here tonight by automobile from Laredo, Texas, following exhibition bouts in Mexico City and Monterey, Mexico. He plans to leave for Los Angeles tomorrow.

Dempsey said he had read in the English language newspapers in Mexico various reports concerning his bout with Wills and decided to cancel his engagements at Tampico and other points in order to straighten out any entanglements which may arise in regard to the title battle.

"You can say for me that my fight with Wills is going through," said Dempsey with positiveness. "I don't know anything about these reports, and that's the reason I'm hurrying back to Los Angeles. I am going to get into communication with Floyd Fitzsimmons at once. I have no fear that he will not be able to put the fight across and I have no doubt that it will take place in Indiana."

When told that the reports started with an announcement by Rob Roy Benton, his press agent and counselor, that he would quit Dempsey, the champion stated that Benton had not been with him for three weeks. "He only worked in and out for me," said Dempsey, who seemed not to attach much importance to what Benton said.

He laughed at the report that Tex Rickard saw signs of reconciliation between himself and Jack Kearns and a possibility of staging the fight in New York.

"That's bunk," said Dempsey. "I'm through with Kearns. There's nobody managing Jack Dempsey or going to manage Jack Dempsey other than Jack Dempsey himself. And as to the fight going to take place in New York, there's nothing to that."

TUNNEY MAY MEET AD STONE IN GARDEN

Rickard Considers Arranging This Match to Feature Christmas Fund Show.

All hope of arranging a bout in which Gene Tunney, former American light-heavyweight champion, will be a participant in the feature attraction at the annual Christmas Fund boxing carnival to be held in New Madison Square Garden on Dec. 18, has not yet been abandoned. This was the announcement made yesterday by Promoter Tex Rickard, following a conference with Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, who was up and about for the first time since recovering from an attack of the grippe.

Promoter and manager met in Rickard's new offices in the Garden and discussed fistic affairs at some length but without reaching any definite understanding. Another conference will be held within a few days, Gibson said, when an effort will be made to sign the Greenwich Village star for a fight.

Right now it appears that a battle between Tunney and Ad Stone, Philadelphia heavyweight, is about the most available contest, because it is about the most suitable for Tunney. Gibson flatly refused to consider a bout between Tunney and George Godfrey, negro heavyweight, reiterating his statement of a few days ago that he would accept no "mixed" matches for Tunney except that against Harry Wills. He added that the only way a Tunney-Godfrey match could be arranged would be to have Godfrey beat Wills, when it would become necessary for Tunney to meet the Philadelphia negro in a battle to determine the heavyweight best qualified to battle Jack Dempsey for the class title.

Gibson suggested that Rickard induce Wills to accept a match with Tunney for the charity, but this proposition is practically hopeless, since Wills, insisting through Manager Paddy Mullins that the now famous Nlles signing is binding, legitimate and absolutely effective, refuses to undertake any other bout before he meets Dempsey. More, Wills declined the issue with Godfrey when a representative of the Christmas Fund originally suggested a Wills-Godfrey bout.

Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, was considered as an opponent for Tunney, but the fact that he defends his title against Jack Delaney on Dec. 11 in the Garden's first fight precludes such a bout under present circumstances. Young Stribling, likewise, was mentioned, but the Fund officials hesitate over his selection, skeptical on the drawing strength a Tunney-Stribling match would hold in its appeal to public support.

Russian Government Sets Aside $25,000 For Promotion of Moscow Chess Tourney

MOSCOW, Nov. 4 (AP).—The world's chess wizards have arrived here to demonstrate their skills at the first international chess tournament in Russia since 1914, which is to open Nov. 10.

José Raoul Capablanca of Cuba, the world's champion; Frank Marshall, United States champion, and other masters of the game have been matched for preliminary exhibitions against thirty Russian experts next Sunday.

The Russian Government will give a banquet to the visitors next Monday night on the eve of the tournament. The Government has set aside $25,000 for expenses, compensation and prizes for the players.

Dr. Emanuel Lasker, former world's champion; Akiba Rubinstein and E. Bogoljubow are regarded as Capablanca's most formidable rivals for first honors.

The liberal expenditure of money in the promotion of the chess tourney at Moscow promises to make that competition one of the most remunerative to the masters in the history of the game. In addition to their expenses and prize moneys, many of the leading players are receiving "gratification" sums, which, in the case of Capablanca, was reported a few days ago to amount to $5,000. This is considered the highest compensation ever paid to a chess master for his entry in an international tournament.

FINNEGAN IS VICTOR OVER BABE HERMAN

BOSTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Dick (Honey Boy) Finnegan, Dorchester featherweight, won the decision from Babe Herman of California in a ten-round bout here tonight.

Herman fought himself out in the sixth, when he floored the Dorchester boy for the count of four. When Finnegan regained his feet Herman chased him about the ring, vainly attempting to send one of his heavy punches home on a vital spot to score a knockout.

He weakened during the next three rounds, Finnegan holding him even in the seventh and outpointing him in the eighth and ninth. Herman gained his second wind in the final round and again set out to knock out Finnegan. The latter, on the defensive throughout the round, made him miss often.

Finnegan gained a commanding lead in the early rounds. He outpointed Herman in the first and second by a wide margin but lost the third. In the fourth Finnegan slowed up the fast moving Herman by a rapid-fire two-handed attack. A right to the face and left to the body sent Herman to the ropes in this round. Herman was the aggressor in the fifth, but Finnegan made him miss often and scored on infighting.

Johnny Brown of Newport, substituting for Eddie Williams of East Boston, knocked out Nick Guagerelli of New York in the second round of the eight-round semi-final.

"Eight Ball" Dixon of Providence gained the decision over Panama Joe Walcott in the other eight-round bout, and Jack Elliot of England won the decision from Battling Thierrieu of Springvale, Me., in the first bout, a six-rounder.

WILLS-JOHNSON BOUT IS STILL UNDER FIRE

Jersey Senator Says Legislative Body Will Make Inquiry and May Urge Repeal of Law.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—Speaking for Chairman Bright of the Legislative Investigating Committee, Senator Simpson today characterized the recent Wills-Johnson bout in Newark as a "boxing fiasco" and that the committee at its next session, probably held Nov. 18, would conduct an inquiry into the affair. If bouts of this character can be held and the boxing fans of three States hoodwinked, the law ought to be repealed, said Senator Simpson.

Commissioner Newton A. K. Bugbee of the Athletic Commission, together with the promoters of the bout and the contestants, will be called before the Committee to testify as to how the bout was promoted, how much money was involved, and the amount the State received in taxes. If the facts warrant there is a likelihood that a repealer of the boxing law will be offered at the next Legislative session, Senator Simpson said.

McELROY OUTPOINTS SANTO.

Wins as St. Raphael's Tourney Opens—Seven Knocked Out.

Knockouts were frequent last night in the preliminaries of the amateur boxing tournament held in the St. Raphael's Catholic Club gymnasium, seven youngsters advancing by that route. One of the best bouts, however, went its scheduled three rounds. This contest was in the 118-pound class and the principals were Peter McElroy, St. Raphael's Club bantamweight, and Clement Santo, unattached. McElroy, rallying after a poor start in the opening round, carried off the judges' decision at the end of the third session. Finals in the tournament will be held Saturday night.

The summaries:

Board Puts Boxer on 'Disabled' List for Canceling Syracuse Bout Because of Illness.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo's promising young middleweight, is the latest of the ring stars to be placed on the State Athletic Commission's list of "disabled" boxers, which, incidentally, is increasing with each successive meeting of the board, despite the best intentions of the solons. Following yesterday's meeting of the commission, Secretary Bart Stand announced that Slattery had received an unsolicited vacation of sixty days in which to recuperate from whatever physical complaints he now suffers. The "vacation" is the longest meted out to a boxer since the commission recently launched its drive to discourage unexpected and mysterious ailments on the part of boxers on the eve of scheduled bouts.

Slattery's period of enforced idleness is an outgrowth of his plea to be excused from a bout against Yussel Pearlstein, which was to have been fought at Syracuse. The Buffalo youngster pleaded poor condition, because of illness, in advancing his request to be excused from the scheduled bout. The board not only excused Slattery, but notified him he will have at his disposal sixty days in which completely to recuperate from his illness and whip himself into fighting shape. Following this period Slattery will be compelled to box Pearlstein in Syracuse before he can undertake any other bout in this State.

The commission announced the reinstatement of Billy Ames, manager of a stable of fighters which includes Frank Moody, Tommy Milligan and Wes Willie Woods. The reinstatement of the manager, however, does not affect the status of Moody, who still is on the ineligible list here. It was announced that the English middleweight, who withdrew from a scheduled bout against Lew Chester at the New Broadway Arena and subsequently appeared in a contest in Newark, will be continued on the ineligible list until the thirty-day rest originally imposed upon him has expired. This will make Moody ineligible to box here until Nov. 22 and then he must box Lew Chester for the Broadway Arena before he will be permitted to engage in a bout against another rival.

The reinstatement of Ames followed similar action taken by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, which originally set the manager down. Ames was requested last week by the Bay State authorities to return his manager's license and was told that the card would not be renewed. The cause of this drastic action was Moody's acceptance of the bout in Newark after withdrawing from the match with Chester in Brooklyn. The Bay State authorities misinterpreted the suspension imposed upon Moody in this State alone, it was said yesterday, and upon investigation decided to reconsider their decision.

Tom Roper, heavyweight boxer, was informed he would have to accept matches in this State under the management of Phil Lewis, his manager.

TIGERS' NEW LINE ROLLS DOWN FIELD

SLAGLE LEADS THE ATTACK

His Pass to Dignan Brings First Touchdown, He Makes Second and Kicks Points After Each One.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4.—Princeton's varsity football team, with its revamped rush line, ran roughshod over the second combination here this afternoon in a regularly organized scrimmage. Despite the fact that the second team was reinforced by Stout, Wittmer, Keck and Winn, it was unable to force the varsity to punt upon a single occasion. Slagle figured in all the scoring, passing to Dignan for the first touchdown, carrying the second across himself, and adding both points after touchdown for the 14-to-0 victory.

Roper continued the severest week's practice to which the Tigers have been subjected, putting them through a long signal drill in the early part of the afternoon and continuing the line-bucking after darkness made the passing game impossible. Practically the entire squad is in perfect condition for the Harvard game and stood up well under today's test.

Before opening the hard scrimmage, Roper drilled his backs on the tactics to be used against Harvard, continuing to call Slagle, Dignan and Gilligan in to the first quartet, which Caulkins is to lead as quarter. Bearse and Bridges, whose early season promise was interrupted by injuries, have been close running mates all week, and probably will receive the call to face Harvard together some time toward the end of the first period Saturday.

Punting Is Stressed.

Dignan, Slagle and Lea gave Ewing and Caulkins practice in receiving punts, at the same time improving their own kicking games. Dignan seemed to be below par and Lea was unable to get the proper loft in his efforts, but Slagle was in good form. Caulkins, who probably will catch most of the punts Saturday, looked very sure on the receiving end, not muffing a single chance in the practice.

Slagle concentrated on drop-kicking, both in the pre-scrimmage work and after the practice game. Inasmuch as Caulkins seems to be sure of his position at quarter, thus keeping Ewing, star drop-kicker, on the bench most of the time, Slagle probably will have plenty of opportunity to try for three-point scores. He met with very good success in practice and showed up particularly well behind the first line when actually under fire.

On four attempts, with the second defense trying to get through from the 25-yard line to block his efforts, Slagle sent three of his kicks squarely between the posts with plenty of altitude. On the fourth effort his defense broke down, but he eluded his tacklers and got across the line for a touchdown, greatly aided by Lea's first-rate interference.

With his backfield fairly stabilized for the Harvard game, Roper's line is still an uncertain quantity, possibly excepting the end positions. Reserve material, even in this department, is very uncertain, Moeser and Lea being the only wingmen who have shown first-rate ability during the season.

Gates Back at Tackle.

Gates is again on the first line at left tackle, after losing the place he held for two years last week. Darby, who was forced to retire, is a big man, however, weighing 200 pounds and towering 6 feet 3 inches and has shown great improvement during the year. Rosengarten will play on the right side of the line.

With the return of Captain McMillan, the guard positions once more have been hotly contested this week, but it seems fairly certain that Davis and Crago, both of whom weigh 195 pounds, will fill the flank berths.

TRAFFIC ORDERS ISSUED.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—Commissioner Dill of the Motor Vehicle Department has issued orders to all inspectors whereby he purposes to expedite traffic movements, within the limits of safety, on roads leading to Princeton next Saturday, when the Princeton-Harvard football game will be played.

From 10 A. M. to 2 A. M. all southbound traffic from New Brunswick to Princeton, via Kingston, will be routed over State Highway Route 13 (New Brunswick to Trenton), and during the same hours all northbound traffic from Trenton to New Brunswick will be routed via Hightstown over State Highway Route 1 (Jersey City to Trenton).

After the game and until traffic is again normal all northbound traffic from Princeton to New Brunswick will be routed via Kingston over State Highway Route 13, and all southbound traffic from New Brunswick to Trenton will be routed via Hightstown over State Highway Route 1.

ARMY C TEAM WINS, 18-0.

Beats Columbia Junior Varsity Easily on West Point Gridiron.

Special to The New York Times.

ARMY C. (18).		COLUMBIA J. V. (0).
Orme	L.E.	Leibowitz
Blackwell	L.T.	Zyboiowski

Cruise	R.E.	Wagner

Touchdowns—Foster, Schilling, Cruise.

SHIFT MADE IN ARMY LINE.

Perry and Elias at Guard to Give Forward Wall More Weight.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Scrimmage was only a part of the program for the Army squad today, but while the rough work netted the varsity two touchdowns, Gilbreth and Trapnell doing the scoring, it was of brief duration. The practice was longer than usual because no military drills were held and nearly everybody was available for football.

In an effort to get a bit more weight in the line, Perry, 190 pounds, and Elias of the same weight were used at right guard, where Seeman and Hammack have been alternating this season.

Harvard Will Beat Princeton, Hubbard Tells 1,500 at Rally

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4 (AP).—Charlie Hubbard, former all-American guard and member of the Harvard coaching staff, predicted that the University's football team would defeat Princeton on Saturday, speaking tonight at the pre-game mass meeting in Harvard Union, attended by 1,500 enthusiastic students.

"You fellows," he said, to the team which was seated on the platform, "are the physical and mental equals of Princeton's men. Your team's record is as good as Princeton's and your coaches know as much about the game as the Princeton coaching staff."

Waving a Harvard banner presented to him in 1908 by the late Percy Haughton, "Mike" Donovan, a well-known Harvard character, and one of the stadium employes, led the students in cheers for the team. Before the meeting, the students paraded, behind the University band, through the yard to the Union.

FORDHAM SHATTERS HOLY CROSS ATTACK

Dummy scrimmage took the place of the usual Wednesday battle yesterday in Fordham's preparation for Holy Cross this Saturday at the Polo Grounds. Several of the Maroon regulars, although they reported for practice, are still nursing slight injuries, and on that account Gargan did not wish to risk them for the battle with the Purple. Woerner, however, did not get into his uniform, but it is likely that he will be ready either today or tomorrow.

In the dummy scrimmage, the scrubs, equipped with Holy Cross plays, were on the offense. The forward pass was the only play used, and after a poor start the regulars succeeded in knocking down all of the aerials attempted by the scrubs. This weapon of attack is used by the Purple quite effectively, so the Maroon coaches are laboring hard to build up a defense against it. It was the forward pass that enabled Holy Cross to make its only touchdown against Harvard and score a victory.

The first team lined up yesterday as it probably will on Saturday. In the back field were Graham at quarter, Manning and Buckley at the halves and Zakszewski at full. Leary and Delaney were at the ends, Feaster and Smith, tackles; Bruce and Obester, guards, and Stevenson at centre.

HARVARD BOLSTERS ITS AERIAL DEFENSE

Princeton Expected to Launch Attack by Which Others Have Scored on Crimson.

WORKOUT IS VERY SHORT

Fisher Still in Doubt Whether Maher or Miller or Tripp or C. Bradford Will Start.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4.—Harvard's football drill today was very much abbreviated, the first and second varsities returning from the field to the locker building before dark. There was no change in the line-up of the teams from Tuesday afternoon, and Coach Fisher is still in doubt whether he will start Maher or Miller at halfback or Tripp or C. Bradford at guard.

The squad has been particularly busy this week bolstering up the defenses against forward passes, which Harvard believes will be a very important factor of the Tigers' attack on Saturday. Rensselaer, Holy Cross and Dartmouth together have scored four touchdowns on passes, and the Hanover team twice landed the ball inside the Crimson 5-yard line by that means, then to score. Accordingly Harvard expects the Tigers will play to this weakness.

Little has been seen of Harvard's own overhead play this season. Coady has not been used in forward passing all year, and Zarakov has not shown much of the prowess displayed previously for completing passes. In the Dartmouth game the whole Hanover team was watching him, knowing that he was in the game to get loose with a forward if possible.

Eddie Bradford continued to play at right end on the first team and Nash again was with the scrubs, while Lindner and Pratt were at tackle. Coady did some good kicking this afternoon. Coady is one of the two men in the line-up who started the Princeton game last year, the other being Miller, whose appearance at the kick-off Saturday is still in doubt. However, with Coady's kicking satisfactory again, Miller is regarded the likely right halfback choice instead of Jack Maher.

COLGATE SPEEDS PRACTICE.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Colgate practiced at increased speed today in building up an offense for the Providence game here on Saturday. Much time is being spent by the coaches on the reserve material which will be needed for the Syracuse and Brown games. The varsity scrimmaged against the freshman eleven in practice this afternoon.

Yale Cuts '24 and '25 Men To One Harvard Game Ticket

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—Because of the record demand for seats at the Yale-Harvard game in Cambridge Nov. 21, Yale has been compelled to cut about a thousand applications from two to one ticket. The Yale and Harvard allotments were greatly oversubscribed and the Yale Athletic Association decided to allow the 1924 and 1925 classes in the Academic Department and the Sheffield Scientific School only a single pasteboard for personal use.

SEVEN NEW PLAYERS ON NAVY FIRST TEAM

Shapley, Only Back Field Survivor of Michigan Game, Scores Against Team B on Pass.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 4.—Determined to develop more speed and punch in the Naval Academy team, Coach Owsley gave the varsity another hard scrimmage against Squad B this afternoon. However, only four of those who started against Michigan were in their places, seven new players being tried out.

Shapley at fullback was the only regular in the back field, his mates being Hannagan, Caldwell and Ransford—three light but fast and stocky backs. Upon the whole the attack showed some improvement, Shapley making one touchdown on a forward pass from Hannagan.

An unexpected move was the transfer of Hoerner from centre to left end. Osburn is now in shape to resume his place in the middle of the line. Hoerner, who has been substituting for him, did well in the new place, as he is very fast for a big fellow. His tackling in the centre position was so good that it is believed that he will develop into an excellent end.

Conn. Aggies in Line Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

YALE SCORES TWICE IN HALF-HOUR DRILL

TWO VETERANS ABSENT

Allen and Richards Kept Out of Line-Up by Minor Injuries, but Will Play Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—Yale scrimmaged this afternoon, Head Coach Tad Jones driving the regulars against the scrubs for thirty minutes in the only actual football scheduled for the week. Two touchdowns resulted.

Nominal injuries took the veterans, Dan Allen, fullback, and Guy Richards, guard, out of the line-up, but they will be ready for the Maryland game Saturday, Trainer George Connors said. Richards hurt his shoulder slightly. Dick Wortham replaced him. Allen's injury was a slight reopening of a wound on his hand, which was hurt three weeks ago.

Jerry Wadsworth, son of the United States Senator, replaced Allen and took the ball across the goal line for the second score, which closed a series of line plunges netting the varsity more than half the length of the field. During the first half of the scrimmage the varsity was on the defensive, but the scrubs were unable to score. One of their fumbles in midfield was seized by Stanley Gill, who eluded the scrub secondary defensive line and dodged to their goal for the first tally.

Both first and second varsity elevens had a dummy and a signal practice drill, which will be continued tomorrow and Friday. No line-up changes are planned and the coaches expect to start the Maryland game with the first eleven and give the second and third a chance against the Southerners before the game closes. They believe that practically the entire squad should have an opportunity to play against a rival university before the Princeton meet next Saturday, in which substitutes will be liberally used.

COLUMBIA VARSITY ON THE OFFENSIVE

NORRIS IN THE BACKFIELD

Takes Kirchmeyer's Place and Probably Will Face N. Y. U.—Raphael Unable to Don Uniform.

Dummy scrimmaging between the first eleven and Team B featured yesterday afternoon's Columbia football activities at Baker Field. Coach Crowley had his regulars on the offensive throughout the session and gave them a thorough workout in preparation for Saturday's clash with New York University. It is probable that the varsity will be sent into its only real scrimmage of the week today, though it is by no means certain that the first-stringers will be risked in action.

One change was noted in the make-up of Team A when it lined up for the hour of dummy battling, Norris being in at fullback in place of Kirchmeyer. Norris played the whole game against Cornell and did the kicking, and he is favored to start in the engagement with the Violet. Captain Pease ran the team from the quarterback post and Scott and Madden occupied their usual halfback berths, while the line had Wagner and Furey on the ends, Wiberg and Aulich as tackles, Shaw and W. Williams at guard, and Schimetitsch at centre.

The only man not in uniform was Raphael, and it looks very much as if the big guard, who hurt his left knee against Ohio State and aggravated the injury in the Cornell fray, will be out for quite a while. W. Williams again took care of the right guard position and looks like a sure starter for Saturday. Work in the fundamentals started the day's proceedings, while Coach Crowley later gave the squad a lecture in which he outlined the plays likely to be used by Chick Meehan's N. Y. U. pupils.

Ticket sales for the annual clash between the Lion and the Violet indicate that Baker Field will not be able to hold anywhere near the gathering that hopes to crowd into its stands. The Columbia Athletic Association started selling the pasteboards on the Morningside campus yesterday, and the result was a steady line of buyers outside its office all day. The Blue and White's uptown gridiron was built for 15,000 spectators, but New York University alone could furnish that attendance quota.

C. C. N. Y. IN LIGHT DRILL.

Much Time Devoted to Forward-Pass Attack—Soldier Returns.

City College is taking no chances with its crippled football squad and Coach Parker held a light drill yesterday, reducing the scrimmage period to half an hour. The squad was drilled in the fundamentals and much time was devoted to the forward pass attack. The squad has been strengthened by the return of Tige Soldier, who participated in his first scrimmage yesterday since he sustained his injury in the N. Y. U. game three weeks ago. He stood the drill well and probably will start on Saturday.

The backfield is still a patched up affair, with three substitutes filling in for the regulars. Much offensive strength has been lost through the injuries, and the Jayvee yesterday using Manhattan's play and defense, held the C. C. N. Y. varsity scoreless. Lack of reserve material is causing Coach Parker great worry.

MANHATTAN LOSES 3 MEN.

Skidd Called Home and Flood and Canoveri Are Ruled Ineligible.

The Manhattan College football squad, which will face the City College's team on Saturday, yesterday lost Milton Flood and Art Canoveri, freshman back and end, respectively, through scholastic difficulties. They have been suspended for the rest of the season. To top off this setback, the sudden calling to his home at Norwalk, Conn., of Thomas Skidd, right end, because of family illness, deprives the Green and White of another dependable player.

Despite the depletion in its ranks, the seven men which Coach Horace Mann Field yesterday looked the best of any of Coach McCarthy's shifts to date. The moving of the sophomore, Neil Cohalan, to quarter has speeded up the play and Captain Dunn seems more at home at half.

ST. JOHN'S BACK AT WORK.

Scrimmage Follows Two Easy Days —Thomas and Bushman Shine.

After extremely light workouts on the first two days of the week, Coach Ray Lynch put his St. John's College squad through a stiff scrimmage yesterday at Ebbets Field. Lynch feared that his squad might go stale after the Villanova game from too much work, and as a result did not push it too hard. He is, however, contemplating sending the St. John's second team against the Philadelphia Marines this Saturday, and the hard workout yesterday had in view the further training of the scrubs.

Thomas and Bushman made long runs against the opposition during the afternoon and each scored two touchdowns. With the exception of Leo Prendergast, who will be out for the rest of the week with a crippled knee, the entire varsity line worked yesterday. The St. John's-U. S. Marines games Saturday will be played at Ebbets Field and will start at 2 P. M.

RUTGERS STUDIES DEFENSE.

Freshmen Coached by Benkert Try Lafayette Plays on Varsity.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 4.—Coach Jack Wallace gave his Rutgers team the longest workout of the week this afternoon, keeping the men on the field until after 5:30. With the freshmen using Lafayette plays the varsity was on the defensive for more than an hour, Dalton and Lorens showing up particularly well at the end positions. The freshmen, who were directed by Heinie Benkert, former Rutgers star, were unable to gain consistently, although during the first part of the scrimmage they did manage to complete two or three forward passes.

All of the regulars were in uniform but Hanf, Chandler and Bliss, who took part in signal drill. Coach Wallace viewed the practice from the coaching tower on the side lines for the first time this season.

PENN SCRUBS BATTERED.

Second and Third Varsities Easily Stop Haverford Formations.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania second and third varsity football teams were put through a long intensive drill in fundamentals this afternoon in preparation for the game with Haverford here on Saturday. The drill was followed by a practice game in which the two varsity teams battered the scrubs, using Haverford plays from the huddle system.

Prentice Wins Fiftieth Title In Seabright Tennis Play

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Nov. 4.—Vernon S. Prentice, President of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, established a mark that probably will live forever in the sporting annals of Seabright when he won his fiftieth local tennis title today. In the final round of the doubles championship of the Rumson Country Club, Prentice and Stuart A. Young defeated Holcombe Ward and George M. Myles, 6—4, 1—6, 6—4, 6—3. Prentice has won the singles and doubles titles of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club for almost fifteen years, and has dominated the play at Rumson for a long period also.

MEEHAN BUILDING FOR NEXT SEASON

Connors and O'Neill Switched in N. Y. U. Back Field—Cubs Swamped by Varsity.

Coach Chick Meehan made several switches in his New York University eleven yesterday with a view to developing scoring strength, and the changes proved so effective that the freshman eleven was scored on eight times during the session at Ohio Field. Meehan placed Connors at quarterback and O'Neill at halfback, to give Connors training in calling signals, as O'Neill graduates next year and the former is a sophomore. Connors carried the ball over the goal line four times, while Briante scored three times. The other touchdown was made by O'Neill.

Meehan announced that Robert Lincoln, rangy baseball player, would replace Jim Fay at end. Frank Kelly is still holding down the other wing position, but Howard Pearlman is pressing him so closely for the berth that a change in the position is possible.

Other changes may be made in the line-up before the Columbia game on Saturday, not so much with a view to meeting the Columbia opposition as to giving the eleven seasoning and a strong foundation for 1926. Meehan intimated during the workout. Should the Violet not win another game this season, Meehan has already given N. Y. U. its greatest number of victories in any one season.

The freshman eleven, despite the battering it received from the varsity yesterday, showed enough promise to warrant much fine material for the Violet coach to work with next year.

MICHIGAN IS KEPT ON HARD-WORK LIST

Yost Fears Eleven May Become Overconfident—Secret Drills Ordered for Illinois.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 (AP).—Overconfidence, grim spectre that stalks in the wake of victory, gives more concern to Coach "Hurry Up" Yost of Michigan than prospective desperate attempts of Northwestern to topple the Wolverines from the Big Ten pinnacle Saturday.

Consequently the Yostmen are being worked as hard as they were before the Illinois and Navy tilts. And while Wolverine stock is soaring with the return of big Tom Edwards, star tackle, Northwestern is steeped in gloom because Ralph Baker, backfield ace, may not be able to play.

A line that will stop Red Grange is the optimistic desire of Coach Stagg of Chicago. Throughout the season the Maroons have specialized on a battering ram offense and an impenetrable defense, and this must be at its best in Urbana Saturday if it is to hold the Illini sorrel top.

At Illinois Coach Zuppke holds secret practice, an unusual thing for him. With one or two exceptions, Grange and company will go into their thirtieth struggle against the Maroons with the line-up that flattened Penn.

Two offenses, for use in wet or dry weather, are being prepared at Iowa for the Wisconsin game. Cowboy Nick Kutsch, leading Big Ten scorer in the centre of the speed attack, with "Plowboy" Fry the heart of the "Mud Larks." Wisconsin is improving an attack similar to that turned on against Minnesota in the last quarter of Saturday's game for a tie score.

Meyers, regular Ohio State guard, will be out of the game with Indiana because of a leg injury. Pass work is being polished.

Knute Rockne is still taking travel kinks out of his Notre Dame eleven as an aftermath of the Atlanta game with Georgia Tech. The team has only two more days of rehearsal before entraining for Penn State.

DE LA SALLE BEATEN, 14-0.

Touchdowns by McGeehan and Verde Win for Clason Point.

The Clason Point Military Academy football team defeated the De la Salle Institute eleven, 14 to 0, yesterday afternoon at Clason Point field. The contest was the first played between the two institutions in the last six years.

Clason opened a strong attack in the first period and marched down the field for a touchdown, which was scored by Verde, who skirted the end with the ball. The extra point was gained by a forward pass from Bradley to Verde. Clason's second touchdown came in the third period when McGeehan, the big right halfback, plunged over the line. McGeehan also scored the point after touchdown by going over with a pass received from Dausey.

The score by periods:

Clason Point	7	0	7	0	—14

Wendell, Pointing for Georgetown, Gives Squad Long Session.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 4.—Coach Percy Wendell directed his first practice of the week at Lehigh University today in preparation for the Georgetown game at Washington on Saturday. Although it was the first day out for his football charges, who were idle in respect to the memory of Charles Prior, their late quarterback, the session was one of the most intensive of the season.

To culminate the work, the varsity went through a stiff scrimmage with the scrubs. All of the regulars, with the exception of Jim Yeager, tackle, and Dot Mellenger, halfback, were in uniform. The coaching squad was augmented today by the addition of Frank O'Brien, former Harvard end, who will assist in grooming the wingmen.

DARTMOUTH COACH MAKES 2 CHANGES

Lane Displaced by McAvoy and Hardy by Holleran—Rubin to Start at Guard.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 4.—Two hours of hard scrimmage featured the Dartmouth workout here today. The regulars on the offensive opposed the second team for an hour and then scrimmaged defensively for an hour against Cornell plays. The ball was moved back to its former position after each play, so no scores were made. The varsity, however, ran through the seconds for good gains.

Two radical changes were made in the regular line-up before practice. Lane, who is second highest scorer in the East, was relegated to the seconds, while McAvoy, who has been doing some flashing work with the subs, took his place with the varsity.

A pretty fight is being waged for the regular left tackle berth between Hardy and Holleran, who fought for the position last year. Hardy has been getting the call in most of the recent games, but Holleran replaced him today. Coach Hawley said today that he had never seen two men more evenly matched.

The squad will not have any more scrimmage this week, according to the coaches. Three days of it have put several men on the injured list.

Loomis, substitute fullback, was hurt Monday and will be rested for another day at least. Allen and Langdell were badly battered Tuesday, but turned up for duty today. Holleran and Hardy were both slightly hurt in today's scrimmage.

Smith, regular right guard, was not in uniform, and it was definitely announced that his injuries from the Brown game will prevent him from starting against Cornell. Rubin, who was an Freshman sta- in 1921 and 1922, has been playing the position.

Heavy frosts have made the Memorial Field gridiron a sea of mud for practice. Today the squad used a field lined out on a near-by meadow called Chase Field.

Plays were spread over the regular gridiron and will be kept there until Saturday morning in an effort to keep further frost from getting into the ground.

ARMY WINS IN SOCCER.

Bayer and Browning Score Goals in Defeating Crescent, 2-0.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The Army soccer team defeated the Crescent Athletic Club in a hard-played game here today, 2 to 0. Bayer scored for Army in the first half and Browning tallied the second goal in the final period with only a few minutes to play. Army forced the play throughout, Watkins, the Crescent goalkeeper, turning back many shots.

The line-up:

ARMY (2).		CRESCENT (0).
Heidner	G.	Watkins
Gleason	R.B.	Barriskill
Baird	L.B.	Durrant
Briggs	R.H.	Lynch
Martin	C.H.	Swallow

Tate	O.R.	Chase
Lewis	I.R.	Kay
Bayer	C.	Frosali

Goals—Bayer, Browning. Time—Halves of 45 minutes.

SWARTHMORE TAKES LEAD.

Tops Eastern Pa. Soccer League by Beating Haverford Juniors, 2-1.

Special to The New York Times.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Nov. 4.—The Swarthmore College soccer football team took first place in the Eastern Pennsylvania League by defeating the Harverford junior varsity eleven in a hotly contested game here this afternoon, 2 to 1. Long, hard kicking was the feature of the game, which was played before a large crowd.

Hoag and Winslow were the outstanding players for the visitors, while Price and Gates in the back field and Captain Bartlett at inside left occupied the stellar roles for Swarthmore.

2 AUTO MARKS ALLOWED.

Leon Duray Broke 75 and 100 Mile Records on Salem Track.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—The American Automobile Association has allowed two new automobile speedway records made in the races on the Salem, N. H., board track last Saturday, both going to Leon Duray, who set marks for non-stop cars for seventy-five and one hundred miles.

Duray negotiated the seventy-five miles in 55 minutes 48 seconds, or at a rate of 128.60 miles an hour. He turned in 100 miles in 46 minutes 41.89 seconds, or at a rate of 128.55 miles an hour. The former seventy-five-mile record held by Tommy Milton, was made at Culver City, Cal., Dec. 14, 1924, and was 123.40 miles an hour. Benny Hill, on the same speedway, made the former 100-mile record of 128 miles an hour.

The association announced that Peter de Paolo is leading in prizes for the year with $89,000. The largest amount ever earned by a driver for a year was $110,000, by Jimmy Murphy in 1924, the year of his death.

15 CYCLE TEAMS EXPECTED.

Chapman Begins Arranging Six-Day Race at New Garden.

After directing another successful six-day bicycle race in Chicago, John M. Chapman, manager of the local races, began making arrangements yesterday for the grind which will open the New Madison Square Garden at midnight on Nov. 29, following the customary sprint races on Nov. 26. Chapman expects a field of fifteen teams. American and foreign riders are to be entered in equal numbers.

The race will be the thirty-ninth international event here. Riders from Belgium, Italy, France and Germany are now being signed by Clarence Carman, who is abroad as Chapman's agent. Freddie Spencer, Plainfield youngster, and Bobby Walthour Jr., who won the Chicago race, are expected to start. Whether they will be a team or an rival combinations has not yet been decided. They won the last grind in the old Garden last March.

REGATTA TO CLOSE ROWING.

Columbia Oarsmen to Compete for Bange Cup Tomorrow.

Columbia's outdoor Fall rowing campaign will be concluded tomorrow when the Lion oarsmen compete in a two-race regatta on the Harlem. A mile struggle for the Henley, Poughkeepsie and Saratoga Club sights is the feature of the afternoon's competition, with possession of the Francis S. Bangs Cup and individual medals as rewards for the victors. A special match between the first freshmen boat and a novice crew picked from the most promising of the upperclassmen not in the club shells has also been arranged.

Aicroft Succeeds French as Pro.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Nov. 4 (AP).—Retirement of Emmet French, well known golfer, as professional at the Youngstown Country Club was announced by its trustees today. Albert Aicroft, assistant to French, was named his successor.

CORNELL DISPLAYS SPEED IN WORKOUT

Last Heavy Drill for Dartmouth Game Impressive Despite Mud—Timing Good.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 4.—In the last detailed practice before the Dartmouth game the Cornell football squad this evening developed speed and precision that augur well for the game at Hanover Saturday.

Although the field was soft from alternate freezing and thawing, the Red eleven snapped through the scrimmage at a steady pace, even when it got on mud cleats. The make-up of the varsity this evening is regarded as forecasting the line-up against Dartmouth.

Pennell and Courtright were on the wings, Kearney and Hill tackles, Carey and Munns guards and Rapuano centre. Dobie sent Evans in for a few minutes at right tackle and also used Affeld at centre toward the end of the drill. In the backfield Wester started at quarterback. Gassner, Trefts and Pratt were halfbacks and Butterfield fullback. Carpenter also worked a quarter during part of the drill.

The varsity carried the ball all of the time, the drill being intended to perfect the timing of the plays and to improve the work of the receivers in the passing game. Butterfield, Carpenter, Pratt and Courtright figured prominently in this phase of play.

Gassner and Butterfield also ran the tackles nicely, and the kick formation yielded valuable yardage.

GREENLEAF FILES TITLE CHALLENGE

Satisfied that he is at the top of his game, Ralph Greenleaf, former world's pocket billiard champion, took definite steps yesterday which he hopes will result in a meeting with Frank Taberski, present world's champion. Greenleaf posted two forfeits, one of $250 with the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, donors of the championship medal, for a title-challenge match with Taberski, and the second of $500 with Charles S. Kline of the Strand Academy for a handicap match, with no title at stake.

Three weeks ago Greenleaf posted a forfeit in Chicago, but inasmuch as he did not hear from Taberski he withdrew it and renewed his drive yesterday. Under the rules Taberski will have sixty days to accept, but it was reported a few days ago that Taberski has accepted terms for a theatrical tour which will keep him busy until next Spring. Greenleaf is so determined to face Taberski that he announced he was ready to concede odds and would play Taberski 1,000 to 800. His forfeit of $500 is to cover the handicap match. Greenleaf also added that he would play Taberski at those odds for any sum up to $2,000.

GREENLEAF WIDENS LEAD.

Vaughn Now Trailing, 758 to 560, in Pocket Billiard Match.

Ralph Greenleaf, former world's pocket billiard champion, widened his lead over Carl Vaughn, national amateur champion, in their handicap match at the Strand Academy by winning both of the blocks played yesterday. Greenleaf played sensational billiards in the evening block, going out in three innings, and now leads 758 to 560. He has won five of the six blocks played.

The former world's champion won in the afternoon, 119 to 81, in eighteen innings. He had a high run of 51 and Vaughn one of 21. In the evening block Greenleaf won 139 to 64. His high run of 71 came in the third inning after he had made runs of 36 and 4, respectively. Vaughn made a high run of 46 in the evening block.

Greenleaf	1	36	4	71	—139

CONCANNON IS CUE VICTOR.

St. Jean Also Triumphs in State Pocket Billiard Play.

Joseph Concannon and Andrew St. Jean won in the two matches played at Kreuter's Billiard Academy yesterday in a continuation of play for the New York State professional pocket billiard championship. Concannon defeated Arthur Church in a close match played in the afternoon, 125 to 120. He had a high run of 16, which Church surpassed with one of 25. The match required 51 innings.

St. Jean defeated Joseph Seabeck in the evening match, 125 to 95, in 32 innings. St. Jean made a high run of 25, but again the loser's high run was greater, as Seabeck made one of 27.

N. Y. SIX SIGNS 3 PLAYERS.

Langlois, McKinnon and Campbell Added to Garden Hockey Squad.

Announcement was made yesterday by Manager Tommy Gorman of the New York professional hockey team, in the National Hockey League, of the signing of three crack Canadian players for the squad which will compete in its home games on the ice in the New Madison Square Garden. They are Charles Langlois, left defense player, and Alex McKinnon, utility forward, both of Sudbury, Ontario, who formerly played with the Sudbury Wolves and were purchased by the New York club from the Hamilton (Ontario) Tigers, and Bart Campbell of Ottawa, Ontario, right wing.

BILLIARD RESULTS.

Harry Wakefield, Pacific Coast three-cushion billiard champion, got a worse than a tie in his ten-block match with George Moore, former world's champion, as a result of yesterday's play at the Fourteenth Street Billiard Academy. Wakefield won the evening block, 50 to 35, in fifty-three innings and thereby won his fifth block. His high run of 8 as against one of 7 for Moore. In the afternoon Moore won his first block of the match when he defeated Wakefield, 50 to 43, in fifty-six innings. Moore had a high run of 6 and Wakefield one less.

At Lawler Brothers' Brooklyn rooms Charles Worcester and Joseph Blaisdell won in a continuation of play for the straight rail billiard championship. Worcester defeated James Langdon, 125 to 85, in thirty-four innings. He had a high run of 21 against one of 14 for Langdon. Blaisdell beat Jesse Paddock, 125 to 78, in twenty-four innings. Blaisdell had a run of 17, Paddock one of 15.

Today Sugarmans won two exhibition 18.2 balkline billiard matches at Lawler Brothers' Manhattan rooms yesterday. In the first match he defeated H. Coleman, 300 to 267, in fourteen innings and made a high run of 74. Coleman's best effort was 32. In the evening match Sugarman defeated J. L. Stacy, 300 to 66, in thirteen innings. The winner's high run was 66 and the loser's 30.

Edward Marshall defeated Herbert Van Tassell last night at Cranfield's Billiard Academy in a continuation of play for the New York State three-cushion championship. Marshall won 50 to 34. Marshall had a high run of 7 and Van Tassell one of 4. The match required forty-five innings.

L. Schein won from A. Appel, 50-31, in a three-cushion match lasting 18 innings at Van Adams's Academy, the Bronx, last night. Schein's high run was 9 and Appel's 8.

GOVERNOR SMITH'S TRIUMPH.

The name of ALFRED SMITH appeared on no ballot cast last Tuesday, but his was the chief influence decisive of the vote in this city and throughout the State. It was, first of all, Governor SMITH who brought about the nomination, which meant the election, of Senator WALKER as Mayor. This is only a way of saying that it was he who freed the city from the frightful incubus of Mayor HYLAN. In the campaign speech made by Mr. HUGHES he began his discussion of municipal affairs by congratulating the people on the fact that "we have got rid of Mayor HYLAN." He did not say who it was that rid the city. It was not necessary. Everybody knew that the man who did it was Governor SMITH. And the result on Nov. 3 rounded out for him and crowned a piece of political work which he undertook as a citizen of Greater New York and carried through in the wonderful way now visible to all.

Even greater, in some respects, was the victory of the Governor in securing the adoption of the constitutional amendments. But for his championship of them, his speeches, his explanations and defenses, his personal appeals up and down the State, they would almost certainly have failed to carry. In particular the $100,000,000 bond amendment would have been defeated except for his labors and the confidence which the people of the State had in the soundness of his judgment and his unselfish motives. The adoption of this amendment, what with the open and secret opposition to it of the Republicans, constitutes an almost unexampled tribute to the Governor of the State.

No one need fear that Governor SMITH will be spoiled by this shining success. He will remain the same sort of faithful public servant that he has been—industrious, adding daily to his extraordinary knowledge and grasp of the business of the State and of this city, genial, entirely human, and striving steadfastly for the ends which he has set before himself as Governor of New York. Yet to him it must be a deep and durable satisfaction that he has been able to do something for the State which, in his own language, has done everything for him.

THE SOCIALIST DECLINE.

Speaking on election night, when only the figures for the major parties were available, Mr. NORMAN THOMAS, the Socialist candidate for Mayor, asserted that "at no time during the campaign have we had reason to hope that we might do more than hold our last year's vote." The figures show that this result was almost attained if by last year's Socialist vote is meant the vote cast in Greater New York for the Socialist candidate for Governor, who was Mr. THOMAS himself. He received in the city last year slightly over 45,000 votes. On Tuesday he received 39,000 votes, but the Socialist candidate for Controller led him by 6,000. It is a serious decline from the vote of four years ago, when the Socialist candidate for Mayor polled 82,000 votes, and a very steep descent from the 1917 election, when Mr. MORRIS HILLQUIT received 145,000 votes. Some allowance should be made for the defection from the Socialist strength to the Workers' Party, whose candidate for Controller received about 3,000 votes. Last year the Presidential candidate of that party received 5,370 votes in New York City. The cold lesson of the figures is that the Socialist Party today is not quite so strong as it was a dozen years ago. In the municipal election of 1913 the Socialist candidate polled 32,000 votes, which would be the equivalent of 50,000 votes today with the women voting.

The Socialist Party today is feeling the effects of its war record and of the La Follette experiment of last year. The impressive Hillquit vote of 1917 was primarily an anti-war vote, predominantly non-Socialist. With that issue gone the Socialist craft has been left to sail on its own bottom. But this same anti-war record which attracted a large number of outsiders had the effect of alienating a large part of the old Socialist vote. Those seceders have not returned. With respect to LA FOLLETTE the Socialists, as it would appear now, made the mistake of surrendering their old rigidity of doctrine in the hope of merging with the labor forces with whom the older Socialists would have no traffic. Organized labor has definitely turned its back on the idea of a separate party. Mr. THOMAS admitted that while the rise of a strong labor party is "inevitable," the conditions under which such a party will show its strength "do not now exist." The Socialist future in New York City at least would involve a slow process of rebuilding to a point where the Socialist vote is large enough to command attention as a party of protest. Its present numbers are not sufficient even for that purpose.

SOME OTHER CITY ELECTIONS.

If the red fire smoldered here, it burned fiercely enough in some other municipal campaigns. By it we can watch the progress and the regress of those hooded heads so rich in wisdom. In Buffalo Mayor SCHWAB got the largest vote ever polled by a municipal candidate since the commission form of government began in 1914, and beat by 22,000 votes the nominee believed to be blest with the favor of the Klan. In Detroit Mayor SMITH, a Catholic, was re-elected by nearly 30,000 majority over the avowed darling of that curious concern. Let it be recorded to the honor of HENRY FORD of Detroit that he disagreed with HENRY FORD of Dearborn, supported SMITH, and swatted intolerance. With unexpected humor, the Ku Kluxers begged Catholics and negroes to vote for the White Sheet nominee. The Louisville K. K. K. threw up the sponge on the Sunday before election. The Democratic candidate was dropped as smeared too palpably with Klannishness, and a former Judge, of Irish name, substituted. Even so, the Republican won and the Klan was beaten.

While the Louisville Republicans were fighting the Klan, the Indianapolis Republicans, steered by Governor "Ed" JACKSON'S right-hand man, were winning an inglorious victory. The Republican-Klan favorite for Mayor was elected, but the Republican vote fell off notably. A United Protestant school ticket in Indianapolis, that capital of Western literature and light, is a queer thing. Doubtless many Protestants in Indianapolis, as they are known to have done in Detroit, united to bang the Klan. Some day these transient combinations of bigotry and politics will be looked upon as wonderingly as the Knownothingism of seventy years ago now is. The flabby politicians, Democratic or Republican, who have tied themselves up with the Klan, will yet regret, as some of their predecessors did, that this edifying chapter can't be expunged from their record.

The Indiana Republican chiefs are pursuing a noble and thoughtful policy. Two Senators from Indiana are to be elected in 1926. Will the watchword be "Support Coolidge and Tolerance—by supporting the Klan"? Our heart goes out to "JIM" WATSON as he squirms on the anxious seat. But let us take a long jump to Rochester. She deserves the order of merit. Who would have looked to Uncle GEORGE ALDRIDGE'S reservation for a demonstration of independent voting, even if he had such a taking way with local Democrats? His successor, "JIM" HOTCHKISS, has something less than the old man's art. He "turned down" Mayor VAN ZANDT. None the less the Mayor was re-elected on the strength of a good administration. What is more important, Rochester adopted an amended charter, in spite of its offensive name, the "Model Charter." The main provision is for a City Manager after Jan. 1, 1928. The City Manager League, to which some 80,000 citizens adhered, put forward the plan as purely civic and non-political. Rochester approved it by a majority of some 12,000.

If we come last to Boston, we love her most. Hers was the campaign of campaigns. Leaflets and circulars rained from the air and choked up the subway. Half a dozen bands of Democratic brothers pummeled one another with the utmost vehemence and joy. There were so many Democratic candidates that there were not enough Democratic votes and a Republican, Mr. MALCOLM E. NICHOLS, slipped in. He is an educated and competent man. The worst "charge" brought against him was that he was born in Maine. The Good Government Association and many Democrats favored him. He will have an opportunity to give Boston a business administration, if he keeps clear of the Republican machine. In the everlasting hurly-burly, it has been impossible to determine what the Democratic row was about. If, as Mayor CURLEY said, it was a shindy between Curleyism and anti-Curleyism, the anti-Curleyites win collectively, though they lose separately. But Mayor CURLEY, like MARTIN LOMASNEY and "Honey Fitz," is a public treasure and monument. Long may they be with us, even if two of them are so ferociously "again the other."

A WOMAN ALDERMAN.

It is a long way from the Anglo-Saxon ealdorman, whose name suggested both age and masculinity, to the newly elected New York City Alderman of the Fifteenth District, Mrs. JOHN T. PRATT. It is even a long way from some of our own nearer precedents. But those who know Mrs. PRATT will be sure that the office has been elevated by her election. Of New England birth and college training, she has, since coming to New York, taken a most active and intelligent interest in public affairs, and has in the last few years been prominently associated with the Republican Party, both nationally and locally.

Her best preparation for Aldermanic duties is what she has done along other than political lines. This is her work as head of the Education Committee for the Teaching of Non-English-Speaking Women. The Board of Education has not been able to make special provision for this large group of foreign-born adults. Except for the neighborhood teachers which this committee provides, these women are for the most part shut away from opportunity to acquire the English language, and so are not only debarred from the franchise because they cannot qualify for a literacy certificate, but are virtually isolated from those who cannot understand their alien tongue. To several thousand of these the teachers employed by this committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. PRATT, who has borne the financial responsibility for the work, though contributions have come from many others as well, have gone during the past three years. Nearly 200 classes were held last year, one-half of them in the homes of the women where a few of them are gathered for instruction in English, since many of them cannot go to the schools. As it is, only one-twentieth of those in need of such instruction are at present reached.

Whatever Mrs. PRATT may do as an Alderman, she will in her own person be the tutelary of the illiterate women who are being led into literacy and citizenship in their homes—a modern Domiduca with civic as well as political functions. "Dull as an Alderman" will no longer have the appropriateness that it once had. The latest Aldermanic apotheosis has no suggestion of age, masculinity or stupidity. It suggests rather their opposites.

BRONX PARKWAY DEDICATION.

This afternoon the Bronx River Parkway will be dedicated. Many more than the 1,500 for whom a stand has been built at Valhalla Bridge will take part in rejoicing. Thousands of motorists have learned this speediest of approaches to the city, already surpassingly beautiful with its bickering rapids, its broad lagoons and sudden waterfalls. Hundreds of thousands of commuters have watched the gradual disappearance of squalid huts and factory dumps, the purification of a historic stream fallen to the sad estate of a sewer, the conversion of rubbish-littered swamps, of neglected pastures and of ancient trees, long neglected, into a stately landscape garden.

In a way the enterprise was archaeological. Nothing quite so ancient as King TUT emerged, but numerous relics were dredged up dating from the bicycle dynasty and not a few from the dynasty of hoopskirts and bustles. Rusted iron bedsteads were so numerous that whole gardens—Italian gardens—have been fenced in with headboards and footboards. A few landmarks have passed, such as the inn that gave title to HOPKINSON SMITH'S idyl of the early '90s, "A Day at Laguerre's." There is ample compensation in points of historic interest that have come into a prominence long deserved. One can now fully appreciate the fact that the British plan for invading the country during the Revolution included an expedition of ships of the line up the Bronx River. At White Plains the Parkway passes in the shadow of the rocky knoll where ALEXANDER HAMILTON—a lad of 19, yet already deep in the lore that later gave substance to The Federalist—dragged forward his battery on a ledge and fought back a detachment of Hessians who were fording the river.

To travelers amazed at the splendor of some few of the public works in a city so long boss-ruled the explanation is not without humiliation. Too often the inspiring vision has been that of political contracts. In one sense our parks and boulevards are worth many times what they cost, but the literal fact remains that they cost many times what they were worth. That is not true of the Bronx River Parkway. Mr. MADISON GRANT and his commission had the vision to perceive that the presence of a railway in the valley, especially an electrified railway, would detract little or nothing from its natural beauty, its atmosphere of seclusion and peace. They realized that the very squalor into which it had fallen rendered condemnation easy and cheap. They felt the attraction which the city finds in an exit boulevard without grade crossings, as also the value to all adjacent real estate of what is at once a beautiful park and an avenue of access. As it happened, the only inquisition came from Tammany Hall. While building bridges for cross traffic the engineers found it cheaper to divert temporarily the course of the Bronx. When reporting on his inspection of their work the Commissioner of Accounts made this the climax of his indictment: "And they put the bridges where the river ain't."

"BUSINESS AS USUAL" IN ENGLAND.

On Tuesday the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced that the embargo on foreign and colonial loans had been removed. The "old and full freedom" of the London money market is thus restored. Its significance is pointed by the remark of Mr. MITCHELL, President of our largest bank, when he returned from abroad a few days ago and said: "If they are able to take the final step, which would be the elimination of the restriction against the issue of foreign securities in their market, they will have established in reality sterling's value with respect to other currencies and with respect to gold and parity." Admiration of the boldness and skill of the support of sterling is mingled with interest as to its effect upon our own affairs, industrial as well as financial.

Hereafter we shall feel increasingly the competition of England in both lending money and selling goods. From now on the comparison of bank rates and price levels will be closer. During England's absence from the world money market we have exported capital on a great scale. During the first half of this year we purchased foreign securities to the total of $551,591,000, against $160,000,000 bought by London. The figures are those of the Department of Commerce. Wall Street compilations raise the total above a billion dollars for the nine months of 1925. England now ends her voluntary retirement as the leading international capital market, and we are limiting our excessive lending. The word has gone out that our capital should be lent preferably to those who will use it abroad productively or take our goods instead of gold. The Department of Commerce estimates that German imports for the first half of 1925 were double 1924, chiefly as the result of loans to Germans. London now appears as a competitive lender and therefore as a competitive seller. American bankers of high authority have counseled free lending as the only way to restrict our excess of gold. The foreign and domestic goods markets and money markets are now in unusually close relation. Bank rates and price levels will divide interest with the stock market.

THE MITCHELL COURT-MARTIAL.

The army court-martial trying Colonel WILLIAM MITCHELL under the Articles of War for conduct subversive of military discipline cannot be charged with indifference to his full legal rights. From the opening day it has been scrupulous in recognizing them, even to the point of giving him the benefit of every doubt. Two members of the Court, General SUMMERALL (originally the President) and General BOWLEY, were released when charged by the accused with "prejudice and bias." In the case of General STADEN the challenge was peremptory. Both of the members directed to retire believed that, notwithstanding the exceptions taken to them, they could have rendered judgment impartially. But the fact that they had publicly uttered opinions about the charges made by Colonel MITCHELL in connection with the administration of the Army Air Service was regarded as a disqualification, in the sense that they had adopted views which might affect their decision. The Court was determined that its impartiality should be above suspicion. Nine of the members remained. As a two-thirds vote is required to condemn and pass sentence, Colonel MITCHELL will be absolved if four of his judges decide that he was not guilty of the charges in the eight specifications.

The Court gave close attention to all the points raised by counsel in the matter of jurisdiction, afterward retiring to vote upon them. It appeared that President COOLIDGE, as Commander-in-Chief, had ordered the preliminary inquiry that led to preferment of charges. The plea of justification, on the ground that the President, in a public speech, had intimated that officers should be allowed "latitude" as critics of the military services, was disallowed after much argument, apparently because it was regarded as irrelevant to the case before the Court. After all objections to the trial were disposed of and Colonel MITCHELL had entered a plea of not guilty, the way seemed to be cleared for the regular procedure. The statements complained of, which he made at San Antonio on Sept. 5 and 9, were spread upon the record. A motion to dismiss the case was not entertained, and then the defense asked to be allowed to summon more than seventy witnesses to prove the charges that had been made by Colonel MITCHELL.

It was a critical stage of the trial. The issue had been already drawn and made clear, but desiring to give the defendant every opportunity to exculpate himself the Court acceded to the request. Under court-martial rules admissibility of evidence may be determined by personal examination. Subject to that condition, Colonel MITCHELL could summon his witnesses. There was no list of them ready. An adjournment had been taken for almost a week. The delay was embarrassing at a time when the trial seemed to be nearing its end without infringing upon any of the defendant's rights. For the postponement General HOWZE, President of the Court, held the Judge Advocate in part responsible with Colonel MITCHELL'S counsel, declaring that both sides had had ample time to prepare. Courts-martial of such a character have been so rare that neither side seemed to be familiar with the right procedure. To the sitting Generals it was a new duty, and one to be discharged with a knowledge that the accused had a popular following and must not be made the victim of an error. The prospect now is that the trial may be long drawn out. Colonel MITCHELL cannot complain that his rights are being tampered with. The Court is so far from being arbitrary in its rulings that it has allowed his counsel more latitude than is usual in military trials.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Worked Here as Well as Elsewhere.

It is characteristic of both the parochialism and the self-sufficiency—sometimes called conceit—of New York City that on Tuesday it treated the voting machines in one of its Assembly districts as if they were something quite new, to be condemned or approved, according to the city's judgment of them.

Such little knowledge as existed here of the fact that these machines have been in constant and entirely satisfactory use for fifteen or twenty years in many other cities did not prevent those New Yorkers who had it from acting as if it were by no means certain that the device would work here.

This queerest of metropolitan traits has had frequent illustration in the past. As a result of it we did not get electric trolley cars till long after they were common all over the rest of the country; for several years we heard with acquiescence the statements of certain engineers to the effect that though centre doors in subway cars might be well enough in Boston, they were impracticable here; and only a little while ago our health authorities tested for themselves the claim that respiratory diseases could be cured by the administration of chlorine gas and decided that it was worse than worthless, though it long had been successfully employed for that purpose in other places.

As it turned out, the voting machines showed here the same efficiency which they have been showing for more than a decade no further away than New Rochelle. They did not display their full possibility as simplifiers and hasteners of the getting in of returns, but that was only because the police in some instances quite unnecessarily followed an old routine in the handling of the results as telephoned to headquarters. But there seems to have been no overt effort to prevent the machines from giving good service. That is just a little surprising, when one remembers how many of our local politicians, for reasons not particularly mysterious, have opposed their introduction bitterly and obstinately.

Criticism Mostly Baseless.

Of the faults in our voting machines that were found the majority were baseless, some of the others were in the "very nature of things" and the impossibility of attaining perfection in the conduct of any human activity, and one, as to having more little levers on the face of the machines than were to be used by the voters, has some sense in it. That one, seemingly, should be remediable by removing the superfluous levers.

The complaint that the voter does not know that his vote has been recorded has a semblance of justice, but to assume that the machine does its work in accordance with the intention of its designer requires the exercise of no great amount of faith—certainly no more than the assumption that a paper ballot will not be mutilated or marked before it is put in the ballot box and that it will be honestly counted by tired clerks in the hours beyond midnight. The machines themselves will not try to cheat.

The machines do not make fraud impossible, but they do make it more difficult and more dangerous, and as soon as the clerks are familiar with them they will expose themselves to grave suspicion if it takes them more than twenty minutes, or at most half an hour, to have their full returns ready for transmission to headquarters and the press.

The New York observers were astonished to see that voting was faster with a single machine than it is with five or six curtained booths wherein to commune with a black lead pencil. That is no news in the towns where the machines have been long in use. Nor is it news that the machines soon pay for themselves by the decrease they permit in the night force at the polling places.

Before the next election there is little question that the whole city will be equipped with voting machines. Then New York will have caught up with the more progressive parts of the country—in that respect at least.

A Defeat, but All Is Not Lost.

By small but sufficient majorities both Westchester and Nassau Counties decided that they didn't want new charters and would get along for a while longer—at least two years and probably five—with the charters under which they have lived for the better part of a century.

The right of the voters so to decide is indubitable. The advocates of a change, however, have no reason for despair and none to charge themselves with having wasted their time in advocating it. The debates of the past few weeks have caused the residents of the two counties to give more thought to the qualities and methods of government provided for them than they have devoted to that subject in all their previous years; and if it is true, as one of the new Westchester charter's fiercest opponents said Tuesday evening after the defeat of it became known, "Now we are ready to draw up a really good one," then the would-be reformers justly can claim that they have accomplished much.

Just how soon the making of "a really good charter" will begin remains to be seen. The drafters of the rejected charter knew its faults as well as anybody—they knew that it was a compromise between the ideal and the practicable. Perhaps another commission, should one be appointed, will have the courage which this one lacked in the way of consolidating county activities as they should be consolidated, and in doing away with all the unnecessary positions in the public service which long have been the currency of politics and the refuge of the queer people who prefer political positions to meeting the severer competition encountered in ordinary commercial and professional life. If they do, the charter they devise, whatever its theoretical merits, will have an even harder road to travel than this one did.

It Doesn't Seem Promising.

Commissioner ENRIGHT will have the best of wishes for the success of the "arsenal cars" with which he is about to campaign against the bandits. There is no doubt that the occupants of these machines will be able, with their large assortment of weapons and their courageous determination to use them on fit occasion, to make short work of any despoilers whom they find at work.

But how, no matter what their eagerness for action, are the police to do the finding? Only in the rarest instances are the plans of bandit attack known beforehand. Usually the attacks are surprise attacks, and those who would and could repel them are somewhere else. The robbers take care, as the very basis of their operations, that the police shall be somewhere else. Certainly the armored cars, with their machine guns and their sawed-off shotguns and their assorted pistols and clubs, cannot be each in more than one place at a time. And in New York City there are so many places, in any one of which a surprise attack, boldly carried out, would give a rich reward!

But the Commissioner's plan, though it does not excite high and instant hopes, is well worth trying. General BUTLER in Philadelphia did something like it, and achieved some success. Present crime conditions are of a new kind and must be met, if at all, in new ways. And arsenal cars are new.

QUOTATION AND SCHOLARS.

Senator Lodge, 'Scholar in Politics,' Questions Wilson's Scholarship.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If in his book "The Senate and the League of Nations," extracts from which were printed in THE TIMES today, the late Senator Lodge's conclusions as to the character, acts and motives of Woodrow Wilson were derived from premises as inadequate logically as those from which he reaches the conclusion that President Wilson "was not a scholar in the true sense at all," their accuracy might well be subject to question.

Senator Lodge states in his book that only once had he found a classical allusion in President Wilson's writings or speeches, and that then the allusion was incorrect, and he seems to take the absence of such quotation in the President's spoken or written expressions as evidence overpowering in support of the negative indictment which he lays against the subject of his criticism; indeed, he goes on to say:

"I have also noticed that in Mr. Wilson's speeches, addresses and writings he very rarely makes a literary quotation. • • • This would seem to indicate that Mr. Wilson, educated as he was in certain directions, politics, history and political economy, was not a widely read man, for a lover of literature and letters instinctively and almost inevitably thinks of the words of the poet or great prose writer which express better than he can in writing or speaking the idea he is trying to enforce."

For obvious reasons, no court would convict a man of not being "a scholar in the true sense" on such evidence alone; it might instead issue him a certificate of literary taste, for are not most writers of distinction wary of quotation? Emerson seemed to be on the fence as to the propriety and esthetics of quotation, for while saying that "quotation confesses inferiority," elsewhere he declares that "a great man quotes bravely." On the other hand, Steele comes out squarely and fearlessly and avers that "there is nothing so pedantic as many quotations."

One thing seems certain, that if Woodrow Wilson, universally received as a scholar, was, as Mr. Lodge charged, "not a scholar in the true sense," it is not proved solely by the fact that the late President's paucity of quotation—and Mr. Lodge offers nothing else in the way of proof—at least not in those extracts from his book which appear in today's TIMES. Perhaps Mr. Wilson thought quoting vulgar, and that almost anybody could quote; boys at the high school and freshmen are continually at it; or was he deterred by the lines of the author of "Night Thoughts" in his "Love of Fame":—

Some for renown, on scraps of learning dote,
And think they grow immortal as they quote.

Mr. Lodge himself was a veteran quoter, and once in a magazine article sought to defend his hobby against the attack of some one who had observed that the Massachusetts Senator's published speeches were "very well in their way, with skillfully distributed 'familiar quotations'."

As for the incorrect rendering, as Mr. Lodge asserts, of the solitary quotation which he states was the only one he knew the late war President ever to have employed, it is almost too commonly known to warrant mentioning that all writers, even the most practiced and productive, slip at times in their quotations. SANCTUARY.

A road climbs gallantly the hill,
Up to the very top,
And then, as though fatigued by its
Hard labors, seems to drop
Down at the gate of an old house—
Contentedly, to stop.

This house is weathered gray—its face
Looks comforting and kind.
Like friendly eyes, each window blinks
Behind a faded blind.
Around it murmurs constantly
The whispering of the wind.

The sky bends down so close, it seems,
When all the world is still,
As though one might have speech with truth,
Upon this lofty hill—
Might hear the voices of the stars,
Thin, crystalline and chill!

So, midst life's grind and care, my thoughts,
Like homing birds, fare free
To the gay road, the kindly house,
The grim, high hill—all three.
When working days are done at last,
There's refuge there for me!

A LEAGUE OF STUDENTS.

A Gathering in Geneva Appealing to Younger Generation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under the inspiration largely of Professor Alfred E. Zimmern, who held the Chair of History and Politics at Oxford University, the Geneva Federation was established in 1924. It is a Summer school planned to afford students of all nations in or out of college an opportunity of hearing lectures on international politics and world affairs and to participate in discussions on these subjects. Influential Americans became interested in it, and as a result invitations were extended to American college students or non-college students to attend. This year some twenty-five American students registered, and in some cases scholarships were allotted. Among the American colleges represented were Columbia, Barnard, Vassar, Bryn Mawr, Harvard, Princeton, Yale and Chicago.

Among those receiving scholarships was Miss Elena Aldcroft of New York—just out of Bryn Mawr, and who, while at college, had planned her courses so as to include international relations and world history. She attended the full sessions of the Federation, and her account of the work done is of real interest to students in America and to readers generally. Here are some of her views:

"One must not think that the Federation is one of the activities of the League of Nations, for such is not the fact. It was thought by those learned men who inspired and established it that Geneva would be a good place to have such an institution, and the League happens to be there, too. And it happens also that many men interested in world relations go there either to look in at the League or to transact some business there in which the League has some part. You would be surprised to know, I think, how many American men and women are seen at Geneva because of their interest in some phase of international relationships. And of course they come from all over the world, too.

"Some of these come especially to lecture at the Federation. In this way the students hear a multitude of expressions of opinion and much contemporary politics as well. Professor Zimmern—that brilliant Oxford scholar—is Honorary President, and then there is the equally brilliant Manley O. Hudson, Professor of International Law at Harvard. Professor Hudson, in addition to his duties as one of the legal advisers of the League of Nations, finds time to give a series of lectures on his subject at the Federation in his most striking and convincing manner.

"But the students themselves were most interesting to me, of course. There were approximately 200 registered at one time during the session. They came from universities and schools in Australia, Japan, South Africa and all Europe, Egypt, Canada and even from India—all earnest and some brilliant. And in the discussions following each lecture the students participated, and then their curious and many-sided views were best disclosed.

"I was delighted to find so many women students there, too. In all, there were about fifty, of whom about ten were from the United States. We were all helped so much by the charming and brilliant wife of Professor Zimmern, formerly a lecturer at the University of Wales and at Cornell University. Then there were Professors Alfred E. Longueil of the University of California, James T. Shotwell and Spencer Miller Jr. of Columbia.

"While the number of American students was small, it seemed to me that the interest of the United States was very large. The American students seemed to have a splendid eagerness in the work, and this, I think, was due to the fact that we were in the centre of things of world interest. We seemed to hear and know a great deal of cooperation, if not in world politics altogether, at least in world health, world economics and world labor affairs. I feel sure that next Summer many more American men and women students will be found there." JOHN FLYNN.

Sees No Danger in Catholic President

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of Senator Bruce demonstrates clearly that the dangers arising out of a Roman Catholic holding the office of President of the United States are entirely mythical, so far as the continuation of our national policies are concerned, and scarcely probable when their origin is the Klan and its spurious adherents.

I see no reason why an international religion should instill fear into the heart of any Protestant citizen, when it is a fact that there are somewhere about seven non-Catholics to a minority of one. Such a numerical ratio should make them feel confident that they still hold the reigns of government in their hands, no matter who is at the head. Moreover, a catholic or universal religion must have its seat of activity somewhere, and why not be satisfied that it is Rome? Certainly they don't want it here, but even if it were, the numerical factor of safety still holds true.

If a Catholic Mayor has never compromised the city, a Governor the State, a Judge the judiciary, why should such a President endanger the nation? The only danger comes from those intolerant classes who are blinded to their own power by the vaporings of fanatical alarmists. A. G. FREDRICKS.

Stammerer Seeks Advice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can any reader advise me how to get out of the rut I am in? How can I make any headway in this world? I am a young man of 30, afflicted with an impediment in my speech. I stammer, and my stammering has handicapped me everywhere I turn, in social as well as in business life. The future looks dark and hopeless to me.

I have lots of ambition and good business ideas, but on account of my affliction it is hard for me to connect in the right place. I am holding down a Government job which pays little. I have no chance of advancement and the work is not interesting. I am so tired of it all; my best years are being wasted. If I could get some kind of a start I am sure I would make some headway. Punishment for Vote Slackers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What do you think of the citizen who refuses to register and vote on the ground that he wishes to be free from jury duty?

Some years ago, after registration week had expired, a newspaper headed its editorial section with these well-chosen words: "If you haven't registered, stop writing letters to this and other newspapers on how the community ought to be governed. The ward heeler is a better citizen than you are."

By the way, cannot the Commissioner of Jurors get his list of talesmen elsewhere than from registration lists and so take this miserable excuse from the vote slackers?

SHIP SALE OPPOSED BY WAR DEPARTMENT

BOARD DOES NOT APPROVE

Insists South American Service Should Be Kept Up in Interest of the Merchant Marine.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Steps were taken by the War Department today to block the proposed sale by the United States Shipping Board of the Pan-America Line, on the ground that two of its four steamers—the American Legion and the Southern Cross—are needed for use in the army transport service. The steamers ply between New York and South American ports.

The Shipping Board is opposed to the transfer of any of the Pan-America Line vessels to the War Department, holding that such action probably would have the effect of breaking up the only American flag route now in operation with the east coast of South America.

Members of the board stated today that they had offered several times to turn over to the War Department for transports the steamers Agamemnon and Mount Vernon, former German vessels, now at the army base at Norfolk, but department officials refused them and appeared insistent on having the American Legion and the Southern Cross, although this would interfere seriously with the maintainance of the Shipping Board route to South America.

Shipping Board officials assert that the maintenance of the Pan-America Line is vital in connection with the effort to build up the American merchant marine; that it has been an important factor in the development of trade and financial relations with South America, and is aiding the improvement of relations between this country and South America. They assert that if the Pan-America Line was not maintained an advantage would be reaped by the Lamport & Holt Line, a British concern, competing with the Pan-America Line.

Secretary Davis wrote today to Colonel H. C. Smither, chief coordinator of the Budget Bureau, with a view to halting the sale of the two vessels, so as to enable the War Department to obtain them by transfer as surplus property for use as army transports. This action was taken after the department had learned that bids were opened Monday in which the Munson Steamship Line had offered $1,026,000 and Moore & McCormack $1,025,025 for each of the four ships of the Pan-America Line.

The chief coordinator's office has called a conference for Friday morning, when representatives of both the Shipping Board and the War Department may be heard. Meanwhile the Shipping Board is going ahead with its plans, and late this afternoon President Crowley left for New York City to negotiate with the Munson Steamship Line and Moore & McCormack.

War Department officials would not comment today on its latest move in the matter.

ASSAILS MONROE DOCTRINE.

Bishop Calls It Unnecessary, and Unpopular in South America.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 4 (AP).—Bishop William F. Oldham of Buenos Aires, of the Methodist Episcopal Church in South America, declared at a banquet today that the Monroe Doctrine has served its day.

"North America," he said, "is too content to be comparatively uninformed regarding a most prodigious group of nations that lie close to us; nations of immense undeveloped resources and without the endless racial antagonisms that separate European States; all republics in form of government, and most desirable therefore for the closest kind of international alliances.

"But that can never be done by the constant assertion of the Monroe Doctrine. That has served its day. The touch of patronage there is in it prevents its being acceptable in the South. It should flower into Pan-Americanism, and the statement should no longer be of one caring for twenty, but twenty-one American republics all seated at the family table, with the motto 'each for all and all for each.'"

Bishop Oldham has been in charge of Methodist missions in Latin America ten years.

"I have conceived," he said, "a very deep respect and affection for these Latin people, for I really have come to know them. My greatest ambition would be to bring this country of mine to a closer affiliation with them."

MISS FIELD BRIDE OF WALTER HOVING

BRIDAL GOWN AN HEIRLOOM

Miss Trowbridge Married J. J. Murphy—Hager-Gaddess Troth Told at Reception.

St. Bartholomew's Church was crowded with members of old New York families yesterday afternoon for the marriage of Miss Mary Osgood Field, only daughter of Thomas Pearsall Field, and a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Field, to Walter Hoving, son of Dr. and Mrs. Johannes Hoving, of this city. White roses and chrysanthemums, Southern smilax and ferns decorated the chancel, and there was a full choral service by the vested choir, who sang the wedding music from "Lohengrin" as the bride marched up the aisle. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played as the recessional. The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Robert Norwood, assisted by the Rev. Albert Wilson.

The bride was escorted up the aisle by her father who gave her in marriage. Her gown was of old family point applique and Irish point lace, an accumulation of many generations which came down to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Augustus Field, the former Miss Fanny Bradhurst, and it was her desire that this lace should be worn by her granddaughters at their weddings. The oldest portion of the lace, some Irish point, was made in 1730 and has been in the family ever since. The gown was made on simple lines with long tight sleeves and a long court train. The veil was of the same old lace. Instead of a bouquet, the bride carried an ivory bound prayer book with a marker of old lace and lilies of the valley.

Miss Barbara Harrison Trowbridge, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Q. Trowbridge of 10 East Seventy-seventh Street, was married to John Joseph Potter Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Murphy, yesterday afternoon at the home of her parents. Autumn foliage, palms and chrysanthemums decorated the house. The ceremony was performed by the bridegroom's brother, the Rev. Dr. Francis Murphy, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends. The bride was escorted by her father to the temporary altar which had been arranged at one end of the drawing room. She wore a gown of ivory colored velvet made with long tight sleeves and a court train of old rose point lace. Her veil was of the same lace and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

A. R. SHATTUCK DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Retired Banker's Death Said to Have Been Hastened by Shock of Robbery Here in 1922.

FAMILY LOCKED IN VAULT

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., Nov. 4.—Albert R. Shattuck, retired New York banker of 19 Washington Square North, died of heart disease this afternoon at 5:20 o'clock at his villa, The Mount, on the north shore of Laurel Lake. He was in his seventy-third year. Mrs. Shattuck and Dr. Bruce W. Paddock of Pittsfield were with him when he died. For several weeks he had been kept alive with oxygen.

Most of Mr. Shattuck's friends believe that the shock of the robbery at his New York home on April 2, 1922, undermined his health and hastened his death, but one who was close to him said tonight that was not true. He said Mr. Shattuck had dismissed the robbery entirely from his mind. He arrived from London in June and the last of July suffered a severe heart attack. A cable was sent for Mrs. Shattuck, who was then in Paris, and she came the first week of August. She had been at his bedside almost constantly day and night since then.

Mr. Shattuck had been a Summer resident of Lenox more than forty years. His father, William Shattuck, for a long time owned what is now Brookhurst, the estate of Newbold Morris. In 1911 Mr. Shattuck bought The Mount, a large estate with a palatial villa, which Mrs. Edith Wharton, the novelist, had created on Laurel Lake shore. He was a member of the Lenox Club and Trinity Episcopal Church in Lenox. He is survived by his widow, who was Mary Strong, daughter of the late Mayor Strong of New York.

It is probable the funeral will be held in Lenox on Friday, with burial at Woodlawn.

The name of Albert R. Shattuck has appeared often in the newspapers since Sunday, April 2, 1922, when five thieves invaded his home at 19 Washington Square North, locked him, Mrs. Shattuck and eight servants in a wine vault in the cellar, and escaped with jewelry valued at $50,000.

Gabriel Alphonse Mourey, lead of the Apache band of five, had been butler for the Shattucks in 1917 and then had fled with $12,000 worth of jewels. He was thoroughly familiar with the routine of the household and planned the crime so carefully that it worked without a hitch.

Early on the morning of April 2, 1922, Mourey gained entrance to the cellar of the Shattuck home and lay in concealment until after noon. Knowing that the eight servants would then be at their lunch and that Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck would be in their apartments, Mourey admitted his four accomplices and led them upstairs. They then herded Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck and the servants in a wine vault, where they would all have suffocated had not Mr. Shattuck been able to unscrew the lock of the door with his pocket knife and a dime.

Mr. Shattuck immediately began a relentless search for the desperadoes who had nearly caused the death of every member of his household. Mrs. Shattuck, her nerves shattered, went to Europe to recuperate, and the home in Washington Square was closed. One by one the thieves were caught and sentenced to prison. Two were taken in France. One of these, Mourey, was tried in France and sentenced to death, but his term was commuted to life imprisonment. Mr. Shattuck made several trips to France to aid in the search and offered large rewards for the capture of the thieves. Mrs. Shattuck came to this country a year ago to testify at the trial of the last of the thieves. All are now in prison. Paul Camilleri, the last of the thieves to be tried, was arrested in France more than a year ago and sentenced last June to from forty-five to sixty-five years in Sing Sing. Because of his unflagging pursuit of the criminals Mr. Shattuck was made an honorary Deputy Police Commissioner by Police Comissioner Richard E. Enright in September, 1924.

At the time of the robbery Mr. Shattuck was 70 years old and it is understood that the shock of the robbery and the subsequent strain made inroads on his health.

Mr. Shattuck retired several years ago from his banking business. He accumulated his fortune in New Orleans and was considered one of Wall Street's shrewdest investors. The Shattuck home in Washington Square was often referred to as one of the most artistic in the city. Mr. Shattuck was of a literary turn and was also a devotee of automobiling. He had served as President of the New York Automobile Club.

In Philadelphia—National Bank, $250,000.

In Boston—First National Bank, $250,000. This bank also holds $50,000 of the Ferguson-McKinney commercial paper.

In St. Louis—Boatsmen's Bank, $250,000; American Trust Company, $150,000; First National Bank, $150,000; National City Bank, $100,000; Liberty Central Trust Company, $100,000.

Assistant United States Attorney Statler said today that while no official complaint had been made as to alleged falsification of Ferguson-McKinney financial statements, he believed one would be made when the audit is presented. The reason for his belief lay in statements made to him by stockholders who visited him yesterday for informal advice.

INVENTOR BRIGHT'S WILL.

Sisters and Widow Get Bulk of Estate of More Than $100,000.

The will of Fred E. Bright, inventor, who died at Greenwich, Conn., on Oct. 7 last, disposes of more than $100,000 in specific bequests and indicates that the total value of the estate is considerably more than this amount. The document was filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday, making Mr. Bright's sisters and his widow, Mrs. Mary Scarnworth Bright, the principal beneficiaries.

Legacies of $20,000 and a one-fourth interest in the residuary estate were left to each of his sisters. They are Mrs. Laura Belle Damerel, Mrs. Linna Mary Aylsworth and Louella I. Sibley, all of California, and Mrs. Eunice A. Gray of Greenwich. The widow gets $50,000, with the explanation that "she has been amply provided for."

Hoyt V. Bright, a brother, of La Verne, Cal., receives $10,000 and Reginald J. Koster of 154 West Fifty-sixth Street, who was associated with Mr. Bright in his laboratory, inherits a legacy of $1,000 and $600 for each year he has been in the employ of Mr. Bright, or approximately $10,000. Another employe, Edward Hinchliffe of Lynbrook, L. I., receives all tools and laboratory equipment.

ASKS BUSINESS MEN TO HELP THE FARMER

Farm Congress Chairman Appeals to Head of U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 4 (AP).—Business interests are called upon to help solve the farmer's problem, in an open letter from W. I. Drummond, Chairman of the American Farm Congress, to John W. O'Leary, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Commercial interests, in Mr. Drummond's opinion, should aid in attacking the problem of the disposal of the surpluses of farm products, which they helped to create. The surplus problem is the biggest one from the standpoint of the farmer, because, he says, it makes the tariff ineffective and forces American prices down to world levels. He adds:

"A cooperative association which could effectively handle surplus production and prevent it from breaking the domestic price might be formed.

"An export pool, to which each producer would consign that portion of his crop representing his contribution to the surplus, should do the work. If, for illustration, the wheat crop is 10 per cent. above the domestic requirements, then each grower would need to pool only 10 per cent. of his production or a very little more.

"This export pool could be handled by any one of a number of existing grain companies, or a special marketing organization might be set up. The grower would have 90 per cent. of his crop to dispose of when, where and how he pleased, with the assurance that the price would be on an American basis."

Mr. Drummond points out that while the farmers are told they must hold their production within domestic requirements in order to benefit from the tariff, great sums are expended to bring undeveloped lands into production, by the Railroad Colonization Departments, the Chambers of Commerce, by the Department of Agriculture through reclamation projects, and through agricultural colleges and the like.

POLICEMAN IS HELD ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Brooklyn Man Alleges He Was Beaten With Blackjack After Arrest as Burglar.

Patrolman Sidney Walsh of 2,090 East Seventh Street, Brooklyn, attached to the Sheepshead Bay Station, was charged with felonious assault in a warrant issued yesterday by Magistrate Dale in the Coney Island Court. Alfred Baratta, 25 years old, of 2,084 East Eighth Street, Brooklyn, complained that while he was held prisoner in the Sheepshead Bay Station on a charge of burglary Walsh struck him over the head with a blackjack. John Riordan of 375 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, attorney for Baratta, showed the Magistrate X-ray photographs of his client's injuries.

Magistrate Dale said that Baratta should never have been arrested, as there was no proof of the burglary charge.

"Why a policeman should beat him is beyond my understanding," the Magistrate said. "I want the perpetrator of this brutal assault brought before me forthwith."

Baratta was arrested on the complaint of John Lorea, who accused him of taking $18 from a closet in his home, at 2,092 East Seventh Street, Brooklyn. At the Magistrate's hearing it developed that Baratta had been on friendly terms with Lorea's sister for some time, but that the couple had quarreled. According to Baratta's story, he was called on the telephone, and when he alighted from a taxicab in front of the Lorea home Lorea and some other men forced him to go to the Sheepshead Bay Station, where the burglary charge was made against him. Then, he alleged, Walsh beat him over the head with a blackjack.

GEN. BUTLER UNDECIDED.

Won't Say Whether He Will Stay in the Marine Corps or Resign.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4 (AP).—Philadelphia waited in vain today for a definite statement from Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler as to whether he would return to the Marine Corps the first of the year or resign his commission and remain here as Director of Public Safety.

General Butler, when asked whether he intended to leave the Marine Corps, replied:

"That is my business. I'm going to take a respite from talking for the time being so that there will be no misunderstanding."

Earlier in the day the General was asked whether he would seek retirement because of physical disability, and replied that the yearly physical examination comes in December, and when ordered to do so he would take it. "If I don't pass, I will have to retire," he said.

General Butler's leave of absence expires Dec. 31, and he is slated, according to word from Washington, to take command of the marine base at San Diego, Cal., soon after Jan. 1.

The Public Safety Director intimated some time ago that if President Coolidge refused to extend his leave of absence from the Marine Corps another two years he might consider resigning the commission and remain in Philadelphia. Now that the President has refused further leave, the General today, although non-committal himself, was represented as being undecided as to his future course.

If he decides to return to the Marine Corps, he will be succeeded as Director of Public Safety by George W. Elliott, the Assistant Director and right-hand man to the General in all his police activities here, Mayor Kendrick said today after a conference with General Butler.

CAPE MAY TO SUE OFFICIAL.

Seeks to Recover $5,000 in Taxes From a Former Collector.

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Nov. 4.—The City Council at a special meeting today instructed City Solicitor E. W. Lloyd to bring civil suit against former Tax Collector Walter J. Fenderson to recover nearly $5,000 in taxes which it is said he has failed to turn into the city's treasury.

The shortage was discovered nearly two years ago and criminal proceedings were started but action was stayed until investigation revealed the entire shortage. Today's action was caused by information obtained by sending out delinquent tax notices for 1924.

The original shortage was $15,851. The American Surety Company paid $9,828 of the shortage and Fenderson paid $1,923. The unpaid balance in shown to be $5,023, which includes $800 interest.

TWO BANDITS GET $75,000.

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Nov. 4 (AP).—Two armed men about noon today held up Warren Walthour, messenger for the Vandergrift Savings and Trust Company, and took a satchel, said to contain $75,000 in currency and checks. Walthour reported to police here.

Walthour, aged 30, was en route to a railroad station to board a train for Pittsburgh. When about 100 yards from the station, he said, two men stepped from behind a parked automobile, covered him with guns and after beating him, took the satchel and escaped in the motor car. Walthour was taking the money to a Pittsburgh bank.

Sets of Italian Pottery
Designed Especially for Us

Eight extraordinarily lovely sets of Italian pottery have just arrived from Venice. Pottery designed especially for Au Quatrieme . . . . one set of each design . . . . and with the Southern home particularly in mind. Any one of these delightfully unexpected patterns being very much in the note of the Spanish or Italian interior. It is most improbable that one will chance on anything like them elsewhere.

Their whole feeling is Southern, boldly decorative and gay. One of the most amusing is patterned in jonquil yellow, gentian blue, Venetian red and green on a background of cream. Another is sprigged with rosebuds in the manner of old faience. The set illustrated has with its boldness a certain formal elegance in the graceful urns of trailing vines and flowers. And the very deep blue-green on the yellow-cream glaze is strikingly effective. Another set is distinguished by a harlequin-like border in diamonds of emphatic color. And still another reminds one of the charming whites and blues of old woven stuffs.

The shapes are quite as interesting as the designs. And each set consists of 89 pieces with all its plates, platters and vegetable dishes, soup-tureen, gravy boat and even its little mustard pot and pepper and salt complete.

NOTED LEADERS SAY THEY OBEY DRY LAW

Manufacturers' Record Finds Persons Prominent in Many Fields Favor Prohibition.

SOME RESENT THE INQUIRY

Editor of Detroit Times Says Banning Rum Is "Greatest Moral Step" in History.

LELAND HITS "WET LOBBY"

Auto Man Calls It Unscrupulous—Declares the Devil Never Had More Powerful Aid.

Acting on the editorial suggestion of THE NEW YORK TIMES that The Manufacturers Record follow up its publication of hundreds of letters from leading men favoring prohibition, with information regarding their personal observance of the Eighteenth Amendment, The Record has obtained scores of communications, from leaders in business, education, journalism and the professions, declaring, some of them vigorously, that they obey both the spirit and the letter of the law and practice in private what they applaud in print.

Some of these leaders stress again the benefits of prohibition to the working men and through him to his employer. Others point out that, even if prohibition advocates are, in some instances, victims of alcohol, their advocacy of the amendment, in spite of their own weakness, is a strong argument in favor of its absolute enforcement. The Manufacturers Record admits that, in a few instances, men asked about their personal practices regarding prohibition refused to permit publication of their names in connection with their statements.

To Be Issued as Pamphlet.

Advance sheets of the next issue of The Manufacturers Record set forth that the letters, of which a summary is given, will be published later in pamphlet form. Of Judge Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel Corporation, The Manufacturers Record says only that "it is hardly necessary to say that Judge Gary does not indulge in intoxicants." It leads its summary of letters with one from Henry M. Leland of Detroit, famous as a builder of automobiles and Liberty motors, who declares he has "never violated the prohibition laws in any way, shape or form." Mr. Leland is in his eighty-third year. His and the other letters summarized were received in response to a circular letter sent out by the editor of The Manufacturers Record, which, after quoting THE TIMES's editorial article, said:

If such a suggestion had appeared in a paper of less prominence than that of THE NEW YORK TIMES this comment would scarcely have needed consideration. While, however, we are glad of the position of THE TIMES as one of the great daily papers of the country, I feel justified in inviting your attention to this editorial as quoted above.

The assertion that is being constantly made that many advocates of prohibition are themselves violators of the prohibition laws must be my excuse for inviting your attention to the editorial suggestion of THE TIMES.

I cannot undertake to inquire into strictly personal matters as suggested by THE TIMES, but nevertheless, I am sending copies of this letter to every one who recently wrote me in favor of prohibition, with the suggestion that, if you care to make any reply or comment, your views will be greatly appreciated, and will throw much light upon this subject.

EDITOR MANFACTURERS RECORD.

Under the caption "Slanders Against Prohibitionists Refuted," the coming issue of The Manufacturers Record now asserts:

"These letters have come from men whose standing in the professional and business world no one can question; they emphasize more forcibly than has ever been done before, because such an opportunity was never before presented, their own strict obedience to the prohibition laws. We regret that two or three of the writers have regarded it beneath their notice to reply for publication to the question raised in THE TIMES. For instance, a distinguished United States District Judge in his letter said: 'I have never violated the prohibition law, and for the last ten years there has not been a drop of intoxicating liquor in my house, and yet I do not think it worth while to pay any attention to the cowardly practices of newspapers in making, by innuendo, reckless and baseless charges and insolently demanding that the persons so charged shall prove themselves innocent.'

Regarded as a "Reflection."

"A professor of political science in one of the foremost universities in the United States regarded the inquiry as 'a reflection on those who contributed to the symposium to inquire into their personal habits,' and doubted the propriety or utility of the investigation. A New England business man of large interests wrote: 'I happen to have been a teetotaler all my days, and yet for reasons similar to those of the preceding correspondent did not want his name to be published.

"President Edgerton of the National Association of Manufacturers, who is also President of a large manufacturing company in Tennessee, like many other manufacturers from whose letters we are quoting in the following pages, stands out as obeying to the extreme the prohibition laws. The unanimity of the replies is the most remarkable testimony which has yet been made public to the fact that the leaders in this country who favor prohibition are themselves rigidly obeying the prohibition law.

"It is possibly true that today there may be advocates of prohibition who themselves do not always practice what they preach; some of them doubtless find themselves under the control of a habit which they have not yet been able to break, but they want to see the accursed traffic stopped that they and others may be made the safer thereby. It would not be surprising if this were true. That would in no way whatever be an argument against prohibition; indeed, it would be a tremendous argument in favor of it."

The letter from Mr. Leland, after mentioning several of his business interests, referring to "these wonderful engines" and the fact that his concern employs from 5,000 to 6,000 men, continues:

"There has never been a lobby in this country so well equipped with influence and funds. There has never been one that has resorted to such low, unscrupulous and far-reaching methods as has this wet lobby. They have no scruple, no conscience, no regard or thought for right or wrong. They will invade, if they can, the most ideal and godlike institution in the community, all to advance their selfish and nefarious schemes. They do all this and a thousand other infamous things in their attempts to destroy the Eighteenth Amendment which, in my judgment, if left to work out its own beneficent ends, is the greatest boon to the American people they have ever enjoyed.

"This lobby has bribed officials, small and great. It has done everything in its power to make drunkards and vagabonds of the young of both sexes. It has succeeded in getting for patrons some of our hitherto respected and important citizens. In all the past ages the devil has never found so powerful a coadjutor having such resources and wealth without limit. Without scruple or question they go merrily on in their determination to ruin homes and business in this country, and the devil is laughing as he has never laughed before.

"However, they will not be able to accomplish their nefarious purpose. There are too many people in this country who are endowed and sanctified with common sense and who can see through these nefarious plots. They will stand like adamant to oppose and defeat the legions of the lower world who are attempting to force upon our fair and beneficent country this greatest of curses."

Here the Manufacturers' Record resumes:

"The force of these letters as a whole is then more powerful in their influence for good in behalf of prohibition and for setting right the thought of the country than were the hundreds of letters we recently published. We have met the challenge of THE NEW YORK TIMES and in these remarkable answers we have found justification for putting such a direct, personal question to men, some of whom felt that the very question itself suggested by THE TIMES was most unwise as an intimation that they were preaching what they did not practice."

Some of the summaries of the letters, in the order in which they appear in the advance sheets of The Manufacturers Record, are in part as follows:

Carl R. Gray, President of the Union Pacific Railway, Omaha.: "I do not drink and have not done so for many years—in fact, ever since I have had direction of trainmen and enginemen. Regardless of any other feeling in the matter, I simply did not have the 'guts' to discipline men for something that I did myself."

Coudenay Guild, editor, The Commercial Bulletin, Boston: "A man whose brain is clouded by alcohol may find it difficult to understand the truth, to believe the truth or to tell the truth, so it may seem a waste of time to answer the charges of men whose letters in the daily papers state that defenders of the Eighteenth Amendment are 'getting theirs regularly.' I have not tasted intoxicating liquor for over a quarter century, and it is not served in my home."

Dr. Haven Emerson, Department of Public Health Administration, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University: "Neither at my family table nor elsewhere in this country have I used alcoholic beverages since the passage of the Volstead act."

Clarence H. Kelsey, Chairman of the Board, Title Guarantee and Trust Company: "If I had used it before the law was passed, I hope I would have had strength of character and sense of duty enough to have obeyed the law whether I liked it or not."

W. J. Cooderly of Cleveland, Ohio, President American Fork and Hoe Company, with factories in twelve cities: "I have not taken a drop of liquor of any kind since the Prohibition act. I believe that the same may be said of nearly every one of our directors and officers, as well as the managers of our factories."

L. B. Johnston, Dean of the College of Science, Literature and Arts, University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, is reported in the Manufacturers' Record as having written that he had not touched, purchased or transported liquor since prohibition. James Schermerhorn, editor of The Detroit Times: "I have been too happy, too proud of my country over its having taken the greatest moral step in the history of mankind to depart in any degree from the total abstinence that I felt was due my family, my friends and my countrymen. I would as soon do business with a counterfeiter, a white slaver or a drug smuggler as to patronize a blind pig or a rum-runner."

B. B. Comer, formerly Governor of Alabama, now President of the Avondale Mills, Birmingham, Ala.: "Prohibition is making a capitalist of the worker, creating a general ownership of the means of production and solving a strife that once seemed perpetual."

From this point on in the advance sheets of The Manufacturers Record, the summaries grow briefer and in some instances the writers are not directly quoted. It is stated, however, that the opinions of the writers are all along the same lines. It is seen from a glance at the summaries that some writers have not answered directly the question whether they are total abstainers, but all seem to agree that enforcement of prohibition would be a good thing for the country and for the individual.

Others who, The Manufacturers Record says, have written similar communications include:

Baltimoreans Will Pray Dr. Kirk Won't Come Here

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 4.—While the Rev. Dr. Harris E. Kirk is conducting services Sunday morning at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church of New York, which has called him to take its pulpit, the congregation of the Franklin Street Presbyterian Church here, whose pastor he has been for twenty-four years, will be holding a special prayer service that he may be divinely guided and persuaded to remain at his old charge.

Dr. Kirk says he will be in New York all next week and carefully consider every phase of the work to be done there. The following week he will announce his decision.

While many members of his present charge believe he will preach his Christmas sermon to the Fifth Avenue congregation, others seem confident that he will decline this call as he has several others in recent years.

A general request has been made by the authorities of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church that every member pray that the Rev. Dr. Kirk will accept the call made to him a week ago.

WILSON IS ABSOLVED IN CHEMICAL SALE

Government Brief Also Disavows All Charges Made Against His Associates.

NO REFLECTION INTENDED

Statements Are Made in Appeal Filed in Case of Sale of German Patents.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—In a brief filed by the Department of Justice in the Supreme Court today, those officials of the Wilson Administration, including the former President, who authorized the sale of German dye and other patents to the Chemical Foundation, Inc., were exonerated of any charges reflecting upon them.

The Government brief which was filed as an appeal from the decisions at Wilmington, Del., in favor of the Chemical Foundation, disavowed insinuations and charges made during the prosecution of the civil suit to take the property away from the Foundation into the hands of the Government, President Wilson, A. Mitchell Palmer, the former alien property custodian; Frank L. Polk, Acting Secretary of State, and others are absolved of blame in connection with the sale.

The Department of Justice sums up its position thus:

"In the presentation and discussion of this case in the courts below every effort was made to put the Government in the position of making charges reflecting personally upon the former officers or agents of the Government who were directly or indirectly connected with the transactions under review.

"This effort finds some reflection in the opinions of these courts where it is suggested that by taking the position as a matter of law these transactions of sale as actually done by the parties thereto were a violation of the prohibitive statutes, the Government was charging these parties, even the President himself, with improper acts or with crime.

"Nothing is further from the facts as we see them or from the intentions of the Government. The Government in this equity suit against a private corporation is relying upon the prohibitive provisions of the statutes to show that these transactions were unlawful or void. It is not discussing the criminal aspects of the statutes nor charging any one with crime.

"The respectful presentation of these questions of power and of law is no more a reflection upon the President or other officers mentioned than was the presentation of the questions raised and decided by this court in Martin vs. Mott a reflection upon President Washington; or in Brown vs. United States 8 Cranch, 110, a reflection upon President Madison; or in ex parte Milligan 4 United States vs. Lee a reflection upon President Lincoln; or the numerous decisions of this court holding acts of Congress invalid reflections upon the integrity and good faith of that body. The record clearly shows that the President was in Paris when the greater part of these transactions took place and could have had no direct connection with any of them.

"Mr. Polk's sole connection with these transactions was the signing of the orders of Feb. 26, 1919, and April 5, 1919, as prepared by the custodian, one being signed in Washington and the other at White Sulphur Springs.

"Mr. Palmer's only act under review in this case was in having prepared and procuring the signature of Mr. Polk to the order of Feb. 26, 1919. He assumes responsibility for the negotiations which were conducted prior to March 4, 1919, and says that he was informed of what was going on; but he clearly took no part therein and his information was derived from others.

"As to the other officers or agents of the Government who were connected with these transactions their acts have been considered in the light of the law and of the conclusive presumption of law that they intended the natural and probable consequences of these acts. Their motives have not been considered further than through the application of this principle or as stated by them.

"The Government of the United States is an impersonal agency of the people, charged with the high duty of enforcing the law and protecting the rights and interests of the people of the United States to the extent that they are committed to its care. In the discharge of this duty it knows no persons and refrains from personalities. The source of its existence, and in this regard its sole rule of conduct and measure of duty is the law.

"It is the imperative duty of the legal department of the Government with prejudice toward none and courtesy toward all, but unrestrained by any false sense of delicacy, to bring these questions, involving the rights and obligations of the Government as an agency of the people, in an orderly manner before this court, for consideration and decision. It can do no more and it certainly should do no less."

The Government was represented in the suit at Wilmington by Henry W. Anderson of Virginia, who was at the time a special assistant of Attorney General Daugherty.

LEGION LAW PROGRAM OUTLINED TO COOLIDGE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—A universal draft of man power and resources by the President of the United States in case of war, to be drawn in such a way as to prevent "slacking" and profiteering, is the outstanding feature of the legislative program to be submitted to Congress at the forthcoming session in behalf of the American Legion.

The program was outlined to President Coolidge at the White House today by John R. McQuigg, National Commander of the Legion.

The Legion also will ask Congress to authorize the retirement of disabled emergency army officers, to create a medical corps in the Veterans' Bureau, to provide medical treatment and compensation to certain classes of disabled men now excluded, and to construct 2,000 additional beds in permanent fireproof modern hospitals. Further protection of the rights of former service men employed by the Government in civil capacities will be asked.

"By universal draft the Legion means the enactment of a law by Congress which in the event of war would give the President the power to draft all the man-power and resources of the country to serve on an equal basis," said Commander McQuigg, after his talk with the President. "The plan includes the drafting of men to fight, men and women to work, factories to produce, money to finance. The Legion has been advocating such legislation for four years."

New York Fugitive Disappears in London, Eluding Scotland Yard After Arriving by Air

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Scotland Yard is looking for a man with an American passport, named to "Charles Edward Stanley," who arrived on Monday by airplane from France at Croydon Airdrome and then disappeared. He is believed to be a fugitive whom the New York police have been inquiring about in the principal European capitals, wanted on a serious charge. Inquiries at the American Embassy showed that the case had not been reported there. The man, who was smartly dressed, was noticed as he boarded the airplane at Paris by a French detective as answering the description cabled from New York. He wirelessed to Croydon, where the plane was met by an English detective. The passenger was questioned closely by an officer from the special branch at Scotland Yard, but as his papers were in order and they had no information against him, he was not detained.

However, Scotland Yard was suspicious, but thought they could keep an eye on him as he gave the name of a good hotel at West End and his baggage was loaded on a motor truck to be taken there.

From that moment the authorities lost sight of him. He never arrived at the hotel named, or any other hotel near by. His baggage, detained at Croydon, revealed nothing about him.

Scotland Yard has cabled the New York police, asking for further details about the man wanted and requesting that statements he made be investigated.

At Police Headquarters it was said last night that no one by the name of "Charles Edward Stanley" was wanted by the New York police.

GETS $50,000 GEMS BY TELEPHONE RUSE

Thief Steals Diamonds in Bowery While Confederate Holds Merchant in Conversation.

LOOT IN UNCUT JEWELS

Youth Threatens Lives of Shopkeeper's Wife and Daughter and Robs Them of $2,100.

Louis Steinberg of 522 West End Avenue, one of thirty jewelers who conduct their businesses in the United Jewelry Exchange on the ground floor of 76 Bowery, lost $50,000 in uncut diamonds yesterday when a suave young man who had made several small purchases from him in the last few weeks stole them from a display case while Steinberg was engaged in conversation on the telephone by a confederate of the thief.

Steinberg did not discover the theft until about five minutes after his return to his small compartment, which is on the right of the street entrance. Then he set up such a commotion that four traffic policemen, each with his pistol in hand, ran into the exchange in the belief that hold-up men were at work. Steinberg had told the story of the theft to the other jewelers, but none had noticed the thief's departure and a search gave no clue to the direction he went with his loot.

The victim of the theft said the man had become very friendly on his frequent visits in the last few weeks, and yesterday insisted on being permitted to examine some of the diamonds which Steinberg kept in the vault in the showcase in front of him. The man was standing at the side of the showcase when Steinberg took out the wallet and displayed the diamonds. Just then the telephone in the rear of the exchange rang and an attendent called Steinberg. Steinberg hastily replaced the wallet and the contents in the showcase and went to the telephone booth.

The conversation of the man at the other end mystified Steinberg, as he could not understand the man's purpose in calling. After about three minutes Steinberg hung up and returned to his showcase, later to discover that the diamonds had been stolen. He gave detectives a description of the affable "customer."

Youth Steals $2,100.

Mrs. Pauline Strauss and her daughter, Pauline, a girl in her teens, were alone in the shirt store conducted by the husband and father at 211 East Fourteenth Street at 9:30 o'clock last night, when a youth whom the family had known fro some time held them up with a pistol and escaped with $2,100 which Strauss had placed in a bureau drawer.

Mrs. Strauss told the police that the robber induced her and her daughter to go into the living room at the store, which also is used as a room for measuring customers, by saying he wanted to be measured for three shirts. As they preceded him, she said, the youth pulled out his pistol, and, telling them he was desperate and intended to shoot them if they didn't comply, demanded that they reveal where the money was.

"We have no money here," Mrs. Strauss told him.

"You have," was the reply. "Your husband, Morris, told me this morning that he had a large sum of money in this room with which he was going to buy a lot of cloth tomorrow. Show me where that money is or I'll begin to shoot."

Mrs. Strauss then pointed to the bureau drawer and as the robber stuffed it into his coat pocket he backed out through a side door into the hall. He had disappeared before Mrs. Strauss could summon the police.

WILL FIGHT BIG AIR FUND.

Reserve Officers Fear Weakening of Other Army Branches.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Notice that the national headquarters of the Reserve Officers' Association, "speaking for nearly 100,000 reserve officers," proposed to fight in the next Congress any proposal from the Budget Bureau to increase appropriations for the Army Air Service at the expense of other branches of the army was given today by John Ross Delafield, a reserve Brigadier General and President of the association.

"It is believed that the budget officials plan an appropriation for the Air Service exceeding any previous peacetime figure," General Delafield said. "As the total amount of the War Department appropriation has already been fixed, it is apparent that if such a move is carried through the result can be nothing but disastrous. The size of our already pitifully small army will be reduced."

HOPE IS ABANDONED FOR THREE IN BOAT

HUNT STARTED FOR BODIES

Only Chance They Are Alive Is That a Ship Picked Them Up When Craft Burned on Way to Florida.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 4.—Hope that the three men on board the yacht Bunny II, en route from this city to Miami, Fla., may have been saved is waning, as no news of them has been received today.

There is no doubt that the Bunny II, the yacht belonging to Edward R. Pusy, was burned, and while the families of the men have hope that they may have been picked up on the Carolina coast by some ship which is without wireless, it is admitted that the hope has slight foundation on which to rest.

There were three men on the ill-fated craft. They were, besides Mr. Pusy, the owner and head of the Edward Pusy Company of this city, one of the largest coal and cement concerns in Delaware, William G. Taylor, Secretary of State of Delaware, a former Vice President of the Delaware Trust Company, and Thomas Ross of Fredericktown, Md., who was the engineer of the craft.

Mr. Taylor had been unable to take a vacation this Summer and decided to make the trip with his friend. They intended to go to Miami, where Pusy expected to sell the boat and then return by train. Mr. Taylor was prominent in Republican politics and was twice Mayor of Wilmington.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 4 (AP).—Search for the missing yacht Bunny II and her crew of three men continued along the coasts of North and South Carolina tonight. Any hope that the trio would be found alive was virtually abandoned, however, with the declaration today of Captain J. F. Davis of the schooner Mary A. Sharp that he had identified a burned hulk at sea as being the missing vessel.

Reports about three other burned boats were also being investigated to ascertain whether any of these might be the Bunny II. Along the entire Atlantic Coast of the Carolinas and Georgia a sharp watch out is being maintained for any bodies that may be washed ashores.

The Bunny II is reported to have cleared from Southport, N. C., on Saturday last, on a voyage by inland waters to Florida.

Captain Davis, whose identification of the boat was virtually accepted by the missing men's relatives, made port today. The commander of the Coast Guard cutter Yamacraw visited the burned hulk of the Bunny II on last Saturday. The place was three miles off shore and ten miles from Murrell's inlet.

The captain based his identification on a rabbit's head in black and gilt which he found on both prows and the numerals M-1014. Later dispatches from Wilmington quoted a brother of Pusy to the effect that the Bunny II had such a mark.

BANS SUNDAY AIR MEETS.

War Department Withdraws Army Planes From Use That Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Following protests received from various civic organizations and from individuals, the War Department issued an order today prohibiting the holding of any military aviation meeting or aerial demonstration on Sundays for the purpose of raising funds.

The order has been communicated to the chiefs of all branches and bureaus of the War Department and is to become effective immediately.

Exceptions to the ruling are made in the case of individual flying, either on cross-country flights, at airdromes, or to complete missions begun on weekdays. It is further stated that the ruling shall not be construed to interfere with recreational activities and sports held at military posts on Sundays at the discretion of the commanding officers.

The proposal of the Government of Cuba that the sixth Pan-American conference should meet at Havana in 1928 was approved.

LAWYER IS KILLED ON STREET BY TAXI

ON WAY TO SEE CHILDREN

Samuel Crook, a member of the firm of Crook & Kister, lawyers, at 20 Nassau Street, and who lived with his wife and four children in a suite at the Bretton Hall Hotel, Broadway and Eighty-sixth Street, was fatally injured last night when he was struck on the head by a projection from a taxicab at Columbus Avenue and Eightieth Street.

Mr. Crook, who had been practicing law since he joined the firm organized by his father, Abel Crook, who died a few years ago, was on his way to meet his two daughters when the accident happened. Max Guyer, driver of the machine, of 1,408 Madison Avenue, accompanied by Traffic Policeman Kavanagh, took the lawyer to Reconstruction Hospital, but he was pronounced dead there by Dr. Kilgour.

Kavanagh then arrested Guyer on a technical homicide charge and the chauffeur was locked up in the West Eighty-eighth Street Station. Guyer said he was driving north on Columbus Avenue and did not see Mr. Crook until the lawyer stepped from behind an elevated column. He added that he thought the taximeter or a smaller projection on the car hit the lawyer in the face. The blow threw him ten feet, he added.

The victim became noted as an athlete when he was a student at Williams College, from which he was graduated in 1888. For several years he held the record for the standing high jump. His son, Gerard, is now a student at that college.

Held High Masonic Offices.

When he was admitted to the bar thirty-five years ago he began to practice with his father. He also was actively identified for many years with Masonic affairs in this State, having held State offices. He was born in Brooklyn and is survived by his widow, who was Miss Mary Beekman of the well-known family of that name in this city.

Alfred Eisenfeld, 5 years old, of 139 Eldridge Street, was killed yesterday afternoon by an automobile while he was walking north on Fifth Avenue near Sixty-second Street with his mother, Harry Mann, owner and driver of the automobile, of 1,695 Weeks Avenue, the Bronx, and Frank Rampolla of 733 West 150th Street, were arrested on technical homicide charges by Policeman Joseph Birnbaum of the West 152d Street Station, a witness.

Alfred was holding his mother's hand when the automobile struck him. He was dead when the policeman took him to a hospital.

Fred Bell, an Australian cook on the Munson steamer Bibbco, lying at Pier 6, Hoboken, was burned to death early yesterday morning when the automobile in which he was riding with four companions crashed into another car, overturned and then caught fire at Boulevard East and Nineteenth Street, West New York, N. J. The other occupants escaped, but Bell was pinned inside the machine and was unable to free himself.

George Schmitt, 21 years old, of 1,146 Summit Avenue, Jersey City, operator of the other car, and the others were arrested on charges of manslaughter and later released by Recorder Adam Smith in $2,500 bail.

Girl Crushed Under Auto.

When the driver of a touring car swerved it too sharply last night at Thatford Avenue and New Lots Road, in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, to avoid striking a woman, he lost control of the automobile and when it mounted the sidewalk and cut down a tree it toppled over on a girl and pinned her and its four occupants under it. Policemen and civilians lifted the car to free them.

The car was being driven by the owner, Joseph Leonardo, 20 years old, of 517 Christopher Avenue. The other occupants were his brother, Peter, of 346 Bedford Avenue; Charles Sorrentino, 22 years old of 108 Rockaway Avenue, and Joseph Greco, 22 years old of 332 Thatford Avenue, all of Brooklyn.

Miss Molly Frank, 18 years old, a stenographer on her way from work to her home at 659 Osborn Street, pushed two girls out of the way and probably saved their lives when she realized the danger, but she could not get out of the path of the toppling car and was pinned under the wreckage of a wooden fence on which it fell.

She was taken in a critical condition to Kings County Hospital by Dr. Cunningham. She was suffering from internal injuries, a fracture of the left leg and cuts and bruises on the head and body. Mounted Policeman Butler, who with Sergeant Gross and Policeman Smith, rescued the victims, formed a tourniquet of the sleeve of his night stick to stop the flow of blood from the crushed leg of the girl, who was unconscious.

The driver also was unconscious when taken to St. Mary's Hospital by Dr. Shea. He may have a fractured skull. Sorrentino, after being attended by Dr. Greschko of the Brownsville and East New York Hospital, was taken to the Kings County Hospital. He was injured internally and may have a fractured skull. Greco escaped with slight cuts and bruises on the head and body, and after being attended by an ambulance surgeon went home.

Several hours earlier Elimabeth Vocaro, 20 years old, of 893 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, when carrying Joseph Farrarico, 9 months old, of 151 Thirty-first Street, at Fourth Avenue and Thirty-first Street, Brooklyn, was knocked down by a taxicab. She and the child were taken to Norwegian Hospital, each with a fracture of the skull and internal injuries, from which little hope for their recovery was held.

Two Policemen Are Injured.

A patrolman was injured seriously and another was cut and bruised yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding to the Bath Beach Station collided with a commercial automobile at Benson Avenue and Bay Twenty-second Street, Brooklyn. Patrolman Bernard T. Branagan of 39 Herkimer Place may have a fractured skull and a fracture of the right leg. He also suffered internal injuries and was taken to Harbor Hospital. Patrolman William F. Walsh also was hurt. Branagan was standing on the running board of the car while Walsh was seated beside the driver. Max Morrison of 2,601 Potter Avenue, Astoria, when the car and the commercial automobile, operated by William J. Hutman of 546 West Thirty-ninth Street, Manhattan, crashed. Hutman was arrested on a technical assault charge.

When alighting from a trolley car in the afternoon at Metropolitan Avenue and Union Turnpike, Forest Hills, Queens, William Nalen, 11 years old, of 131 Stratford Street, Forest Hills, was hit by a motor truck and died soon after his arrival at Jamaica Hospital. The driver, Frank Graham, a negro, of 333 West Fifty-ninth Street, Manhattan, was held on a technical homicide charge.

John Bassett, 6 years old, of 856 West 159th Street, was removed in a critical condition to Jewish Memorial Hospital last night from injuries he received when he was hit by an automobile at St. Nicholas Avenue and 159th Street. The car was being operated by the owner, Michael Rossi, 22d Fourth Street, Brooklyn.

"Eat, Drink and Be Merry" Way to Avoid Heart Disease

"Eat, drink and be merry, if you would escape heart disease."

This was the advice Dr. Louis Faugeres Bishop, consulting heart specialist for Lincoln Hospital, author of a book on heart trouble, and President of the Greater New York Medical Association, gave yesterday to Kiwanians at a luncheon in the McAlpin.

"Eat good meals," he said. "Relax; leave your business downtown when you come home at night; play golf once a week; associate with younger people; be jovial, not grouchy; beware of abscessed teeth, diseased tonsils or other sources of possible infection; take regular vacations." Alcohol, he said, had little bearing on heart disease.

FOUND TRACE IN ASIA OF OLDEST CULTURE

R. C. Andrews, Returning From Mongolia, Believes Man Originated There.

OLDEST OF MAMMALS THERE

Scientist Thinks the "Missing Link" May Yet Be Unearthed.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—"Bigger and better dinosaur eggs" in the form of forty almost perfect specimens were unearthed by Roy Chapman Andrews in Mongolia.

Other discoveries announced by him upon his arrival here today include the evidence of a human culture in Asia that antedated the European culture of the same type by 10,000 years and indicates that prehistoric man originated in Asia and then spread to other parts of the world.

Conclusive proof was found that the ice sheet which once covered Europe and America never touched Asia, and that Mongolia is the oldest continuously dry land in the world.

He discovered a gigantic petrified redwood forest in Asia that was probably the ancestor of the present California redwoods.

The oldest mammal skulls in the world were found, remains of transitional mammals that were just being evolved from the reptile stage 10,000,000 years ago, and later bones of the largest mammal that ever existed.

Definite indications were unearthed that the "missing link" may not be missing many more years.

All of these were found by the Third Asiatic Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History into the Gobi Desert of Mongolia, and Andrews plans to return in April to head a fourth expedition.

With the explorer on board the President Taft today were Mrs. Andrews and their new pet, a fierce-looking black vulture of the condor family, the only one of its kind in captivity. This powerful bird of hooked beak, six-foot wing spread and sharp talons was captured when small and is quite tame. Her name is Connie.

"We proceed on the theory that the great plateaus of Central Asia, where continuous land life has been possible for a longer time than at any other section of the earth's surface, is the point of origin for much of the reptilian and mammalian life of the world," said Mr. Andrews.

"Our discoveries do much to bear out this theory. We found evidence of the existence in Mongolia of several great groups of mammals that previously were known only from America or Europe. In most cases the Asiatic remains seem to be older than their American or European counterpart, and it is at least possible that Asia was the fountain-head of many of these species, including man.

Traces of a Very Old Culture.

"We found no human bones on this trip. We did find, however, extensive traces of human culture, such as implements, drawings and weapons. We confidently expect we shall find human bones on later expeditions.

"The 'missing link' is still missing. The stages of evolution can be traced without a break from primitive forms of unicellular water life successively down through fishes, reptiles, birds, to mammals and down through the various species of mammals until there should be a common ancestor for man and his cousin, the present anthropoid ape.

"That immediate common ancestor, or 'missing link,' has not been found. We are on his trail, however, and the forms of life already discovered in Asia are so old and continuous, existence there has been possible for so long, that we think Asia is the logical place to look for him.

"The discovery of the petrified redwood forest was made by Dr. Ralph W. Chaney, formerly of the University of California. This forest existed about 3,000,000 years ago, and extended in Manchuria from Mukden almost to Vladivostok. The trees were closely similar to the giant redwoods of California, and inasmuch as Asia and America were once connected by land, it is entirely possible that the California redwoods descended from the Asiatic variety. With the fossilized redwoods were remains of the accompanying trees, alder, maple and oak.

"The skulls of primitive mammals that we found were most interesting. These mammals existed 10,000,000 years ago, during the age of reptiles, and they were at the very beginnings of the transition from reptiles to mammals. In the entire history of paleontology only one other such skull has ever been found. We found six."

Mr. Andrews will leave for New York on Friday.

MYSTERY IN HAVANA DEATH.

Efforts to Locate Mother of Dead Man in New Jersey Fail.

HAVANA, Nov. 4 (AP).—John Paul Bart, whose home is believed to have been Haddonfield, N. J., died Monday in a local hospital under what are said to have been mysterious circumstances. Messages sent to his mother, at Collingwood, N. J., have remained unanswered.

Bart suffered from hemorrhages of the stomach before death. No cause for them could be given by his physician. The body was buried by the local Red Cross.

SEEKS MORE DATA FOR TAX REDUCTION

Ways and Means Committee Asks the Treasury for Budget Details for 1927.

WILL FIX TOTAL CUT FIRST

House Leaders Agree to Concentrate on Revision and Appropriation Bills.

DEMOCRATS FOR TARIFF ACT

Republicans Will Oppose Their Plan, as Well as Railroad Legislation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Before deciding how much money shall be devoted to tax reduction, the Ways and Means Committee of the House feels that it must have details concerning the expenditures and receipts for the fiscal year 1927, and at its first meeting in executive session today the committee asked the Treasury to supply this information.

When Secretary Mellon appeared before the committee two weeks ago he stressed the idea that tax reduction should be based on a two-year period and that the expenditures and receipts for 1927 were fully as important as those for 1926.

Brig. Gen. H. M. Lord, the budget officer, and Treasury officials will appear before the committee tomorrow morning to give the facts wanted, and after their appearance the committee will discuss the amount of money to be used. The committee, it was said after the meeting today, will take into consideration Secretary Mellon's

JERITZA TRIUMPHS AGAIN IN 'TOSCA'

HER ACTING IS INTENSIVE

Singer's High Voice Rings Clear and True—Scotti in His Old Form as Scarpia.

TOSCA, lyric drama in three acts. Book in Italian by Illica and Giacosa, from the French of Sardou's play. Music by Giacomo Puccini. At the Metropolitan Opera House.

Floria Tosca	Maria Jeritza
Mario Cavaradossi	Mario Chamlee
Baron Scarpia	Antonio Scotti
Cesare Angelotti	Paolo Ananian
The Sacristan	Pompilio Malatesta
Spoletta	Giordano Paltrinieri
Sciarrone	Vincenzo Reschiglian
A Jailer	Millo Picco
A Shepherd	Mary Bonetti

Conductor, Tullio Serafin.

Mme. Maria Jeritza came back to the Metropolitan last night and received eight curtain calls after the second act of an opera which she has made her own.

Jeritza presided at the laying of that cornerstone of the opera house, Puccini's "Tosca," for still another year. There was a capacity audience to greet the reigning Viennese star in her fifth season. Since last heard on Broadway, she had more than confirmed in London the emphatic verdict of New York, pronounced four Winters ago with plaudits, cheers and waving scarfs, from the Golden Horseshoe boxholders as well as gallery gods, when first they took her measure in this melodramatic work as she sang the "Vissi d'Arte" lying on the floor.

Radiant in flaxen coloring, willowy in clinging white robes, yet with all her old tiger-like intensity, Jeritza kept the action at a similar high pitch of nerves last evening. Musically she hastened a phrase here, a cadence there; the effect was never casual, neither was it seemingly calculated. A very living and convincing impersonation again made the rôle her own, in ways more dramatic than lyric, requiring no listener or spectator to forswear allegiance to Ternina, Eames, Fremstad, Farrar, the Toscas of yesteryear.

The high voice rang clear and true, most notably in the crucial aria, prone on the boards. In action, Mme. Jeritza used oftener than she sometimes has done a dramatic pariando, even to the extent of actually spoken lines over the murder of Scarpia. The "bravas" mingled with handclaps after her aria, and the applause was several times renewed before Conductor Serafin's musicians could go on playing.

Of Mr. Scotti as the best Chief of Police Rome ever had, this town had its say a year ago last January at the baritone's twenty-fifth jubilee on the Metropolitan stage. He was in his old form last night in a rôle that, had he acted and sung no other in his quarter-century here, would still have written for him a page unique in local operatic history.

Mr. Chamlee acquitted himself well in "the Caruso rôle." His Cavaradossi was full-voiced and manfully sung, despite the sharp edge to a top note here and there in the melodramatic music. He gallantly shook Jeritza's hand at the curtain calls, as she in turn shook Scotti's and presently Serafin's before the footlights.

Seven recalls followed the second act before the woman star, bowing deeply, came out alone for the audience's desired ovation. Once more she appeared then, dragging Scotti firmly by the arm. After the third act, there were more curtain calls for Jeritza and Chamlee. The performance, aside from its personal high lights, was in substance that of recent seasons, melodious in flashes when Puccini for a moment forgot Sardou.

Opera is one thing, the breathless grip of an audience is another. The play's the thing in "Tosca," admittedly, and yet how gloriously the Italian composer's short, sharp sunbursts of melody transfuse the Gallic playwright's triangle problems into emotional gold, those who saw Bernhardt, supreme in the spoken version, know even now. Musically banned by critics at its operatic birth, the work survives in a strength of its own.

Society filled the theatre for the second time last night, again with visible vacancies that marked formally certain families in mourning. Those below and above stairs who came seeking a sensation found not less of that, perhaps, than they expected. It should be said, however, that the stars in their resumption of a turgid and tragic work kept faith artistically with an exacting public. Few "Toscas" have been more powerfully sustained from season to season than was the performance seen last night.

DENIJS A SINGER OF TALENT

Dutch Baritone Makes a Good Impression at First Recital in U. S.

Thomas Denijs, Dutch baritone, made his first recital appearance in America at Town Hall last evening. Willem Mengelberg brought Mr. Denijs over last year to sing the part of Christus in two special performances of "St. Matthew's Passion," so that the singer is not altogether a stranger in these parts. His program was chiefly established on Bach, Mozart, Schubert, Schumann and Brahms, the strongholds of the Dutch musicians, as well as the German.

Mr. Denijs followed the Holland custom of reading from the text, instead of depending on his memory, as the rule is among recitalists here, so that something was lost in atmosphere. His singing was an example of sobriety and balance in his exposition of the classics. Those recitalists who disclaim all and everything with dramatic vehemence would have been amazed at his moderation.

The singer has a remarkable voice, quite a heavy voice, but one that is flexible as well as full; that runs with facility and has been taught to do grace-notes with elegance. His command of mezza-voce is astonishing; there is much variety in it, many shades between piano and pianissimo.

Mozart, Schumann, Brahms came to the audience through the medium of a singer of experience and of genuine talent.

MUSIC NOTES.

Clarence Adler, Louis Edlin and Cornelius Van Vliet were the musicians in Mozart's G-major trio at last night's free lecture concert at Hunter College.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

State Symphony Orchestra.

A stirring performance of Richard Strauss's tone poem, "Also sprach Zarathustra," was the predominating feature of the concert given by the State Symphony Orchestra, Ernst von Dohnanyi, conductor, last night in Carnegie Hall. The same orchestra played the same composition last season, after a lapse of some years since it had been heard in this city. With daring as well as enterprise—for this is one of the most difficult tone poems for orchestra and conductor in the repertory—the work was repeated last night, soon after the orchestra had gathered for the season and before it had had opportunity to completely find itself and coordinate all its resources.

The result, on the whole, justified the attempt, and this in spite of some technical slips, not important enough to interfere with the import of the music. The performance revealed the essential character of one of the most curious and amazing attempts made by a modern composer. The score of "Zarathustra" has certain weakness of invention. It may or may not be a musical transcription of passages of Nietzsche's poem. The latter point is not important. Strauss was stirred by Nietzsche's "Also sprach Zarathustra" to moods which found very striking expression in his music. For it is not only the opening page of the tone poem—the invocation to the rising sun—that places it among the most intrepid and audacious musical creations of the last thirty-five years. There are other superb pages; a magnificent impertinence of spirit and a form that is colossal. Few composers of any period could have filled so gigantic a framework with the confidence and unfailing grasp of its proportions that Strauss has shown. Gigantic as his canvas is, and often complicated in detail, its main lines are simple and clear; there is pervading unity of material and, above all, there is the passionate sweep and the vision which force the orchestra to say things it had not said before this composer appeared.

Mr. Dohnanyi appeared to have this music at heart. He felt the obscurity and suspense that follows the blasting instrumental portrayal of the sunrise; he worthily interpreted the noble swelling choral; the lyrical flight, in the strings, of the theme of the "great longing"; the technical profundities and complexities of the fugue, interrupted by Nietzschean laughter and the theme of the ideal and the confounding motive of the world-riddle, thundered forth with all the possible majesty of orchestra. He also accomplished what not many conductors have succeeded in doing with the dance song—preserving the continuity and cumulative force of the rhythms that bear all the motifs previously heard on their turbulent current, culminating at last in the superb climax of the "Night Wanderer's Song."

The aftermath of this exultant climax remains, after all the water that has flowed under the bridge, highly original and imaginative today—the theme of the ideal that ascends in the strings, and the chords of the wood-wind, reenforced last night by a few strings, which are as receding stars in the firmament. This was an interpretation in accord with the composer's spirit, although the great bell that gives the final touch of majesty to Strauss's climax did not completely function, and the solo trumpeter fell victim, in one place, to the composer's inordinate demands. The orchestra was technically severely taxed, but it responded to the flaming temperament that is in the music, composed before Strauss had become a bourgeois and a routinier in his compositions; when, daring the impossible, he created this imperfect masterpiece, this astounding, glorious failure.

The other items of the program were Beethoven's "Coriolanus" overture; the Mozart E flat concerto for two pianos, played by Mr. and Mrs. Josef Lhevinne, and Liszt's First Hungarian Rhapsody. The Beethoven overture, whether or not one agreed with fluctuations of Mr. Dohnanyi's tempi, was played with mobility and fire, and with an orchestral tone which is steadily improving in resonance and quality. The performance of Mozart's compositions was painstaking, in places even brilliant, but it had not all the sparkle and the expressive singing of melodic passages which characterises the best Mozart playing. The hearer was conscious of the fact that the concerto had many, many notes.

The audience on this occasion was a large one, an encouraging indication of public interest in these concerts. Enthusiasm was not confined to the performance of "Zarathustra."

ROSE ARMANDIE IN RECITAL.

Sings French Songs With Authentic Musical Taste and Gallic Spirit.

Rose Armandie sang French songs at Aeolian Hall last evening, as she had done on a similar occasion last year, with authentic musical taste and Gallic spirit. She already had appeared in Montreal and Quebec on her present second visit to America.

Assisted by Mme. Simone Petit at the piano, Miss Armandie ventured an Italian classic of Cesti and an air from Mozart's "Figaro," together with the old English Purcell's "Nymphs and Shepherds" and an air from the same composer's opera, "Dido and Aeneas," known in concert version here. The singer, though often sacrificing tone to enunciation, gave pleasure in songs of Ravel and others, several German lieder sung in French and Mussorgsky's "Chant Juif."

Bishop to Be Stage Folks' Host.

The luncheon was arranged with the cooperation of an actors' committee including Grant Mitchell, Chairman; Julia Arthur, John Drew, Daniel Frohman, Julia Marlowe, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Skinner and E. H. Sothern.

At all events, you have done your part, and I thank you for letting me read the book." $2.50

TOLSON OWNERSHIP MANAGEMENT

RESORTS. CALIFORNIA.

For You— Springtime Enchantments In California Now

The voice of the meadow lark, the hum of bees in flowering orange groves, green valleys set against high mountain ranges, their snow-capped peaks glistening in a glorious sunshine. Golf, tennis, motoring—all sports at their best, and every day. Your "paradise of winter," you will call it.

YOU breathe deep, throwing out your arms as if to embrace it all, feeling its "great invitation" coming to you from all sides the moment that your train crosses the encircling mountains which form part of Southern California's boundaries.

Gorgeous flowers, stately palms, graceful eucalyptus and lacy pepper trees wave a greeting to you. And high up there you catch Old Sol grinning as he seems to say, "These are my winter headquarters, too."

You are won immediately and you thirst for fun. Don't worry, it awaits you.

Mountain climbing—perhaps a new experience—wooded trails for hiking or horseback riding, paved motor roads—even an electric car line—winding up to heights from which you can see a hundred miles away.

That vast brown stretch eastward is the great Mojave Desert, like Sahara in the Holy Land—across the way Old Baldy's snow-crowned head—down below that strip of green is nothing less than several million orange trees in fearing.

Then you motor over smooth concrete to world-famous resorts—to Riverside, to Redlands, to Pasadena, scene of the Tournament of Roses New Year's Day and on to Los Angeles, fastest growing large city in the world, thence to Long Beach, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Ojai or where your fancy wills.

No matter where, your interest is absorbing and your fun complete.

More than 50 golf courses, within a few minutes' ride by motor from Los Angeles, challenge your best scores elsewhere.

Tennis, too—thousands of courts. Camping, sailing, motor boating, polo by championship teams—all forms of sport in most ideal surroundings.

Or if it be your whim, there is a great symphony concert, or a modern dance at a gay hotel.

From this into a mountain cabin in a wilderness, if you so desire, in sixty minutes, for quiet rest and complete relaxation.

For fun, for health, for entertainment, sport, lectures, music, art or scenic grandeur—come to Southern California and select your favorite or enjoy them all.

A week or two, and real winter, if not already there, will be upon you. Let it find you on your way to this land where spring laughs at winter.

Living costs are low out here. Rates at hotels and boarding houses or for furnished bungalows are very reasonable. The journey here unfolds new pages of your America.

PADEREWSKI HERE FOR CONCERT TOUR

Glad to Be in America Again and Has New Compositions, He Says.

GLORIA SWANSON ARRIVES

Back With Marquis, Who Shows Signature of 1707 to His Patent of Nobility.

The French liner Paris arrived ten hours late yesterday from Havre and Plymouth after what Captain E. Maurras, the master, described as a very rough passage. The worst day was from noon Saturday to noon Sunday, when the the wind blew with hurricane force from the west to northwest, with seas that were fully fifty feet high. Two of the windows below the bridge were stove in, two of the iron ladders were bent and twisted like pipe lights and other companion ladders and doors aft were damaged.

Two of the world's foremost entertainers were on board the Paris, Ignace Jan Paderewski, the Polish pianist, and Gloria Swanson, the screen artist, who was accompanied by her husband, the Marquis de la Falaise de la Coudraye, who carried his patent of nobility in a red morocco leather case to show any skeptical persons who might doubt his right to the title.

Artists Play in Concert.

Both these artists took part in a concert on Tuesday night in the grand salon for the benefit of the French Seamen's Widoms and Orphans' Fund. Ernest Schelling, the American pianist, also played and other artists sang.

Ignace Jan Paderewski comes to America for a concert tour, which he declined to say would be his farewell appearance in this country. He remembered that on his first visit to New York after the end of the war he had emphatically said that he would never play again.

Mr. Paderewski said that he had a number of new compositions with him, but none gave him greater pleasure in playing than "Nocturna in Ragusa," by Ernest Schelling. The Polish pianist added his customary remark on arrival in this country, "I am glad to be back here in my very dear and good America."

Mrs. Paderewski accompanied her husband. Mr. Paderewski was met at the pier by a committee from the Polish colony in New York headed by Clement F. Rozanski, who welcomed him in the name of the numerous Polish organizations. The pianist is still alert and robust and stands like a soldier at dress parade.

Gloria Swanson, who looked in the best of health and spirits when she came down the gangway with a retinue of retainers and her husband, said that the stories called to France about her being fined for contempt of court and that her husband's title was not genuine had annoyed her for a week. Then she went to Nice, Monte Carlo and other places in the South of France and enjoyed her holiday.

Both she and her husband came in as non-residents of the United States and the movie star was permitted by the Customs to bring in all her personal effects free, but had to pay duty on the presents she had purchased abroad for friends.

"I did not receive any summons," she said, "to appear in the divorce suit of Dr. R. A. Hoffman and Janet Beecher and I do not know that Supreme Court Referee Robert C. McMarsh imposed a fine upon me for not appearing until the report has been confirmed."

One of the objects in their trip abroad, she added, was to get a fresh permit for her husband to re-enter the United States.

Amused at Title Gossip.

The Marquis who is learning English very rapidly said that it was very funny to read all the stories about his title and the interest that people in America took in it. He showed that the date of the signature to his patent of nobility was 1707. He added that his family name of "La Bailly" dated back to the twelfth century and he had an income tax receipt dated 1270, which the head of the La Bailly family had paid to the King of France and the Duke of Normandy. The Marquis had other papers tracing his ancestry back to 1666.

Miss Swanson said she was under contract with the Famous Players for two more pictures and that when the contract expired she would make a new contract that would ensure making good pictures because that was what the American public wanted.

The first picture will be made in New York from a book written by Fanny Hurst, she said. Miss Swanson brought with her Renee Hubert, who designs all her gowns.

The actress wore a gown of black crepe satin with cuffs and collar of natural colored chamois. The skirt of the gown was much longer than the present style in Paris and consisted of three panels, one in front and one on each side. A sash of black satin four yards long and eighteen inches wide was draped below her waist.

The movie star's hat was duvetyn of a mushroom pattern and the double brim was lined with natural colored chamois. Her only ornament was a heavy gold bracelet of the style worn by well-to-do peasants in France. Her coat was of black duvetyn trimmed with Japanese fox and her slippers were of black patent leather. She wore chamois color stockings.

"The Sea-Woman's Cloak" Acted.

"The Sea-Woman's Cloak," a dramatization of an Irish folk-tale by Amelie Rives, was offered last night at the American Laboratory Theatre as the second production of its subscription season. The Laboratory Theatre, which has its headquarters at 107 West Fifty-eighth Street, will offer four productions during the season. "Twelfth Night," the first production, will continue to be the bill on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights, and "The Sea-Woman's Cloak" on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

TO BRING OUT YOUNG ACTORS

A plan to bring new actors to the attention of both producers and the public is announced by Chamberlain Brown, who is well known as an actors' representative. Among the plays to be acted will be "Madame X," "The Country Boy," "Adam and Eva," "Candida," "Jane Clegg," "London Assurance," "The Playboy of the Western World," "Enter Madame" and "The Darling of the Gods." They will be directed by well-known players.

De Mille Film Studios in a Merger.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4 (AP).—Consolidation of the producing activities of the Cecil B. De Mille film studios at Culver City, near here, with the facilities and executive offices of the Metropolitan Studios in Hollywood was announced here yesterday by Mr. De Mille. William Sistrom, general manager of the Metropolitan Studios, becomes general manager of the consolidated organization, leaving De Mille free to concentrate on producing.

POLICEMEN IN ACCIDENT DRUNK, SAY WITNESSES

Warrants Against Two in Car That Struck Politician to Be Issued.

A preliminary examination into the case of Patrolmen John H. Matthews and John P. Flanagan, whose automobile ran down and seriously injured William Carney, veteran Democratic politician, in Brooklyn last Sunday, was continued until tomorrow by direction of Magistrate McCloskey in the Homicide Court, after testimony at a hearing yesterday, indicated that both men had been under the influence of liquor.

Assistant District Attorney Thomas G. Mughes, who handled the case, said later that warrants for the arrest of the policemen awaited only the signing of depositions, and would be issued on Friday. The examination yesterday followed the application by the District Attorney for the immediate issuance of warrants.

Patrolman John J. Feeney of the Parkville station, who was at post where the accident happened, testified that Matthews, the driver of the automobile, was intoxicated. Feeney explained that he did not see the accident, but found Carney on the ground and the two policemen in the car. He said he took the wheel and drove them to the Parkville station because persons were saying that the men were drunk.

"Was Matthews intoxicated?" interposed Mr. Hughes.

"He was," the witness asserted.

Dr. Patrick York, police surgeon, who examined the policemen after the accident, testified that he first saw them asleep in chairs. Finding that they were suffering from "intoxicating agents" he recommended their suspension from duty. An order to that effect was subsequently issued by Deputy Commissioner John A. Leach.

George A. McCaffrey of 620 Sixth Street, Brooklyn, said he walked over to Matthews after the accident and told him to wait until a policeman arrived. Matthews, he said, answered, "I don't have to wait; I'm a policeman myself." McCaffrey said that Matthews took the affair as a joke and was apparently drunk.

Mr. Carney, who has been unconscious from concussion of the brain in the United Israel Zion Hospital since the accident, was reported yesterday to be a little better.

COMMENDS S-51 RADIO DUTY

Secretary Wilbur Praises Base Operator for 29 Hours' Work.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 4 (AP).—James Stewart Herren, radio man, second class, at the submarine base, has been commended by Secretary Wilbur for his devotion to duty during the S-51 disaster.

Secretary Wilbur in his letter reviews the action of Herren, who was on duty for twenty-nine hours following the ramming of the submarine off Block Island on the night of Sept. 25 by the steamer City of Rome.

"Delivered with congratulations."

NURSE SUES DEMPSEY.

Asks $26,700 for Slipping on Soapy Floor of Apartment House.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4 (AP).—Such a slippery place was the apartment house formerly jointly owned by Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns, that Anderena F. McPhee, a nurse, yesterday brought suit for $26,700 damages against the heavyweight champion and his former manager.

She alleges that the employes of Dempsey and Kearns kept the floors so slippery with soap one day that she lost her footing and received injuries that kept her abed for five months.

STIR OVER ONE-ARM PIANIST

By Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The report from Berlin that Richard Strauss, German composer, had produced a symphony in which the principal part must be played by a pianist with the left hand alone aroused lively interest among musicians here, but Mark Hambourg, the noted pianist, pointed out that Strauss is not the first composer to compose such freakish music.

"Scriabine, Liszt and Rubinstein have composed works for one hand," Hambourg said today, adding: "A number of people would rejoice if all music were written for one hand, as the other hand has always bothered them—schoolboys, for instance."

Inspired by reading about the Strauss musical feat, Hambourg remarked that he would play Rubinstein's piano piece for a lone hand, an etude, at a concert here next week.

According to the Berlin report, Strauss wrote his lone-hand symphony for the Russian pianist, Paul Wittgenstein, who has only one arm. It was played in Berlin for the first time yesterday.

OLGA PETROVA SUIT BEGINS.

Ex-British Army Officer Charges Actress Stole Plot of His Play.

Trial of the suit brought against Mme. Olga Petrova, actress, by William H. Roberts, the former British Army officer, who charges that the actress's play, "The White Peacock," was stolen from his play, "The Red Wig," began before Supreme Court Justice O'Malley and a jury yesterday. Roberts is suing for $35,000 damages.

Col. William Rand, as counsel for Roberts, told the jury that the latter wrote "The Red Wig" in 1918, and that Mme. Petrova bought the play for $1,000 and royalties. Intending to produce it under the title of "The Eighth Sin." She later abandoned the play. Colonel Rand said, and produced "The White Peacock" which was essentially the same as "The Red Wig." This was denied by former Judge Nash Rockwood, counsel for Mme. Petrova, who said "The Red Wig" was a plagiarism from Ibanez's "Blood and Sand." The session yesterday was taken up with the reading of the plays. The trial will continue today.

OTIS SKINNER IN NEW ROLE.

To Appear in "Captain Fury," a Comedy Written by His Daughter.

Otis Skinner, it is announced, will be seen here this season in a play entitled "Captain Fury," written by his daughter, Cornelia Otis Skinner. It is a first play by Miss Skinner, who is well known as an actress.

The piece is a romantic comedy with a tropical setting. Russell Janney will be the producer and James Reynolds is designing the costumes and scenery.

Noel Goes on Trial Monday.

Harrison Noel, confessed murderer of Raymond Pierce, negro chauffeur, and Mary Daly, six-year-old Montclair child, will be placed on trial at Newark on Monday. William A. Wachenfeld, appointed by the State as counsel for young Noel, announced yesterday that he would be ready to proceed with the trial on the date set. Only the Pierce killing will figure in the trial.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

Larger than ten football fields

HERE IS the factory that stands behind our recommendation of Atwater Kent Sets and Radio Speakers. It covers more ground than ten football fields or sixty-four baseball diamonds.

It was built large to meet the demand for Atwater Kent Radio and because this company is in Radio to stay.

Eventually, many radio manufacturers may disappear. The survivors will be those who have the soundest product and know their business.

Look at this picture. And then remember that the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Company is building receiving sets and radio speakers with the skill and precision learned in twenty-five years' construction of fine electrical instruments.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Advances and Declines in Stocks Intermingled—Money 5%, Franc Goes Lower.

Some difference of opinion regarding the present level of Stock Exchange prices became visible yesterday. It was not in the nature of a general reaction, for the recent wild advance in certain "specialties" was resumed, and was supported both by another inpour of orders from the outside public and by signs of daring manipulation by a few of the speculative "pools." Under these auspices a considerable number of industrial stocks rose 5, 7 and in one case 21 points, with relatively small subsequent decline from the highest. But this picture did not represent the market as a whole.

In almost as many other stocks of the industrial group, selling was so heavy as to overcome the force of the outside buying orders, and to drive down prices in many instances 4 to 9 points. Speculative Wall Street ascribed the downward movement in that part of the market mostly to "profit-taking" by earlier successful purchasers, or to what it calls "switching" from one group of rapidly fluctuating stocks to another. But, strangely enough, it also rather generally agreed that "the bears" had a hand in the operation. Judged from the viewpoint which Wall Street at such a moment likes to take, of one day's "short sellers" mercilessly punished next day and deprived of a good part of their savings, this obstinate reappearance of speculators for the decline may well seem an affront to ordinary common sense. But somehow the teaching of past experience is that seasoned professional "bears" have quite as much intuitive grasp on the actual situation, when prices are in the altitudes, as professional "bulls" display when prices are rushing to the lowest level at the culmination of a panic.

Sterling went to the highest rate reached since the secondary reaction began in the middle of last week. It is again well above the New York "gold point"; yet $294,000 more gold was taken from the Bank of England. On the other hand, the franc broke sharply, following the movement which occurred at Paris during New York's holiday. Yesterday's low price of 4.02⅝ cents has never before been reached, except in one week of March, 1924. Cotton advanced half a cent, following Tuesday's recovery at New Orleans.

Yesterday's report on the country's iron output in October was of particular interest, not only because of the light which the figures are traditionally apt to throw on the scope of trade revival or reaction, but because of the highly enthusiastic forecasts lately made regarding the basic steel industry. The October results are favorable; but, like nearly all other current returns of production, the improvement is gradual and conservative. For instance, last month's average daily output was 71,1-3 per cent. above the September average, but 15⅘ per cent. below last March. It was 22 per cent. greater than the daily rate of October, 1924, but 4⅛ per cent. below the same month in 1923. Nor, indeed, does the estimated output at the end of the month show signs of rapid increase; it is less than one-half of 1 per cent. above the month's daily average. It should again be pointed out that this orderly and deliberate expansion is in itself a reassuring sign; but it does not square with the Stock Exchange's ideas. In a day or two we shall have the report on finished steel production, which will perhaps throw more light on the actual situation.

The first of the monthly "index numbers" of average prices for commodities provides another indication that conditions in general trade are not at all of the hectic sort. Dun's average shows an advance of only 1¼ per cent. during October and of only 2 per cent. from the low point of the year; it is still, in fact, more than 5¼ per cent. below the range at which such prices stood on Feb. 1. This is as far as possible from the traditional "inflation movement"; whose existence must apparently be proved, if it is to be proved at all, from the Stock Exchange and Florida real estate.

EXCHANGE ARGUES PLAN TO ADD SEATS

Simmons Outlines Proposal to Members and Hears Objections to Expansion.

STEVENS LEADS OPPOSITION

Declares Sale Will Enable Men to Acquire Places Without Bidding in Open Market.

E. H. H. Simmons, President of the New York Stock Exchange, spoke at a meeting of the members yesterday, to announce the plan to increase the membership by selling twenty-five seats for prices ranging from $135,000 to $145,000, plus the usual initiation fee of $4,000. The meeting was called, after opposition to the resolution adopted by the Board of Governors, to give members an opportunity to make known their objections and to hear the program of expansion. Details of Mr. Simmons's speech were not made public, and will not be until all members have received a copy, but it was learned that he clarified the statements made in his original letter sent to members with a copy of the resolution approving the increase in membership.

The members who are opposing the increase in membership, on the ground that the sale of additional seats will affect their present equity in the Exchange's assets, are said to be taking advantage of every opportunity to defeat the proposed amendment when it comes up for decision before the entire membership next Wednesday. Eben Stevens, of the opposition, wrote to the members yesterday requesting them to vote "no" on the proposal. Mr. Stevens refrained from commenting on the contents of Mr. Simmons's speech.

Mr. Stevens, however, cited the fact that there are now approximately 400 inactive memberships on the Exchange. Some method should be adopted, he holds, to make these memberships active, or make them available for use, so that the Exchange will be in a better position to handle the greater volume of business which is now coming from all sections of the country, without increasing the number of seats, and thus affecting the equity of present members.

"Many members of the Exchange," Mr. Stevens said, "are in favor of the proposal to increase the number of seats for selfish reasons, as it will enable them to acquire additional seats cheaply without bidding for them in the open market. Those in favor of the plan are chiefly the odd lot houses and specialists who do not produce any of the business which comes to the Exchange. Not a single member of the Exchange," according to Stevens, "would favor the adoption of a resolution, and would take steps which would jeopardize future expansion of the Exchange. There are four hundred inactive seats, however, which should be brought into play, either by substituting a member for the holder of the seat or permit the use of clerks to handle the details coincident with trades now taken care of entirely by the member.

"Furthermore," Mr. Stevens continued, "the commission houses which actually produce the business on the Exchange should be given further opportunity to make suggestions as to the methods to be adopted to facilitate the machinery of the Exchange, which all admit is inadequate in markets such as are now being experienced. It is impossible for me to refute what the President had to say today, as we have practically no organization to handle such matters, but I learned nothing as a result of attending the meeting except fear."

In his letter published a week ago Mr. Simmons intimated that the proposed sale was to provide for future expansion. Those who favor the sale, while not desiring to come into the open until the contents of President Simmons's arguments are made public, stated yesterday that the Stock Exchange has outlined a program which will enable it to speed up its facilities in order that 3,000,000-share trading days may be handled without effort.

Business, it was shown, had already reached that level, and unless measures were adopted to speed up the machinery, either by increased memberships or the establishment of two separate tickers, one for railroads and inactive stocks, and the other for active industrial stocks, thus giving the Exchange an opportunity to handle all the business offered, it is feared that much business would be lost to the Curb market and out-of-town exchanges. Current plans call for extension of the stock ticker service to the Pacific Coast around Jan. 1, and eventually to Florida. This extension, it is believed, will bring about an increased demand for memberships.

DODGE BROTHERS SET NEW SALES RECORD

Also Establish Peak in Profits, Reporting Net of $25,435,427 for Nine Months.

Dodge Brothers, Inc., showed new high records in the number of cars sold, gross profit and net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30. Net sales totaled $175,284,081 and net income after depreciation, but before interest on debentures, Federal income tax and dividends, was $25,435,427, as compared with $14,642,055 for the same period of the previous year.

The principal items in the company's financial statement were as follows:

	First 9 Months, '25.	First 9 Months, '24.
Net sales of cars and parts	$175,284,081	$155,179,714
Other earnings	2,108,302	633,491
Net income after depreciation but before interest on debentures, Federal income taxes and dividends	$25,435,427	$14,642,055

After all charges, the nine months' earnings were equal to $6.33 per share on the 2,434,524 common shares which are now outstanding. This includes the common shares issued against the recent conversion of debenture bonds. Income for the third quarter amounted to $8,872,115, which after charges, was equal to $2.25 a share on the common stock.

The company's report shows that it sold 203,546 cars in the first nine months of the year, exceeding any previous record for a like period. Since 1914, when the company sold 249 cars to Sept. 30, Dodge Brothers have sold 1,430,961 cars for a total price for cars and parts of more than $1,220,000,000, out of which figure the loss from bad debts amounted to only $33,000.

Plan Split of Utility Stock.

Directors of the National Power and Light Company, one of the Electric Bond and Share Company group, voted yesterday to submit to stockholders a plan to split the common stock on the basis of fifteen new shares to one of old. There are 122,078 issued shares of National Power. Electric Investors is one of the largest stockholders.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

With Stock Exchange trading yesterday, at 2,360,000 shares, just short of the three-million share mark—the most active day since Dec. 21, 1916, when sales aggregated 3,043,925—many industrial stocks were carried into new high ground. Gains of two to five points or upward occurred in the "specialties"; Du Pont rose twenty-one points, but the advance in Steel common attracted most attention. A few other standard dividend paying issues were again prominent because of their gains, but the sensational movement, excluding Steel common, was again confined to the miscellaneous specialties. One or two low priced railroad issues attracted attention because of their gains but the carriers generally were without feature. The recent tactics of the pools to jump from one issue to another to sustain the public's interest in speculative operations was followed again yesterday. This was clearly indicated by the manner in which Steel was taken in hand. While the trend of the market generally was upward, it was not without sharp contrasts. In a fairly long list of shares, including Chrysler, Mack Trucks, Cast Iron Pipe and B.-M. T., all recent "favorites," declines ranging from two to nine points were recorded.

"Stop-Loss Orders."

Some Wall Street men who have watched the market carefully for evidence of weakness or strength expressed the opinion yesterday that it was fairly honeycombed with stop-loss orders. These have in the last few days been responsible for the wild gyrations in particular stocks, because there are stop-loss orders above the market as well as below it. There has been constant talk of "gunning for stops" on the Stock Exchange this week. It is the stop-loss orders below the market, however, which are believed to have the greater capacity to cause trouble. They are reported to be particularly multitudinous in those issues which have had the wildest advances.

***

The Outside Public.

Curiously enough, one still encounters people in a day's trip around Wall Street who cling to the theory that "the public" is not in the market and that most of the activity is to be attributed to pool manipulation and to bank buying. First-hand evidence was found in many brokerage houses yesterday, however, that the public is in the market to a very formidable extent. The oldest and one of the largest brokerage houses on lower Broadway, yesterday morning, had more "buy at the market" orders for execution at 10 A. M. than on any other single day in its history. Some passing comment was made on the different attitude toward this "outside buying" which is taken when outside orders suddenly come into a depressed or panicky market, from that which is taken concerning the present orders. The public which bought, for instance, in June of 1921 or in April of last year, was considered to reflect a cool and deliberate judgment, and professional Wall Street made haste to follow its leadership. With the present "outside public," professional Wall Street's main idea is either how much can be sold to it in its excited state without breaking the market, or how long it can be made to follow a running advance.

Expert Diagnosis

Wall Street was busy discussing, after the close yesterday, whether anything could "happen to the market." It seemed to be agreed that there was nothing on the immediate horizon to cause any great amount of disturbance through the news, but it was also generally and somewhat uneasily admitted that the market had gone very fast and far without a reaction, and that markets, as one trader put it, are "like trees and do not grow straight up." One somewhat experienced observer put forth the suggestion yesterday that when the market does start to decline, whether through top-heaviness or through some unexpected and unforeseen development, "it will not be short selling of the bears, no matter how vicious that may be, which will cause it greatest damage, but the scramble to convert paper profits into actual ones, which is bound to come." Few people, it is judged, are as yet showing willingness to get out of the market and take their profits at this level. The heads of many brokerage houses will testify to this, but they, too, admit that the attitude might be changed overnight if the market should give evidence of wavering.

Steel Common Takes the Lead.

Accompanied by dealings as large as have been recorded in about nine years, United States Steel common advanced 6¼ points yesterday. According to the recollections of some of the old-time traders, Steel common has on only one occasion advanced as much as five points in a day, and that was during the war boom. For some time past Wall Street has been looking forward to a revival of speculative interest in the steel stocks, based upon the improved conditions in the industry, and the increased operations reported by the larger steel units aided the advance in the stock. In some quarters, however, the picking up of Steel as the leader at this time was looked upon as purely a market manoeuvre, and was believed to be in line with a prearranged program on the part of the so-called leaders who are believed to be playing a prominent part in current market operations. In connection with Steel's movement, all sorts of reports were circulated about the Street of the formation of new pools in stocks which lagged while the motors held the limelight.

Lifting London's Loan Embargo.

Lifting of the embargo against foreign loans in England is expected by New York bankers to exert an influence in many directions. One of the most important effects, it seemed to be felt yesterday, would be a stimulus to British trade. When loaning activities get under way, it was believed that London banking houses would be in a position to advance several hundred million dollars to governments and corporations in the dominions, colonies and foreign countries. For the most part, these loans probably will carry a proviso that at least part of the money advanced will be spent with British commercial concerns. The renewal of loaning activities in London also is expected to result in a firming up of money rates there, and a corresponding ease in money here, with a smaller call for American funds abroad. Another result expected from the return of competitive conditions between New York and London banking groups is a somewhat lower interest basis for new foreign securities.

As to Peace Over the St. Paul.

Negotiations are believed to be definitely under way for arriving at a compromise plan for reorganizing the St. Paul, but it is regarded as extremely doubtful if any middle ground will be reached satisfactory to all interests. It is not simply a matter of getting Roosevelt & Son, and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to agree, but of formulating a plan acceptable also to the stockholders' committee recently formed, and to the fire insurance companies holding large blocks of both stock and bonds. Railroad men predicted yesterday that, if any concessions were made by the original reorganization managers, they would be confined to slightly better terms for the bondholders, as the feeling has been prevalent for some time that the bondholders should have an opportunity to share in the future profits of the road if they consent to the exchange of fixed interest-baring obligations for those contingent upon the earnings of the road.

The Railroad Labor Problem.

Railroad employes are reported as beginning to hold conferences now on the advisability of asking the carriers for a return to the peak of war-time wages. Most of the union contracts expire with the current year, but they may be continued indefinitely if both sides are willing. The conferences at the present time are not taken very seriously in certain railroad circles. In other quarters, however, belief was expressed yesterday that the increase in railroad traffic and earnings has led some of the union leaders to the conclusion that the present time is opportune for presenting demands. There are admittedly no indications, however, of a strike.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 4, 1925.

Stock Exchange call money worked easier today, the flow-back of funds over the holiday resulting in more liberal offerings, while there was a noticeable contraction in withdrawals. Demand loans renewed at 5, but later new money prevailed at 4½ per cent., with an outside market down to 4@4¼ per cent. In time money some four-six months' funds loaned at 4½ per cent., interest in other maturities being nominal. Commercial paper was fairly active, as were acceptances, but here the discounts prevailed unchanged from previous charges.

NEW ISSUE

Roxy Theatre

50th to 51st Streets and Seventh Avenue
New York City

First Mortgage 6¼% Serial Coupon Gold Bonds

Dated: October 29, 1925 — Coupons Due: April 20 and Oct. 20 — Serial Maturities: Oct. 20, 1928, to Oct. 20, 1940

2% Federal Income Tax paid by the borrower. Pennsylvania four mills tax; Connecticut four mills tax; Maryland 4½ mills tax; District of Columbia five mills tax; Virginia 5½ mills tax; and Massachusetts State income tax, not in excess of 6% of the interest per annum, refunded upon proper application.

We summarize as follows from a letter from the borrowing corporation and from data compiled in our investigation of this issue:

MORTGAGED PROPERTY: The bonds are a direct closed first mortgage on the Roxy Theatre, containing more than 6,000 seats, to be the largest and most modern motion picture theatre in the world, and land in fee, fronting 290 feet on 50th Street and 190 feet on 51st Street. The main entrance will be on 7th Avenue, through the new Manger Hotel. The theatre will be provided with every modern innovation in motion picture presentation and will be the last word in structures of its kind. There is a heavy demand in New York City for another high grade first run moving picture theatre, and the character of this house, its exceptional location in the theatrical district, and the proven ability and long experience of the management assure its success. The building is now in course of construction and its completion is guaranteed.

OWNERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT: Mr. S. L. Rothafel, widely known to motion picture patrons and radio enthusiasts as "Roxy", is president of the Roxy Theatre Corporation, the borrowing corporation of this issue, and will direct the theatre. Mr. Rothafel has enjoyed an extraordinary record of success in motion picture theatres in New York City, and the present playhouse, conceived and executed on the largest possible scale, is intended to provide a fitting theatrical medium for the expression of his unusual talents. In addition to directing the theatre, Mr. Rothafel will continue broadcasting as "Roxy", which has gained for him such a great reputation, from a studio in the theatre under his direction. Associated with Mr. Rothafel is Mr. W. E. Atkinson as vice-president and general manager, a man of prominence and long experience in the motion picture field. Mr. Irwin S. Chanin, treasurer of the company, has built several New York theatres, including one which bears his name.

Appraiser	Value of Completed Property
Cushman & Wakefield, Inc.	$6,925,000
W. Albert Pease, Jr.	8,950,000

On the basis of the lowest appraisal the bonds constitute a 61.4% loan.

EARNINGS: Net earnings, after operating expenses, including insurance and taxes, are estimated by the borrower at $2,509,000 per annum. Our own estimates, on an extremely conservative basis, indicate minimum net annual earnings of $1,170,000, more than four times the greatest annual interest charge, and approximately three times principal and interest charges combined.

DENOMINATIONS: $1000, $500 and $100.

PRICE: To yield from 6% to 6.40% according to maturity.

French francs tumbled to a new low for the year at 4.03¾ cents yesterday, a gross loss of 18¾ points from our final on Monday. The greater part of this decline was sustained abroad on Tuesday while we were closed, it being reported that the franc had sold as low as 3.99 cents in Paris on that day.

Bankers attributed this fresh display of weakness to the rejection of the Painlevé program of fiscal reform by the Socialists, with the bulk of the selling coming from German and Amsterdam interests. However, this was less vigorous yesterday and while short positions were covered, the market was better maintained than on the holiday.

Sterling rallied an ¼ cent, to $4.84⅞, probably as a result of the declaration of the Government to remove the embargo on loans in London. Italian lire was soft at 3.04¼ cents, but the Belgian franc firm around 4.52¾ cents. Scandinavians were weak, as were the Spanish and Swiss documents. Japanese yen improved an ⅛ cent, to 41.75 cents, but the Chinese reacted. South Americans were dull.

PAN-AMERICAN BUYS LAGO PETROLEUM

New Company Chartered to Take Over Venezuela's Largest Oil Producer.

WICKETT MADE PRESIDENT

Branch of the Standard Gets Controlling Interest and Will Split Up Stock.

The Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company, which is controlled by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, has acquired a controlling interest in the Lago Petroleum Company, through arrangements with local bankers who controlled the Lago Company. A new company, the Lago Oil and Transport Company, has been chartered in Delaware to acquire a majority of the stock of the Lago Petroleum Company, and stockholders of the latter will be allowed to exchange their stock for that of the new company on advantageous terms. Application will be made, it is said, to list the shares of the new company on the New York Stock Exchange.

Colonel Robert W. Stewart, Chairman of Standard Oil of Indiana; F. H. Wickett, Chairman and President of the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company; Elisha Walker and George N. Armsby of Blair & Co., Inc., and Edward R. Tinker, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Chase Securities Company, were elected directors of the Lago Petroleum yesterday. Mr. Wickett was elected President of Lago, succeeding Frederick W. Baker, resigned.

The Lago Petroleum Company, which controls 8,000 square miles of potential oil-bearing lands in the basin of Lake Maracaibo, Venezuela, and produced an average of 30,000 barrels of crude oil daily in October, making it the largest producer in Venezuela, was organized about eighteen months ago by George F. Naphen, head of Naphen & Co., and J. S. Cosden, formerly head of the Cosden Oil Company. Mr. Naphen acquired Mr. Cosden's holdings recently and then negotiated for the sale of a controlling interest in the company to the Pan American interests. The latter had held about 26 per cent. of Lago's stock, acquired when it took over the British Mexican Petroleum Company, formerly a Doheny property, which was acquired when Standard of Indiana and Blair & Co., Inc., and their associates acquired the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company.

Lago also has a modern station just off Venezuela, with capacity to store 1,000,000 barrels of oil. This station, according to the bankers, is favorably located to supply the Destrehan refinery of Pan American near New Orleans.

The new Lago Oil and Transport Company will have an authorized capital of 3,000,000 shares of Class A stock and 1,000,000 shares of Class B stock. This new company will own a controlling interest in Lago Petroleum Corporation and all the preferred, and 51 per cent. of the common stock of the Lago Oil and Transportation Company, Ltd., of Canada. The last-named company has a contract to acquire all the oil produced by Lago Petroleum Corporation.

Motor Wheel Corp. Reports Loss.

The Motor Wheel Corporation reports net income of $550,530 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, equivalent after allowing for preferred dividends to 94 cents a share on the 550,000 shares of no par common stock outstanding. This compares with $1,788,080 or 2.08 a share in the preceding quarter.

ST. PAUL COMMITTEES SEEK A COMPROMISE

The committees organized to protect the interests of security holders of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul are trying to get together on a compromise plan, but there were few indications yesterday of definite progress.

The only possibility of a revision of the original terms of the Kuhn, Loeb-National City plan, it was said, lay in the granting of better terms to the bondholders, many of whom believe that they should receive an opportunity to share in the earnings of the road after the preferred stock is drawing dividends.

The rise of St. Paul stock is not regarded as the reflection of a feeling that the assessment on it will be smaller, but rather that many persons are convinced that conditions are on the mend in the Northwest.

The reorganization managers under the original plan are holding to their recent announcement that the plan had been declared operative and that all securities received after Nov. 20 would be subject to penalty. They emphatically deny statements by their opponents that certain security holders are "being coerced" into depositing under their plan.

BRAZIL STATE TO PAY BONDS

The State of Catherina, Brazil, which defaulted on Feb. 1 on the semiannual interest due on its 8 per cent. bonds, has reached an agreement with Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., under which payments on the bonds will be resumed next February, provided bondholders accept a slight modification of the loan contract for the period 1926 to 1928.

Bankers say the default was due to financial embarrassment rather than unwillingness to pay. For five months representatives of the bankers have been in Brazil conferring with State officials. The plan under which it is proposed to resume payments was originated by the State, and was found reasonable by the bankers, who recommend its acceptance by the holders of $4,621,500 of the bonds.

The State has remitted $50,000 to the bankers in part payment of this year's interest and has deposited $75,000 more in a Brazilian bank for the same purpose. Next year, under the plan, $300,000 will be paid, and in 1927 $400,000, with increasing annual payments thereafter. Such payments will be applied to liquidation of accrued and current interest, any balance remaining to be used for a sinking fund. Interest on arrears of interest will be paid at 8 per cent.

STANDARD OIL TO ADD STOCK

New York Company's Holders Approve Increase to $375,000,000.

Stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of New York, at a special meeting yesterday approved the recent proposal to increase the authorized capital stock from $285,000,000 to $375,000,000, consisting of 15,000,000 shares of $25 par value each.

Beyond saying that part of the increased stock will be used to pay a stock dividend, the amount of which has not been mentioned, and that part will be used for other corporate purposes, no details were available as to what would actually be done with the stock. In some quarters of the financial district, however, the belief prevails that Standard of New York soon will make an offer to take over the minority stock holdings of the Magnolia Petroleum Company of Texas.

BAN LIFTED, LOANS BY LONDON LOOM UP

Plans for Financing in Warsaw, Cuba, Africa and Colonies Already Under Way.

COMPETITION FOR AMERICA

Other Countries Likely to Resume Deals, Stopped Since the War, With the Empire.

Removal of the embargo against foreign loans in London, announced Tuesday night, was followed yesterday by reports that negotiations were already under way for a number of important new bond issues in the British capital. It was reported in Wall Street that a loan to Cuba, to be backed by the British-American Tobacco Company, was being arranged in London; that Warsaw was seeking a good-sized loan there and that plans were taking shape for large advances for industrial expansion in Africa and other parts of the empire.

The New York banking world was deeply interested in the British action, which is expected to restore competitive conditions in the foreign loan market for the first time since the war. It is believed here that this will result in somewhat lower interest yields for some classes of foreign securities than have prevailed recently, as British bondholders always have been content to receive a lower return on investments abroad than have American. It is considered likely also that there will be somewhat of a change in the character of foreign financing, and that the London market will bring out stocks in a number of Continental concerns in contrast to the American practice, which has been to confine foreign issues mostly to bonds.

Bankers here believe that London banking houses will be in a position to advance several hundred million dollars to Governments and private enterprises in the dominions, colonies and foreign countries. This is expected to play an important part in stimulating British trade, as many of the loan contracts undoubtedly will contain provisos that at least part of the proceeds be spent with British commercial concerns. Another effect expected is firmer money rates in London and a corresponding ease in rates here with the foreign demand for American funds reduced.

While American bankers, who have done the bulk of international financing since the war, believe that some shifts in loaning activities may follow the London action, they do not expect really keen competition for loans until next year at least. It was pointed out that in many parts of the world which before the war borrowed habitually in London, had simply stopped obtaining loans abroad in recent years and that these accumulated requirements would be met before any others. It is believed, however, that German cities and industries, which have been obtaining large loans in this country will turn to England for part of their financing. Arrangements had already been made for London participation in an international loan to Belgium to help that country to return to the gold standard.

To Investors Who Want What These Investors Have Got

IN January, 1924, a great many conservative investors purchased from us bonds of the $360,000—6½% 581 Park Avenue (New York City) Apartment issue.

Some bought as little as a single $100 bond. Others bought as much as five, ten or twenty $1,000 bonds.

Since that time, and up to Nov. 1, 1925, these investors have received $53,100 in interest.

The point is that every investor, whether the holder of $100 worth or $5,000 or $20,000 worth of these bonds, has received every dollar due him—on the day it was due.

We are now offering to investors who want what these investors have got a number of issues of Commonwealth Bonds protected by the same kind of safeguards that surround the 581 Park Avenue issue. Many of these issues are Legal for Trust Fund Investment under the Laws of New York State. All are issued in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100.

Just sign and mail the coupon below and we will send you full particulars, together with our booklet, "Legal for Trust Funds".

CAR LOADINGS SET ANOTHER HIGH PEAK

GAIN OVER PREVIOUS WEEK

Increase Due to Greater Carrying of Coal, Grain, Merchandise and Forest Products.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Revenue freight loading for the week of Oct. 24 marked another high week in the history of the country's railroads, according to reports filed by the carriers with the American Railway Association. In the week ended Oct. 24, loadings of revenue freight totaled 1,121,459 cars, this figure being exceeded only by the week of Aug. 29, this year, when 1,124,430 cars were loaded.

The total for the week of Oct. 24 was an increase of 15,345 cars over the preceding week due to increases in the loading of coal, merchandise and less than carload lot freight, miscellaneous freight, grain and grain products, coke and forest products. Decreases under the week before were reported in the loading of livestock and ore. This was the fourteenth week this year that revenue freight loadings have exceeded one million cars.

Compared with the corresponding week last year, the total for the week of Oct. 24 was an increase of 8,406 cars, while it also was an increase of 47,618 cars over the corresponding week in 1923. It was, however, a substantial increase over the corresponding weeks in 1920, 1921 and 1922. Car loading totaled 189,006 cars, an increase of 2,617 cars over the week before but 5,398 cars under the same week last year. Compared with the same week in 1923 it also was a decrease of 6,452 cars.

Grain and grain products loading amounted to 48,289 cars, 2,989 cars above the week before, but 24,227 cars under the same week last year. It also was a decrease of 1,123 cars under the same week in 1923. In the Western districts alone grain and grain products loading totaled 30,913 cars, a decrease of 19,759 cars under the corresponding period last year.

Miscellaneous freight loading totaled 434,726 cars, an increase of 11,305 cars above the week before and 12,059 cars above the same week of last year. It also was an increase of 45,363 cars over the same week two years ago.

Loading of merchandise and less than carload lot freight amounted to 271,634 cars, an increase of 1,804 cars above the week before and 13,975 cars over the same week last year. Compared with the corresponding week two years ago, it also was an increase of 19,061 cars.

Forest products loading totaled 71,709 cars, 3,532 cars above the week before, but 1,760 cars below the same week last year. It also was 4,320 cars below the same week two years ago.

Coke loading totaled 13,949 cars, an increase of 569 cars above the preceding week and 3,970 cars above the corresponding week last year. Compared with the same week in 1923, it also was an increase of 1,914 cars.

Live stock loadings for the week amounted to 41,349 cars, a decrease of 2,401 cars under the week before and 997 cars below the corresponding week last year as well as 2,091 cars below two years ago. In the Western districts alone, 32,176 cars were loaded with live stock during the week, 52 cars above the same week last year.

Ore loading totaled 50,810 cars, a decrease of 4,980 cars under the preceding week but 10,784 cars above the corresponding week last year. It was, however, a decrease of 4,734 cars under the same period two years ago.

Compared with the preceding week this year, all districts reported increases in the total loading of all commodities except the Allegheny and Northwestern. All districts also reported increases over the corresponding week last year except the Eastern, Allegheny and Southwestern, while the Eastern and Allegheny were the only districts to show decreases under the corresponding week in 1923.

Car loadings for the week ended Oct. 24 make the following comparison with preceding weeks of this and previous years:

GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

From the letter of Mr. J. C. Hix, President of the Company, the following information is summarized:

THE COMPANY: Gulf Public Service Company owns and operates two groups of public utility properties serving with electric light, power, ice and water, twenty prosperous, growing communities in Louisiana and Northeastern Texas (population approximately 55,000). The most important activity is the manufacture and distribution of electric energy through central station and high-tension transmission line development. The properties heretofore have been operated in three separate groups but are now under one management.

This Company is owned and operated by the Consolidated Power & Light Company of South Dakota, which also owns and operates Southwestern Public Service Company, Nebraska Light & Power Company, Gothenburg Light & Power Company and Dakota Power Company.

BUSINESS AND PROPERTIES: Gulf Public Service Company supplies electricity for lighting and power purposes to seventeen communities, with total population of 44,500. The Louisiana group thus served comprises Glenmora, Breaux Bridge, Jeanerette, Patterson, Berwick, Vivian, Jena, Winfield, Cotton Valley, Oil City and Mooringsport; the Texas group, Jacksonville, Rusk, Troup, Frankston, Kemp and Mabank. The Company owns and operates, in conjunction with its electric properties, both ice and water plants at Winfield and Jena, Louisiana, and ice plants at Glenmora, Breaux Bridge and Cotton Valley, Louisiana, and at Jacksonville, Troup and Rusk, Texas. Ice plants alone are owned and operated at Ruston and Arcadia, Louisiana, and at Kaufman, Texas. The Company also furnishes ice at wholesale to Frankston, Kemp, Arp, Whitehouse, Overton and Crandall, Texas.

SECURITY: The First Mortgage Twenty-Year Sinking Fund 6% Gold Bonds, Series "A," of which there will presently be $1,500,000 outstanding, will constitute the only funded debt of the Company and will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage on all the physical properties of the Company. The value of these properties as appraised by independent engineers is largely in excess of this issue.

Gross Earnings	$593,820.33
Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Taxes	336,577.08
Balance	$257,243.25
Bond Interest (this issue)	90,000.00

SINKING FUND: The indenture provides for an annual sinking fund payment for the retirement of bonds of this issue commencing October 1, 1927, equal to 1% of the maximum principal amount outstanding at any time preceding such payment during the first five years; 2% during the next ten years, and 2½% during the last three years.

FRANCHISES: The franchises under which the Company operates are satisfactory in character and without burdensome restrictions.

MANAGEMENT: The management of this Company is in the hands of efficient and progressive public utility operators.

Books and accounts of the Company have been audited by Messrs. Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., and Haskins & Sells, Certified Public Accountants. Appraisals by Messrs. Day & Zimmerman and A. C. King. All legal details incident to this financing will be passed upon and approved by Messrs. Chapman, Cutler & Parker.

We offer these bonds if, when and as issued and received by us, subject to approval of Counsel.

Adversity

NOTHING succeeds like success and nothing fails so bitterly as failure. The dividing line is sometimes very narrow indeed. The uninformed investor may have the good fortune to make selections which turn out well, but the chance he takes is greater than he would think of risking in his business ventures. By obtaining sound investment counsel you can largely eliminate the risk.

PLAN NEW COMPANY FOR FOX THEATRES

Announcement Says Corporation Will Have More Than $20,000,000 in Assets.

SHARES IN TWO CLASSES

Both to Share in Earnings, but One, Held by Fox and Associates, Will Control Concern.

A new company to be known as the Fox Theatres Corporation with an authorized capitalization of 4,000,000 shares of common stock of no par value, is to be incorporated under the laws of this State, according to an announcement yesterday. The stock, it was said, would consist of 3,900,000 Class A shares, and 100,000 Class B shares, each class sharing equally in the earnings. Control of the company, however, will rest with the Class B stock which will be held by William Fox and his associates.

The announcement says that the company will begin its corporate existence with assets of more than $20,000,000 of which $11,000,000 will be cash and $9,000,000 in equities in theatres, and that the only indebtedness will consist of $1,300,000 represented by real estate mortgages.

A statement issued by bankers interested says that the theatres and interests in theatres now controlled by William Fox and his associates will be taken over by the new company. The equity in these properties are put at $8,000,000, accumulated out of earnings from an original investment of $5,000 by Mr. Fox in 1905.

In addition, the statement says that this investment has paid Mr. Fox and his associates $6,000,000. The theatres to be included in the group which the Fox Theatres Corporation will control or hold substantial interest are listed as follows:

In New York, Academy of Music, East Fourteenth Street; Audubon, 165d Street and Broadway; City Theatre, East Fourteenth Street; Crotona, Tremont Avenue; Japanese Gardens, Ninety-sixth Street and Broadway; Nemo Theatre, 110th Street and Broadway; Star Theatre, 107th Street and Lexington Avenue. In Brooklyn, Folly Theatre, also the American Theatre and Terminal Theatre, Newark; Liberty Theatre, Elizabeth, N. J.; American Theatre, Paterson, N. J.; Fox Theatre, Jamaica, N. J.; Fox-Washington Theatre, Detroit; and the Plaza Theatre and Isis Theatre, Denver.

According to the present plan, 900,000 of common stock will be presently outstanding, consisting of 800,000 of Class A and 100,000 shares of Class B. The authorized but unissued balance will be reserved for future needs.

BOSTON & MAINE PETITIONS.

Asks Commission to Approve Its Reorganization Plan.

BOSTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Acting under authority granted by the last Legislature the Boston & Maine Railroad today filed with the Public Utilities Commission a petition seeking approval of the details of the railroad's reorganization plan. The commission set Nov. 17 as the date for a public hearing on the petition.

The commission is asked to approve the creation of a new class of prior preference stock at 7 per cent. and the issue of $13,000,000 of this stock. The petition says that the proceeds will be used to pay for necessary improvements and additions to the line, and that all matters covered in the application have been approved by a vote of the stockholders and directors.

The general readjustment committee of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company announced yesterday that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has deposited its holdings of Boston & Maine stock under the provisions of the plan for reorganizing the financial structure of the Boston & Maine.

The New Haven has arranged also to subscribe for its full quota of the new 7 per cent. prior preference stock to be issued by the B. & M. under the reorganization. The New Haven subscription will amount to $4,500,000, or slightly more than one-third of the $13,000,000 prior preference stock offered.

OCTOBER IRON OUTPUT 7⅓ PER CENT. LARGER

Still Below the Spring Months, but 22 Per Cent. Above 1924.

Iron production in the United States during October, as reported by The Iron Age, was 3,028,570 tons, a daily rate was 97,535 tons, as against 2,726,193 tons for September, or 90,873 tons a day. The daily rate was thus 7.3 per cent. greater than in September; in comparison with October of last year the gain was 22 per cent.

Thirteen furnaces blew in last month and seven blew out. The 206 furnaces active on Nov. 1 had an estimated daily capacity of 97,950 tons a day, against 94,850 tons a day for the 200 furnaces in blast one month previous.

Monthly output during the last three years compares as follows, in tons:

POWER CONSOLIDATION PLANNED ON COAST

California-Oregon Company to Be Merged With New Concern in Byllesby Extension Move.

Arrangements for the consolidation of the California-Oregon Power Company with a new company to be organized and controlled by the Standard Gas and Electric Company were announced yesterday by H. M. Byllesby & Co. The basis for the merger is to be an exchange of stock in the old company for securities in the new.

The California-Oregon Power Company supplies light and power in forty-four communities in Northern California and Southern Oregon, comprising a population of 84,000. The company owns and operates eleven hydroelectric plants of a total installed capacity of 100,000 horsepower, 775 miles of high-tension transmission lines and 780 miles of distributing lines.

For some years the company's physical properties have been connected with those of the Mountain States Power Company, which is operated by the Standard Gas and Electric Company. The Mountain States and the Pacific Gas and Electric companies have been large wholesale customers of California-Oregon.

Through the Mountain States transmission lines the California-Oregon Company delivers energy to the Portland Power Company, and it is expected that in future energy will be delivered into the Coos Bay and Humboldt Bay territories, now served by the Byllesby companies. The new consolidation marks a step in the expansion of Byllesby properties on the Pacific Coast.

GUARANTY ELECTS MELLON.

Brother of the Secretary of the Treasury Chosen a Director.

R. B. Mellon, a brother of Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, was elected a director of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York at a meeting of the board yesterday. The action marked the entrance into New York banking of the Mellon family of Pittsburgh, leaders in the financial and industrial life of Western Pennsylvania and one of the wealthiest groups in the United States.

R. B. Mellon is President of the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh and Vice President of the Union Trust Company of the same city. Members of the family control the Aluminium Company of America and are active in the affairs of steel mills, railroads and other corporations.

NEW REPORT OF OIL MERGER

Continental and Standard of Nebraska Said to Be in Deal.

Reports were again current in the financial district yesterday to the effect that negotiations were under way to merge the Continental Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of Nebraska. Similar reports were heard in the financial district a year ago, but nothing materialized. Such a combination, it was said, would be logical in view of the expansion of Continental's business in the Nebraska territory, but no confirmation of the report could be obtained.

Directors of Continental Oil Company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock, payable Dec. 15, to stockholders of record Nov. 14.

The Oldest Company
In the Newest Industry

THAT the airplane is rapidly assuming an important part in transportation is an admitted fact. That its future is unlimited is also conceded by those who have studied the situation. After years of struggle, the airplane is now coming into its own. The limitless prospects which were open to the telephone, the railroads, the wireless or other modern inventions, at their inception, are now open to the airplane.

In the entire airplane industry, throughout the U. S., there is just one leader—CURTISS AEROPLANE & MOTOR COMPANY—manufacturer of airplane motors and airplanes for military and commercial purposes from propellers to fuselage. Curtiss superiority has been proved in racing by the winning of the world's greatest events, in the military field by adoption of its planes by the United States Government and by the use of Curtiss motors by the British and Italian governments, and in the commercial field by the purchase of Curtiss planes by hundreds of civilian operators.

The Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company of today is the outgrowth of the business first started in 1904, twenty-one years ago. In the intervening years, the business had had its "ups" and "downs." After the war, the Curtiss Company went through a drastic reorganization in which capitalization was scaled down and surplus facilities were eliminated. The present Curtiss constitutes the most complete and efficient aircraft organization in the world, and is admirably situated for immediate expansion.

The Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company today has more profitable business on its books than at any time in its history since the wartime period. The many projected plans for new air routes promise additional orders. The expenditures planned for the United States military establishment run into millions of dollars.

Curtiss Aeroplane common stock was advised for purchase by us when it was selling nine points lower. Our analysis of the airplane industry and of the position of the Curtiss Company convinced us that this stock was greatly undervalued. Today, we believe, in view of recent developments affecting the industry as a whole, and Curtiss in particular, that Curtiss common is relatively cheaper now than when we first advised its purchase.

We suggest the immediate purchase of Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company common stock, at the market, for immediate profits as well as a long pull speculation of more than usual merit.

A dead security that came to life!

"WHATEVER you get for these five dead bonds I bought from another house I'll reinvest with you. I'm tired of holding on to my one mistake," an investor said.

The Compton salesman got a bid of 17, but wasn't satisfied. Two days' search uncovered some interesting facts. This utility, hard hit by the piping of natural gas across the mountains into its territory, was recovering fast as natural gas supplies dwindled and home building increased. The investor was advised to hold on, and later sold for 84.

That is merely an every-day incident in the Compton plan of security selling, which is to furnish you with sound advice for improving your financial position, for as you profit, your purchase follows. Thirty-eight years of success are built upon this rule.

FAVOR RAIL SPECIFICATIONS.

Manufacturers Accept New Code of Railway Association.

The American Railway Association has adopted rail specifications which for the first time are acceptable to the rail manufacturers in all respects and in accordance with which they will roll rails without premium.

The specifications are the result of four years' study by the Rail Committee of the association and bring into accord with modern practice those adopted in 1915 by the American Railway Association. Manufacturers have already accepted orders for more than 100,000 tons of rails to be rolled accordingly. The new rails differ from the old in the following respects:

The length of the rail is increased from 33 to 39 feet. The rail must stand three drop tests instead of the two or three previously required. The specifications also provide for a one-blow drop at an increased height, breakage under which rejects the steel. Clauses stipulating the requirements of mill practice which were not mandatory and which caused continual dissension between the railroads and the equipment manufacturers have been eliminated. In their place a provision has been inserted requiring that the mill practice must be in accordance with the best practice of the individual mill and the inspectors are provided with authority to report any deviation to the mill management and the railroad simultaneously. This provision affords approval for the inspection of manufacture.

AVERAGE PRICES UP 1¼ PER CENT. IN OCTOBER

The monthly index number of average commodity prices as of Nov. 1, given out yesterday by Dun's Review, shows an advance of 1¼ per cent. during October, following declines in September and August. The present index number is 1¾ per cent. higher than that of Nov. 1, 1924, and 2 per cent higher than the low level of the present year, reached on May 1. It is still, however, 3¾ per cent. below the high monthly average of the present year to date, reached on Feb. 1.

As compared with the lowest monthly average since the war, reached on July 1, 1921, the present index number shows an advance of 24½ per cent. As compared with the high point of May 1, 1920, it marks a decline of 25¾ per cent. The present average is 63¼ per cent. above that of Aug. 1, 1914.

Of the seven groups of commodities in the Dun computation, there were advances during October in breadstuffs, dairy and garden products, other foods, metals and miscellaneous articles, but declines in meat and in cotton and textiles. Compared with a year ago the average for meat, dairy and garden, metal and miscellaneous products, is higher, but the average for breadstuffs, other foods and textiles is lower.

BOOM IN MOTOR TRADE IN GREAT BRITAIN ALSO

Increase of 132 Per Cent. During Five Years in Number of Cars Licensed.

The London Economist publishes a table indicating an expansion in the motor car trade in Great Britain closely parallel to that in the United States. The table shows that, as compared with the preceding year, the number of private licenses increased 17 per cent. in 1923; 20 per cent. in 1923; 24 per cent. in 1924, and in 1925 to date, 22 per cent., making a total increase in five years of 132 per cent. Commercial motors increased 65 per cent. in the same five-year period and motorcycles 60 per cent. The Economist makes the following comment on the movement in Great Britain:

"We see from these figures that a very rapid growth has taken place, and the cumulative effect in the short period of five years has been astounding. Judging by the results of the orders taken at Olympia this year, we shall see more than the normal number of new vehicles placed on the roads in 1926. This year, with figures only up to Aug. 31, it is shown that over 277,000 additional vehicles were brought into use, as compared with 1924. The vast majority of these were new vehicles, although we must make allowance for the big array of second-hand motors which were licensed occasionally. If next year we allow that at least 300,000 more vehicles come into use, and if the increase from 1921 to 1925 be taken at 650,000 vehicles, we have the remarkable circumstance that in six years about 1,000,000 extra motors will have come on our roads.

"Even to the close student of the motor industry and trade, the present situation has its puzzling features. The motor show has been a phenomenal success, and, putting aside all extravagant claims and estimates, it is certain that the volume of insured business has exceeded all previous records. So suddenly has the rush of new orders come that many manufacturers have been taken by surprise.

"When we consider that this prosperity occurs in a year of general trade depression and at a time when we are burdened with a large army of unemployed and with a big excess of import trade against our export trade, one may well wonder where all the money for motoring is found."

TEST CAR RETARDERS.

Apparatus Under Observation in Indiana Freight Yards.

Automatic car retarders which eliminate the dangerous practice of "hump riding" in railroad yards where freight cars are classified are being tested both here and in Europe.

Executives of the Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Pennsylvania and other carriers have been watching for more than a year the classification of cars carried on by the automatic method in the Gibson, Ind., yard of the Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad. In Europe a system of rail brakes or car retarders has been installed in yards of the German State Railways.

The apparatus used here is the invention of George Hannauer, Vice President of the Indiana Harbor Belt Railroad, a subsidiary of the New York Central, and is manufactured by the General Railway Signal Company. He has had the cooperation of President Patrick E. Crowley of the Central.

On Dec. 1, 1923, shortly before the retarders were installed in the Indiana yard, seventy-seven men were required to put 1,411 cars over the hump in twenty-four hours. With the retarders in operation ten men put 1,042 cars over the hump in eight hours.

In the twelve months preceding the installation at Gibson three riders were killed. In the year and a half since the retarders have been doing the work of the car riders, not a man has been killed or injured.

The retarder consists of movable bars in lengths of eight to ten feet, assembled in units of thirty-two to forty feet and arranged in pairs on either side of each rail. By means of compressed air systems and a system of levers, these bars can be closed like a vise on both sides of all wheels passing between them. Pressure of the bars against the wheels can be modulated at the will of the operator as may be required to retard anything from an empty car to a seventy-ton car of coal.

Central Steel Income Gains.

The Central Steel Company reports for the quarter ended Sept. 30 net income of $937,867, equivalent after preferred dividends to $3.28 a share on 244,771 no par shares of common stock. This compares with $636,765 or $2.00 a share in the third quarter of last year. Net income for the nine months totaled $2,876,801, equal to $10.23 a share on the common after allowing for preferred dividends, against $2,033,373 or $9.32 a share in the same period of the previous year.

HIGH RECORD SET IN RETIRING BONDS

Corporations Have Called In $760,218,020 Before Maturity in Eleven Months.

MONEY CONDITIONS EASIER

A new record in the amount of corporation bonds to be called before maturity will be established this month. The total for the month is $100,925,700, and in addition several foreign Government securities will be retired through the operation of sinking funds. Bonds called for payment in eleven months of this year amount to $760,218,020, a record, compared with $248,840,220 in the corresponding period of 1924.

Of the corporate bonds called for payment this month, $96,358,500 are issues called in their entirety, while $4,567,200 represents parts of issues, called generally to satisfy sinking fund requirements. This large reduction reflects easy money conditions and an abundance of funds available for refunding purposes at lower interest. The figures also illustrate the steady improvement in the financial structures of American corporations. Many of the issues called will be paid from treasuries or from current earnings.

The largest issue called for November consists of $20,000,000 two-year 5 per cent. bonds of the Marland Oil Company, due in 1926. These bonds were called for payment Nov. 1 at 101.

Following is a list of corporate bonds called for payment in advance of maturity in November, 1925, with due date, amount and called price, as compiled by Dow, Jones & Co.:

COTTON FIELD WORK HIT BY THE WEATHER

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture issued at Washington yesterday in part follows:

"It continued unfavorable for gathering the cotton crop in most sections of the belt where harvest has not been completed. There was also considerable lowering of grade and damage by rain to unpicked cotton, and in northwestern portions of the belt by freezing.

"The growth of late cotton was stopped by freezing weather in the northwestern and much of the western portions of Texas, while picking and ginning were delayed by unfavorable weather, with some further lowering of grade. In Oklahoma much damage to immature bolls was caused by the freezing, and picking was greatly retarded, while the growth of late plants was stopped in Arkansas; in the western portion of the latter State conditions for picking were somewhat better. In Tennessee the rains of the last weeks have been very damaging to unpicked cotton and that remaining in the fields in the Central Gulf States was unfavorably affected. Rains interrupted picking also in the northwestern portion of the belt, with some lowering of grade.

"There was some further damage to corn in shock and to down corn in the central and eastern portions of the belt, including the upper Mississippi Valley, and there were complaints of heating in Iowa. Muddy fields and cloudy, snowy weather made very unfavorable conditions for gathering the crop in nearly all central and eastern portions of the country. In the lower Missouri Valley, gathering was principally confined to that needed for seeding, but in Iowa the latter part of the week was more favorable and husking was resumed. There was some damage to corn reported also in lower Mississippi Valley States.

"Early sown Winter wheat is in good to excellent condition generally, although it has been too dry in a few localities in Kansas, and this State reports considerable damage by fly. Later sowings are not germinating so well, and in many portions of the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys, unfavorable weather has so much delayed farm work that there is still a large acreage to be seeded and some will not be sown. In the South Atlantic and Gulf States, the rains of the past week have created much more favorable conditions for this crop. Other Fall cereals are generally doing nicely.

"The weather in the grain sections of Argentina during the week ending Nov. 2 was slightly cooler than normal, and generally fair. The temperature averaged 2 degrees below normal in the corn and northern wheat zone and 1 degree below in southern wheat districts. The rainfall averaged 0.2 in each of these areas."

The Oldest Will Known
made 4473 years ago

A FEW years ago, Dr. Flinders-Petrie, a noted Egyptologist, unearthed at Kahun, in the pyramid region, near the border of the Nile—a document so wholly modern in form that it might almost be granted probate in the courts of today.

This document which appears to bear the date 2548 B. C., is made by one Sekheuren in favor of his wife, Teta, and is nothing more or less than a will—probably the oldest in existence.

In phrases which might well be used today, the testator settles upon his wife all the property given him by his brother, but expressly states that she "must not pull down the houses which my brother built for me." A guardian is named for his infants. It is witnessed by two scribes with a modern attestation clause. * * * * *

While wills have changed so little in all these years—the method of carrying out a will has changed radically even in the last century.

Nowadays—instead of naming an individual executor, more and more people are recognizing the advantages of specifying the more efficient services of a Trust Company in this capacity.

The Brooklyn Trust Company places at your disposal its expert knowledge of this highly technical and complex profession—the result of 59 years of progress and experience.

STEEL TRADE BRISK AND PRICES HIGHER

October Orders and Shipments Near Record for the Year, Reviews Report.

PRODUCTION NEAR CAPACITY

Pig Iron Continues to Advance—Buying for Stock Gains on Returning Confidence.

Order books of the leading steel companies are declared to be in more satisfactory condition than at any time in the last six months. The reviews of the iron and steel trade, published today, note that higher prices in many lines reflect increased underlying strength.

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Both shipments and incoming orders in the month just closed were the heaviest of the year for some of the largest steel makers; with others they were only slightly less than the high watermark last January. On every hand marks of enlarged consumption well filled plant capacity and greater confidence on the part of buyers in providing for expected wants are being shown. More pressure is being laid on producers to speed up shipments.

"Production of iron and steel has moved forward another step to accommodate the growing needs of users. Chicago producers are operating on a basis of 83 per cent. of steel-making capacity, the Mahoning Valley is at 86 per cent., the Pittsburgh district at 80 per cent."

The Iron Age thus summarizes conditions:

"Progress has been made in the efforts of the mills to stabilize prices. Independent sheet mills, after accumulating a backlog, have announced advances of $6 a ton on black and blue annealed sheets, and as high as $4 on galvanized. The leading sheet interests, after October bookings that were the largest in twenty-one months, has made similar advances.

"Pig iron continues to advance and it has been an active week, particularly at Cleveland and Cincinnati, which together had sales of 75,000 tons. Southern iron is most markets apart from Chicago is again 50 cents higher, and some Alabama makers have put their prices up $1 a ton.

"As November opens leading steel companies have more satisfactory order books than in the past six months. Buying for stock is of larger volume and in several lines shipments in October are found to have exceeded those of January, which had been the high month of the year in that respect.

"Pig iron production for October is of more than ordinary interest in view of the triple gain for the month reported by all producers of steel—namely, in output, in shipments from mills and in unfilled orders for finished steel."

WHEAT OPENS FIRM, BUT CLOSES LOWER

Pressure by the Northwest and "Long" Investors Causes Net Losses in All Options.

DECEMBER IS WEAKEST

Investment Buying Gives Corn a Lift, but Oats and Rye Drop With Wheat.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Weakness in the Winnipeg and Liverpool wheat markets, with pressure from the Northwest and local longs, carried values off sharply after a firm opening, and the finish was about at the bottom, with net losses of 1¾ to 2⅜ cents, with December leading, the premium of the latter over May being 4¼ cents at the last.

At one time there was an apparent profit of ¾ cent per bushel in buying December at Duluth and selling old December here based on a freight rate of 2½ cents, but no purchases were reported by cash handlers.

A check-up of the Minneapolis stocks shows that, with the exception of 750,000 bushels of wheat there, the stock is composed of high protein premium grain, which would not be delivered unless there was a sharp run-up in futures late in December or a material weakening in the spot basis. No change was made in the basis on hard Winters here, while Kansas City was 1 cent lower, but is still far above a shipping basis. St. Louis reported a much better cash demand toward the last.

Winnipeg, which has been leading the advances recently, led the decline today with net losses of 2¾ to 3¼ cents. Liverpool was ⅝ to ¾d. lower, with some selling attributed to the Canadian pool. Longs at Winnipeg were good sellers, and weather conditions in the West were better than generally reported.

The decline in Winnipeg was attributed largely to selling by scattered longs, although weather conditions in the West were more favorable than anticipated. The Canadian Pacific Railroad's report indicated that 10 to 15 per cent. of the Manitoba grain remained to be threshed with 20 per cent. in Saskatchewan and 25 per cent. more in Alberta.

Primary arrivals today were 1,240,000 bushels; week ago, 960,000; last year, 1,460,000. Shipments were 921,000 bushels; week ago, 1,087,000; last year, 2,219,000.

Investment buying and aggressive support from a number of local bulls, combined with short covering, caused corn to show independent strength, and the close was ¾ cent higher, despite the weakness in other markets. Stop-loss orders were uncovered on the way up and there was no pressure until December sold at 16⅞ cents, at which figure and over profit-taking was in evidence.

Charters were made for 200,000 bushels at 2 cents to Buffalo. Over 50 per cent. of the 113 cars received here were of new grain.

Primary points had 497,000 bushels for the day; week ago, 514,000; last year, 615,000, and shipments, 230,000 bushels; week ago, 274,000; last year, 351,000.

Oats declined ¼ cent and rye ⅞@1⅛ in sympathy with wheat. Long sold December oats and the December-May spread widened 1½@1¾ cent.

COTTON PRICES RISE ON POOR WEATHER

Improved Technical Position Results in Net Advances of 40 to 59 Points.

Uncertainty as to the showing of next Monday's Government crop report, a continuation of unfavorable weather in the South and the improved technical position of the futures market following the severe declines of last week appeared to be the chief factors in yesterday's advance in the cotton market.

Prices sold up to the 20-cent level for December and 19.82 for March, making net advances of 41 to 44 points on the active positions and recoveries of 123 to 129 points from the low levels of last Saturday. The close was within 5 or 6 points of the best figures, with the market very steady at net advances of 40 to 59 points.

The buying movement here was stimulated by the firm showing of Liverpool and New Orleans over election day. This was evidently regarded as indicating that hedge selling had tapered off after the heavy liquidation and weakness of last week.

Those of the private crop reports were published yesterday. The lowest made the yield 14,940,000 bales and the highest 15,300,000, compared with the last official forecast of 15,226,000 bales. There were also three private figures on ginnings to Nov. 1, ranging from 10,-920,000 up to 11,000,000 bales. The percentage of the crop ginned to Nov. 1 for the past four years has ranged from 71.2 up to 83.7, and averaged 78.1. Based on this average, a ginning of 11,-000,000 bales would point to a crop of but little over 14,000,000, but if ginnings should be only 71.2 per cent., as last year, it would point to a crop of 15,450,-000 bales.

Southern spot markets as officially reported were 50 to 65 points higher, the lowest middling quotation being 18.75 at Montgomery and the highest, 19.85, at Little Rock.

A sharp rebound in spot cotton, to 20.45 cents, in keeping with the stronger contract market, was the principal development in the local cash markets yesterday. SAYS CITY SPEED IS GREATEST KILLER

COMPETITIVE ATHLETICS

Journal of the American Medical Association Warns of Danger to High School Pupils.

The American people are solemnly warned against "athletic strenuosity" in an editorial article in The Journal of the American Medical Association. Modern American speed, with all that that implies, is the basic cause of "chronic cardiovascular-renal disease, the greatest cause of death in all our cities," the writer asserts. This means disease of the heart, bloodvessels and kidneys. In the more advanced stages of these affections they are usually associated and are presumably what physicians mean when they announce that So-and-So "died of a complication of diseases."

"For twenty-five years," says the writer, "the tendency, in this country at least, has been to increase speed, until we have reached the age of rest: almost no nerve and brain relaxation and often not enough muscle rest. The consequent mental and physical tire is interpreted by the business layman as a need for more exercise. If he cannot take regular exercise he may drink more coffee or alcohol or use more tobacco, either to cause stimulation or to procure rest.

"When he does take exercise it is usually spasmodically, mostly at weekends and excessively, to the point, frequently, of causing heart tire. If his exercise is golf, it is thirty-six holes instead of eighteen; if it is tennis, it is five sets morning and afternoon; if it is walking, it is a cross-country 'hike,' with too many hills and too much climbing. Even motoring for pleasure has become 'speed and distance' at tension instead of with relaxation.

"The efficient man would advise regular training for the development of any set of muscles for any particular test, but he does not seem to realize that the heart is a muscle, and that without training (regular, daily, gradually increasing muscle work), he pushes it to tire and often to exhaustion by his spasmodic, unregulated exertion.

Restless Age of Speed.

"The restless age of speed, telephones, stenographers, dictographs, committee work, ceaseless interviews, overeating and hurried eating, artificial stimulation, chronic mouth infection (which is very frequent), all lead to one end: Chronic cardiovascular-renal disease, the greatest cause of death in all our cities, the greatest cause of death in all our civilized countries. The women do not escape this strenuosity, and are adding too much of the same program to their household duties. The result is the same as in men, except that women may have more nervous irritability, due to overstimulation of the thyroid gland.

"The craze of the day is competitive athletics. Twenty years ago such sports were confined to colleges and universities, but now the disease of 'athletic competitis' has spread to the high schools, and even to the underdeveloped youth. The larger the boy, without regard to his age, the more the captain and the athletic trainer corral him for physical stunts and competitive strains. A boy who has grown rapidly to oversize may not have had his heart developed to fit his bulk. Ordinary exercise, even if not competitive athletics, causes his heart to work all that it is well able to do, and hence competitive speed or endurance is absolutely inexcusable in his case. Doubtless many fine, sturdy lads are damaged by high school athletics.

"In colleges, the oversized boy, tall and overweight, is excellent football material. If not overtrained and heart-hurt at the time of the athletic tests, he acquires a hypertrophied heart and hence an increased systolic blood pressure, which makes him uncomfortable and mentally and physically 'foul' (as he terms it) as soon as his athletic life ceases. He is from this time on on the impaired insurance list as a rule, he does not live to his expectancy. In practically all colleges and in some schools physical medical examinations are made of each boy or youth before he is accepted and trained for any special branch of athletics, and the diseased or damaged hearts are thus eliminated. But what medical examination of a boy or youth can exactly determine his reserve heart strength?

The Schoolboy's Heart.

"It would seem, therefore, that all competitive athletics should be graded to the average endurance for the age of the boy. The distance of the run and the length of the boat race should be kept down to the figure that is perfectly safe for well hearts at a given age. Acute heart strain is of not infrequent occurrence in training for athletics, to say nothing of such occurrence at the end of a race. It has been repeatedly shown that with the first strain of heavy work the heart increases in size, but it soon becomes normal or even smaller as it more strenuously contracts, and the cavities of the heart will be completely emptied at each systole.

"If the work is too heavy and the systolic blood pressure is rapidly increased, it may become so great as to prevent the left ventricle from completely evacuating its content. The heart then increases in size and may sooner or later become strained; if this strain is severe, an acute dilatation may of course occur, even in an otherwise well person. Such instances are not infrequent. A heart that is already enlarged or slightly dilated and insufficient will more closely increase its forcefulness under the stress of muscular labor, and we have a delayed rise in systolic pressure. Also the paleness, faintness, nausea and vomiting that often occur after long runs or other severe strain, with or without heart pain, are evidence of heart strain.

"An athletic strain may not show an acute dilatation, but the heart weakness may persist for days and even weeks. Repeated heart strain must impair future heart tone. The heart strain case, as photographed at the end of a long competitive race, typically shows the actual circulatory strain undergone by the competitor. Falling over in the boat at the end of a four-mile race is positive indication of utter heart exhaustion.

"The boy is ready to die for the fame and success of his alma mater, and the Faculty schoolmates and friends all put their faith and dependence on him. He must not fail! But is the sacrifice of even a small number (there may be many) of our fine, sturdy young men worth the price? Our young girls, in this age of feminine freedom, are also overdoing athletics. * * * Why should girls try tests of vaulting? Is such prowess worth the possible price?

"Disapproval of graded constant calisthenics, exercise, athletics and outdoor life for all children and youth is not intended. Outdoor exercise and sports are essential for the health of adults. More walking and less automobiling have a value thus far not much appreciated. Our age has been characterized as 'athletics crazy'; let us s e whether we cannot get back to athletic 'normalcy.'"

Public School Notes.

OPEN SCHOOL WEEK—Open school week, which has been celebrated in the New York public schools hitherto during October, and American education week, which has been observed in November, are to be combined this year, according to a general circular letter issued by Superintendent of Schools Dr. William J. O'Shea to District Superintendents and Principals. Dr. O'Shea says in part:

"Inasmuch as the character of the activities of these two weeks is similar, the Board of Superintendents has approved a recommendation that open school week and American education week be observed during the week beginning Nov. 16, which is the time set for American education week throughout the country. The consolidation of the activities of these two weeks into one week will mean a saving in interruption to school time and a conservation of the energies of the teachers.

"The program for American education week, as prepared by the National Education Association, the United States Bureau of Education and the American Legion, is as follows:

"Monday, Nov. 16—Constitution day. Tuesday, Nov. 17—Patriotism day. Wednesday, Nov. 18—School and teacher day. Thursday, Nov. 19—Conservation and thrift day. Friday, Nov. 20—Know-your-school day. Saturday, Nov. 21—Community and health day; Sunday, Nov. 22—Day of God and country.

"During this week the schools should keep open house to parents and other citizens who are interested in education.

"The general plan of observance is to be devised by the District Superintendents for the schools under their supervision. District Superintendents are requested to make this event a matter of special discussion and conference. The plans should include the holding of at least one general meeting to which parents shall be invited, and such other means as will acquaint the parents and the public generally with the work of the schools.

"The following activities are suggested:

"1. Principals may request pupils who have fathers, relatives and friends occupying shops, stores and residences with windows on the street floors to display posters.

"2. Principals may call upon citizens to exercises by the children to parents and friends.

"3. Newspapers should be supplied with full information regarding the plans before the week begins and with accounts of the various events.

"4. Pupil representatives, wearing sashes or badges of office, who have been taught the courtesies, should welcome visitors and escort them in accordance with routines planned by the principals.

"5. Typical school work should be displayed.

"6. Brief, pointed addresses may be given by teachers, Principals, Superintendents and others upon the civic service of schools.

"7. Principals should use the occasion to emphasize the fact that the public school is an agency for cooperating with parents and others.

"8. Precautions should be taken to avoid accidents to visitors."

LONDON HOSPITALS GAIN.

Reports Shows Their Financial Position Much Improved.

A statistical report for the year of 1924 on 118 London hospitals issued by the King Edward's Hospital Fund for London shows:

(a) A continued increase in the work of the London hospitals, the total available beds being 5,460 in 1924, an increase of 250 over 1923 and 1,620 over 1913. This, says the London correspondent of The Journal of the American Medical Association, is especially interesting in view of the report issued by the Voluntary Hospitals Commission on the question of extension.

(b) A continued increase in maintenance expenditure, the total being $13,780,000 in 1924, as against $13,165,000 in 1923 and $6,020,000 in 1913. (c) A continued increase in income, which was $14,600,000 in 1924, as against $14,300,000 in 1923 and $7,425,000 in 1913. (d) A remarkable improvement in the financial position since the crisis in 1920, whereby the net aggregate deficits (taking all the hospitals together) for the years 1920, 1921 and 1922, have been gradually changed into net aggregate surpluses for 1923 and 1924, and the number of hospitals with deficits has decreased from seventy-seven in 1920 to fifty-four in 1924. (e) In addition to the increase in income, very large sums received for capital purposes during the last three years, viz., for endowment $3,225,000 and for buildings and equipment $4,050,000.

Among other points of interest is the proportion of expenditure covered by each kind of income, 20.1 per cent. by income from investments, amounting to $2,770,000; 37.7 per cent. by voluntary gifts, amounting to $5,195,000; 29.6 per cent. by patients' payments and other earnings, amounting to $4,100,000, and 18.2 per cent., or $2,525,000, by legacies and other extraordinary income; the surplus of income over expenditure being 5.9.

AT ODDS OVER SPECTACLES.

Question of Who Shall Prescribe Them Arises in Britain.

In connection with ophthalmic benefit in Great Britain under the National Health Insurance act, the Royal Commission is holding an inquiry, according to the London correspondent of The Journal of the American Medical Association. The Council of British Ophthalmologists strongly opposes the qualified opticians' claim to prescribe spectacles, holding that the examination of the eyes should be carried out by qualified physicians. It approves and supports the recommendations in this respect recently formulated by its subcommittee in conjunction with representatives of the British Medical Association.

Asked by the Chairman of the commission whether the general practitioner would be acting improperly in advising a patient to go direct to an optician, Mr. Collins, giving evidence on behalf of the ophthalmologists, said that that must be left in a large measure to the general practitioner himself. If he accepted the responsibility of stating that the case was one which required only the care of an optician, he would be taking on himself a very large responsibility. An optician might in some cases be capable of ascertaining the figures representing an optical defect, but the determining of the glasses that should be worn was quite another matter, and one that required medical as distinct from optical training.

Asked whether he considered that there were sufficient medical practitioners versed in ophthalmic work to meet the requirements should this benefit be extended to the whole insured population, Mr. Collins said that his council and associated itself with the British Medical Association and the Ophthalmic Benefit Committee in this matter. The British Medical Association had drawn up a list of some 500 ophthalmologists prepared to see insured persons at a uniform fee of 45 on behalf of approved societies. The supply would also tend to increase with the demand.

Asked what evidence there was of real danger that had arisen in consequence of the very common practice of going straight to an optician, Mr. Collins replied that his council had plenty of evidence which could be divided under three heads: overlooked disease, patients unnecessarily alarmed about their condition, and unnecessary glasses supplied.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4½ per cent. for the best names. Monday—4½ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Burlaps Quiet and Lower.

Inquiries for burlaps were plentiful enough here yesterday, but the replies of sellers were such as to discourage trading in spite of the easier feeling in Calcutta. The latter market was off again yesterday, as compared with Monday, the drop being about 10 points. Yesterday's demand there was reported light. Local prices are easier, compared with those of a week ago, with the decline more noticeable in the lightweight goods than in the heavy ones. These were the quotations issued here yesterday by C. H. Rochstroh & Co., Inc., on standard 40-inch burlaps.

Fancy Shirtings for Spring.

The trend toward fancies in men's shirtings is still strong, the leading firms here are confident of the continuance of it well into the Spring season, if not beyond. In percales the novelty printed effects are much liked and, although there has been some talk of overproduction of these goods in the cheaper lines, this is discounted by manufacturers. Collar attached and to match models are well to the fore in most of the merchandise now being sold. There has been an increase in the demand for silk shirts, which reflects the holiday buying of retailers. In the plain shirts the broadcloth variety holds its own. Through various branding schemes, many concerns in the trade are trying to avoid the price question in this type, which has been productive of severe competition

Gray Goods Sales Small.

Although there was a good deal of inquiry in the local gray goods market yesterday, actual business was light. It was limited by the firmer undertone of the market and the consequent unwillingness of sellers to meet buyers' views as to what prices should be. January-March deliveries of 39½-inch 64-60 print cloths were available on Monday at 5½ cents, but yesterday sellers asked a quarter more. They also asked 5¼ cents for spot goods of that construction, which was a rise of an eighth, and 10½ cents for 39-inch 68-72s. Sheeting sales were small, but among these were some 39-inch 4.35 to 4.40 yard 56-60s at the specialties were included sales of 39-inch 68-76, three-leaf twills at 12 cents.

The Passers-By Looked Twice.

Capitalizing the boyish Hallowe'en pranks that, particularly in the smaller places, often result in the interchange of gates of fences and other property, two up-State stores got a lot of favorable publicity for their efforts late last week. One was an electrical shop and the other a shoe store. Following an agreement between the two, the former came out on Hallowe'en with a window display made up entirely of shoes. The shoe store put in a window of electrical devices. A great deal of attention was attracted by both displays in their unusual settings, and the feeling on the part of both merchants was that the idea had borne considerable fruit. There is no question about the volume of word-of-mouth advertising it evoked.

***

Knitted Ties Have Done Well.

Knitted tie manufacturers here say they have had a very satisfactory Fall season, and they look forward to a fair volume of special holiday business yet to come. One feature that is said to have been very effective in the sale of knitted silk neckwear is the greater tendency on the part of the retailer to display this merchandise. Some stores, it was said, gave special window space to the goods and others brought them to a more prominent place in their salescounters. These ties continue to sell best in the $3 and $3.50 retail price ranges, and there is said to be no indication of any return of the cheap fibre ties of two or three seasons ago.

***

Fur Market Looking Up.

Not a little improvement in demand is reported in several quarters of the local raw fur trade. The cheaper grades of wolf, those running to about $12, were said yesterday to be in good request for trimming purposes, and an improved call for squirrel was also reported. In the latter the preference for pale or clear pelts. Also for trimmings are wanted heavy badger pelts, which are rising in price rather rapidly. In one quarter of the trade it was said yesterday that these skins have advanced about 25 per cent. in the last three or four weeks. Those wanted most run in price up to $22 or $23, dressed. Better demand for white fox is also in evidence.

***

Orders for Men's Wear Yarns.

Considerably more business has been transacted recently in men's wear yarns, the demand covering both fancy mixtures and white yarns. The orders for the former, however, show the most notable gain, according to the market letter of Thomas H. Ball. The buying of outerwear knit yarns continues strong, and much new business has been added to the substantial contracts booked. The purchasing recently stresses 9-26 to 9-30 and 9-36 lots. The firmness in wool is being reflected in all yarn prices, but despite this the opinion is expressed that the remainder of this year should see a liberal increase in consumption in line with added operations of spindles and looms.

New Garment Trade Organization.

The name of the new association being formed in the women's garment trade is the Wholesale Women's Wear Association of America, according to the preamble of the organization, which was made public yesterday by Morris Sprayregen, Chairman of the body. It is stated in the preamble that the association aims to perform fourteen different services for the ready-to-wear industry, none of which, however, will deal with labor matters. For the first time both the inside shop manufacturer and the jobber are brought together to cooperate in the solution of their merchandising problems. Among the outstanding functions of the organization are the interchange of credit information, the arbitration of disputes, the promotion of sales through research and publicity, traffic work, the reduction of credit risks, the elimination of unfair abuses and efforts for the general welfare and stability of the industry.

Floor Coverings Again Active.

The active buying of floor coverings, more especially rugs and carpets, that featured the opening of Spring lines of these goods on Monday, continued yesterday. So far as the carpets and rugs were concerned, there was not a great deal of change in the situation, but in the hard-surface goods there was a noticeable improvement in the demand. Indications in this part of the trade point to the same large sales volume that is being run up in the rug end. The weakest feature appears to be printed linoleums, into the demand for which the sale of felt-base goods has cut considerably. Prices on printed goods have been quite sharply reduced in most cases, in one instance, at least, the cut has been nearly 10 cents a square yard. Favoring the sale of felt-base goods in the cheaper lines of hard-surface merchandise are the extremely high market for jute and the resultant stiffness of prices for the wide burlaps that are used for backing linoleums.

Early Orders for Overcoatings.

The extent of the improvement in the situation in overcoatings is indicated by the reports in the woolen trade that some clothing manufacturers are already placing business for next Fall. It was said yesterday that these orders are for fabrics practically identical with those which the manufacturers have found favored for this Fall, with blues and browns standing out in the colors. Deliveries on at least a part of the orders are such that manufacturers can use the fabrics to produce garments for sale this Winter, it was find they need the goods to fill a late retail demand. The interest on the part of manufacturers is held to presage a generally healthy condition when the linen dra officially opened.

DIVERGENT TRENDS IN WORLD'S TRADE

J. W. Ardrey Foresees Closer Economic Unity but Severer Competition.

EFFECT OF THE WORLD WAR

Declares That Adjustments Now in Process Will Bring Greater Complexity.

J. Howard Ardrey, Vice President of the National Bank of Commerce, in a review of the course of international business and its probable future tendencies, in the bank's monthly survey of trade, says that since 1914 two sharply divergent trends have developed in international business. First of these is a new emphasis on foreign trade and a tendency to stress the economic unity of the world.

"The war brought home to the minds of men the economic interdependence of nations," continues Mr. Ardrey. "As it progressed, countries distant from the scene of the main struggle were drawn into at least quasi-participation, and the great need of combatant nations for foodstuffs and raw materials caused a search for new sources of supply and the development of new channels of trade which had important consequences for many countries. Even more than the experiences of the war years have the difficulties of the post-war period made evident the closely knit character of world business.

"On the other hand, the war disorganized and in some cases entirely blocked up old lines of traffic and left in its wake a spirit of passionate nationalism which is being interpreted in large measure in economic terms. All countries are showing a growing determination to guard their natural resources against exploitation for the benefit of other nations, and as far as possible to make themselves independent with regard to essential raw materials and manufactured goods.

Struggle for Raw Materials.

"Neither of these tendencies had its origin in forces loosed by the World War. Both are as old as the modern organization of industry and of commerce, and both were clearly evident in the years when the late war was brewing. Of the many factors which eventually brought it to pass, none was more powerful than the desire for international commercial supremacy. The struggle for raw materials, as reflected by efforts to acquire territory in unsettled areas, has been a source of contention among nations since the era of the great discoveries, while the determination of the American Colonies to develop an independent industry free of handicaps imposed by Great Britain was one of the primary causes of the American Revolution.

"The effects of the war and post-war disorganization were nevertheless very great, and changes were affected in ten years which otherwise would have required much longer for their accomplishment. In consequence, business is now in process of making fundamental adjustments in its outlook and in its methods, and the indications are that in its international aspect it will be characterized by a growing complexity. This is clearly evident in the field of finance. "Formerly sterling was without a serious rival as a common denominator of international transactions. Today it shares this position with the dollar.

"The development of several markets for commercial money and for capital instead of one dominant market clearly adds to the complexity of international banking, and the changes taking place in other lines of business tend toward the same result. Thus not so very long ago Russia and the United States dominated the international grain market, and the United States held well-nigh undisputed sway as the producer of beef products for export. Canada is now the largest single factor in the international wheat trade, while the combined grain exports of Australia and Argentina are in most years larger than those of this country. So cheaply can these two latter countries raise cattle that United States beef has become an unimportant factor in the export beef trade.

Better Communication Now.

"The growth of capitalistic agriculture in many parts of the world was already in 1914 a powerful factor tending toward a diversity of sources for many food products, and the war years have given a further impetus to these developments.

"A parallel trend is that toward the diffusion of the manufacturing industries. The rise of Germany as a contender for the international market for many classes of manufactures and the industrial development of the United States have been the outstanding economic events of the last fifty years. Changes only less important are taking place elsewhere. Many of us have seen the rise of Japan as a manufacturing nation, and we are now witnessing the gradual industrialization of such countries as Brazil and South Africa, Australia and India.

"Meantime quick and comparatively cheap circulation of news by telegraph, cable and radio, freer travel and a tendency toward a common culture are making the world a market unit. Efficient and rapid transportation over great distances is resulting in faster turnover, with a consequent narrowing of the margin of profit necessary for international trading.

"The effects of all these changes on methods of doing business are certain to be profound, and the probabilities seem to be in the direction of growing complexity and further development of great international organizations equipped to buy and sell in every market and, if need be, to produce their goods in any country.

"Summarizing the world situation in a single phrase, goods of most classes originate in many countries and are exported in every direction. The first requisite of successful foreign trade today is the ability to secure prompt information from the remotest sources, for although news from a distance may be more or less fragmentary, it travels swiftly. The struggle for export markets is so keen that the man in New York who makes an error of judgment because of lack of knowledge of the character of the Indian monsoon or the outlook for the Australian raisin crop will be caught marketwise, for he may rest assured that some competitor will have the facts of the situation.

"The trend toward operations in an international way, the result of a closer economic unity but severer competition throughout the world, does not mean that there will be no place in industry and commerce for small business. Except in lines in which natural conditions have resulted in concentration of production, firms essentially local in character will continue for years to come to move raw materials from the point of origin to primary markets, where the great international houses will take charge of them."

READE ST. PROJECT TO COST $6,000,000

VARICK ST. FRONT SOLD

A site comprising two block fronts near the new County Court House and the Municipal Building was purchased yesterday by an investing syndicate for improvement with an office skyscraper representing an investment of $6,000,000.

The property consists of the entire block fronts on Lafayette and Reade Streets around to and with the corners of Elm and Duane Streets. It was sold by William H. English to a syndicate organized through M. Carl Levine, attorney, consisting of operators and builders headed by Harris H. Uris, Percy Uris, former Sheriff David H. Knott and J. C. Brownstone.

The plot has an area of 17,000 feet and will be improved with a twenty-one story office building from plans of Buchman & Kahn, architects.

A novel feature in the project will be the Municipal Club, with representation by the leading city officials, merchants, lawyers, Judges, &c., to whom two floors have been leased. This club in addition to the dining rooms will have conference rooms, library and lounging rooms necessary for the convenience of the business and professional men in the neighborhood.

Some of the oldest landmarks in downtown Manhattan will be razed to clear the site for the new structure. On the plot were restaurants where Judges of the Criminal Court met and where the famous Guldensuppe murder case and the Thaw trial were discussed. The plot consists of a dozen parcels which required a year to assemble. Charles F. Noyes Company were the brokers in the transaction and have been made agents for the management and rental of the new building. The seller was advised throughout the negotiations by William M. Greve, President of the Realty Associates.

M. Carl Levine organized the syndicate and acted as attorney for the problems in connection with the purchase of various leases, the organization of the Municipal Club and all financial matters involved. The new building will be completed in about one year's time.

Brener Buys Varick Street Block Front.

In another deal involving a downtown block front Samuel Brener, the operator, purchased from William S. Coffin the easterly frontage on Varick Street, from Charlton to King Street, which Mr. Coffin acquired from Trinity Church Corporation several years ago.

The property is known as 172 to 188 Varick Street and 49 to 53 Charlton Street, with a frontage of 201 feet on Varick Street and a depth of 54 feet. It is improved with stores and two three-story buildings. Negotiations for the resale of the property to a builder for improvement on the expiration of the present leases are pending. Brown, Wheelock; Harris, Vought & Co. were the brokers.

Alex Kempner, operator, sold the twelve-story-and-basement office building occupying a plot 44 by 100 feet at 35 and 37 West Thirty-ninth Street, known as the Haskins & Sells building. The seller was the firm of Haskins & Sells, which has owned the building since its erection and which occupies the five upper floors.

The Haskins & Sells building, which is fully rented, adjoins the sixteen-story Engineering Building, and is on the same block with the twenty-four-story office building recently completed on the northeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street. The broker was Peter Grimm.

Santa Rosa Apartments Sold.

Walser & Sommer, operators, purchased the Santa Rosa Apartments at 120-124-128 Convent Avenue, comprising the block front from 133d to 134th Street. The property is situated on a lot 20 by 100 feet, and consists of three five-story apartment houses arranged in three, four and five room suites. It is in the vicinity of the City College, opposite the new five-million-dollar Normal Training School for Teachers, and was erected by Mr. Paterno, prominent builder. The annual income of the premises is $63,000, and was held at $400,000. I. H. Spielman was the broker.

The northeast corner of Lexington Avenue and 124th Street, improved with six tenement houses known as 2,047 to 2,053 Lexington Avenue and 151 to 157 East 124th Street, was sold by the Latex Realty Corporation to M. Berman.

The houses occupy a plot 100 by 100 feet and were held at $200,000.

Chasmore Construction Company, Inc., purchased 1,883 Second Avenue, a five-story tenement with stores, on lot 25 by 100 feet, renting for about $5,000. W. Lernie & Sons were the brokers in the transaction.

Brener in Two More Deals.

In addition to his Varick Street block-front purchase Samuel Brener figured in two other transactions yesterday. He sold to J. Mullin the six private houses on a plot 112 by 102 feet at 158 to 168 West Seventy-third Street, between Broadway and Columbus Avenue. L. J. Phillips & Co. were the brokers.

Mr. Brener purchased from the Mudo Realty Corporation, 206 Eighth Avenue, between Twentieth and Twenty-first Streets, a five-story double store and tenement building on a lot 25 by 147 feet, held at $100,000. Manheimer Brothers, Louis Carreau and Berley & Co. were the brokers in the sale.

PRIVATE HOUSES SOLD.

Dr. Deas Murphy Sells East Side Residence.

Dr. Deas Murphy sold the three-story and basement dwelling with a sixteen-foot frontage at 165 East Sixty-second Street to a buyer who will occupy. Pease & Elliman were the brokers.

Edward Bruce Hill sold 333 West Eighty-fourth Street, a four-story altered dwelling on a lot 18 by 102.2 feet. The property has been held by the Hill family for thirty years. It was sold to an investing client of Samuel A. Mole Company and was held at $45,000.

Buys Eleventh Av. Corner.

Isador H. Kempner, operator, has purchased from Jacob Zimmerman the southeast corner of Eleventh Avenue and Fiftieth Street.

Upon the expiration of the existing leases the property will be improved with a fireproof warehouse. N. A. Berwin & Co., Inc., negotiated the transaction.

Operator Resells Flat.

James H. Cruikshank has resold to Lulu H. Offord 160 West 127th Street, a four-story and basement single flat on plot 25 by 100 between Lenox and Seventh Avenues, held at $26,500. Joshua A. Cockburn was the broker.

Manhattan's Changing Streets and Avenues

FIFTH AVENUE, from the Public Library, at 42d St., to St. Patrick's Cathedral, at 50th St., is the scene now of some of the most interesting developments ever recorded in the progress of this kaleidoscopic "Avenue of Avenues." The changes taking place in this zone are paralleled only by the important improvements scheduled for the 57th St. and Plaza section later on.

It is comparatively only a few years since the Harriman National Bank Building, at the s. e. cor. of 5th Ave. and 44th St. was built. And yet, the Harriman Bank today is erecting on the adjoining 5th Ave. site a structure that will greatly enlarge the present Harriman Bank Building.

At the opposite corner, the famous "Delmonico" landmark has been demolished and is being replaced by a monumental office building of the setback type, being built by a Syndicate organized by Max N. Natanson, which paid the record rate of approximately $312. per sq. ft. for the property, sold in 1890 for a little less than $70. a sq. ft.

One block further north, at the n. e. corner of 45th St., the Fred F. French Co. is erecting a 31-story skyscraper on a plot assembled by, and purchased from Frederick Brown, and which formerly included the site of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, which has purchased a site for a new building at 5th Ave. and 90th St.

At the s. e. cor. of 49th St., the new James McCutcheon & Co. Building was opened last week. McCutcheon & Co. began business in New York, in 1855, at 748 Broadway, since which time it has occupied other locations in 14th and 23d Sts. and in 5th Ave., bet. 33d and 34th St.

The one-time Buckingham, National Democratic Club and Belgravia block front, from 49th to 50th St., directly north of the McCutcheon Building, is now occupied by the new 5th Ave. home of Saks & Co. The site of this building was acquired through our associates, Stephen H. Tyng, Jr. & Co.

No new buildings of large dimensions have been erected on the w. s. of 5th Ave., bet. 42d and 50th St. since the alteration of Sherry's, at 44th St. to be the new home of the Guaranty Trust Co. Important alterations, however, include the new building of decided English type, erected by Finchley, and the alteration of the one-time Sage residence and Thorley Building into the newest of the several Childs restaurants in 5th Ave.

Although 5th Avenue opportunities each year are becoming fewer, we know of several that are very interesting.

YOU Made This Apartment a Reality

IF YOU had drawn the plans for this luxurious new apartment building it would be the same kind of a building. It embodies those details and touches that you would have insisted upon; the arrangement of the rooms; the size and elimination of all waste space; the facilities and equipment to save time and work; the generous closet space; in fact, it is your type of apartment building—a building intended to provide city homes with the utmost in convenience and comfort.

Naturally, you would have selected just such a location; its social desirability, its accessibility and reachability are other factors that justify its description as the finest apartment building in New York City.

SOUTHERN LAND FOR COLONIZATION AND SALE IN SMALL TRACTS TO NORTHERN INVESTORS AND FARMERS. 6,950 acres of agricultural land, located in Jasper County, Mississippi, which is in about the centre of the State.

The land lies high and is well drained; it is good agricultural soil and on it will grow cotton, corn, alfalfa and Bermuda grass; it is slightly undulating, just sufficient for excellent drainage; a railroad runs directly through it; it is cut-over land and the timber has been removed.

This land has been surveyed and cornerstones set at the corner of each 40 acres and can be shown at once to prospective purchasers; there is a complete abstract of title for each section and there need be no delay in starting a sale.

You can purchase this land for $15 per acre, with a substantial advance payment and the balance on liberal terms.

Compare this land with anything you can buy, both as to price, location and lay of land.

Here is something so different and out of the ordinary that you will almost every one at the first interview because they themselves get a big cash profit out of the transaction. It is the kind of a proposition that has a special appeal to the high-grade $6,000 to $10,000 a year type of salesman; those who have their own automobiles are especially successful.

Best of all, it isn't stocks, bonds, books, real estate, insurance or anything else with which you are familiar; it is an entirely new merchandising and sales promotion plan that every retail dealer actually wants the minute he sees it, as it means thousands of dollars worth of increased business for him IMMEDIATELY.

Only thoroughly high-grade men are considered—men who can satisfy our requirements as to character and clean selling methods; the compensation and work both call for the finest type of salesman obtainable—men who are trained in efficient presentation and know how to close their sales—men who are ACTUAL PRODUCERS.

If you are SURE YOU CAN QUALIFY, then call for interview Thursday, between 9:30 A. M. and 5 P. M., at eleventh floor, 117 East 24th St. Ask for Sales Manager.

Postoffice Notice

NEW PARCEL POST CONVENTION WITH CUBA.

A parcel post convention with Cuba was signed on Oct. 31 to become effective Jan. 1, 1926. This convention provides for the exchange of parcel post packages, ordinary and registered, exceeding 8 ounces up to and not exceeding 11 pounds in weight, and requires the sealing of parcels with wax, adhesive tape or in some other acceptable manner. It also provides for indemnity not to exceed $10 for the total loss (weight and contents) of registered parcel post packages exchanged between the two countries. Further information concerning the new parcel post service will be published in due course. The convention is effective for eighteen months only from Jan. 1, 1926, pending the modification or repeal of certain statutes which prohibit the importation into the United States by mail or parcel post of cigars and cigarettes in quantities of less than 3,000 in a single package, thus excluding some of Cuba's most important articles of export.

THINGS YOU WILL WANT TO SEE IN MIAMI

HI-A-LEAH—Miami's Sport Center

Hi-a-leah is Miami's outlet for red-blooded excitement. Here are located the Miami Jockey Club, the Miami Kennel Club where greyhound races are held every evening except Sundays, the Curtis Aviation Field, the Miami Amusement Park, the Municipal Golf Course and the Jai Alai courts.

If you have never watched a dog race, there is a new sporting thrill in store for you. It's a spectacle in itself and offers an evening full of tense excitement.

Off rush the dogs in their mad chase after the mechanical rabbit. Neck and neck they come down the straight-away, their muscular legs covering the ground with the speed of an express train. The crowd goes wild as their favorite wins by a nose.

Then there is Jai Alai,—the fastest game in the world to watch. Sometimes the ball is vollied for fifteen minutes at a time, and the "gets" the players make are positively uncanny.

A visit to Hi-a-leah not only offers you plenty of interesting things to see; it will also give you a true conception of the permanent, solid building and construction work going on around Miami. When you see the beauty of Miami's architecture, and the millions of dollars which are being spent for staple, solid construction, you will realize that Miami's building activity is keeping steady pace with Miami's rapid growth—and this, students of economics say, is the true check on the stability of any land boom. The opportunities Miami offers for the future are as great as those of the past.

Of course, when you visit Miami, you will want to see a real estate firm on whose knowledge and judgment you can rely. Of 13,000 licensed brokers we are one of a scant few who have been here any appreciable length of time. We know Miami from the standpoint of what it was and what it is. We are builders too, the most completely equipped in Miami.

Which are You Getting
Fresh Butter or Storage Butter?

Reeves Butter is Fresh and Pasteurized

91 SEVENTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

October 6, 1924.

"Dear Mr. Reeves:

SIX months ago, I had the privilege of telling your patrons through an advertisement the truth about your butter. I am certain that you did not make enough fuss about the facts. You published my statement and that was the end of it.

Yet, here you are with not a pound of storage butter in any of your establishments. Who knows that but yourself? I am not condemning good storage butter by any means, because much of it is very good. But even the best storage butter takes on a storage flavor. Why, therefore, don't you tell the butter-loving public of the metropolis just what your butter is—fresh, direct from the churn?

Of course, I am not running your stores but if I were running them, nothing could keep me quiet on the subject of butter. Your sweet creamery extras have the freshly-scalded-churn flavor. Your salted creamery extras have precisely the same fresh creamery flavor, indescribably sweet and buttery, solely because both sweet and salted are freshly churned from fresh cream. Just as important as this is the fact that both the sweet and the salted are pasteurized.

In my opinion, thousands of butter eaters are eager for just such information as you are in a position to give them. I urge you to tell them the plain truth, which needs no proof but the eating. When they do eat, they will thank you for telling them, and you will find that when you have something else to tell them truthfully, they will believe and, in their own interest, act upon that belief.

In my opinion that's the way the good grocery stores of the future will act toward a truth-seeking public, now sadly muddled by a bomb-fire of alleged "bargains".

Sincerely,
Alfred W. McCann

The Alfred W. McCann Laboratories have examined our butter at intervals for more than a year. We have decided to print Mr. McCann's letter in full, just the way it was received.

Poor Light Puts Production to Sleep—

Good Lighting Wakes It Up

The well-lighted factory is the pace-maker in its field—and enjoys costs appreciably lower than do competitors. This has been proved by engineers and works managers in every branch of industry.

Yet four of every five plants are poorly lighted—have lighting that makes production cost excessive.

Good artificial lighting in your plant can give 15% increase or more in production or its equivalent in lowered manufacturing cost.

This problem of proper lighting in the factory is one of great importance and may mean the difference between profits and losses when the balance sheet is drawn.

Without obligation to you, we will gladly investigate your lighting needs and recommend improvements that will enable you to decrease your cost of production by increasing production with the same men and equipment.
